House Group Exempts Selves, Secretaries, Absentee Voters.

Shift Will Wreck Bill, Backers Fear

By James D. Secrest.

The House District Committee yesterday amended the local income tax bill to exempt themselves, their secretaries, and all absentee voters near the end of an all-day session of wrangling over the omnibus measure reported by the Kennedy sub-committee.

Washington in the last national election had more than 100,000 residents who claimed legal residence in the States and who thus would be exempt from the income tax bill as amended.

Denied a special rule, the committee faces a more serious revolt next Monday, which is District day, in the House as several members predicted that the income tax bill will be voted down and that the entire bill may be recommitted.

An equally alarming possibility arises from the danger that a prolonged debate or filibuster will delay action on the bill until the next District day, which does not occur until June 28, only two days before the time when the tax bills should become effective.

The amendment which even sponsors of income tax admitted would wreck the measure, unless altered on the House floor, was offered by Representative Hull (Progressive), Wisconsin.

It was declared adopted by Chairman Mary T. Norton on a voice vote after the committee had reversed its stand on a similar exemption. When members of the Kennedy sub-committee challenged the declaration and demanded a roll call, Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, threatened to raise a point of no quorum.

One Word Does Damage.

A single word inserted in a section of the bill did the damage which other members had tried to effect by striking out long sentences or a paragraph. It was the placing of "legal" before residents of the District who would be subject to the tax.

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal expressed the informal opinion that the exemption would eliminate all members of Congress and all Federal and District employes or others, who maintain a voting residence in one of the States regardless of the fact that they may own property and derive their incomes in the District.

"I don't see how the Commissioners will escape the necessity of raising the real estate tax if the bill is adopted in this form," Seal said.

Previously the committee adopted, reconsidered and then rejected an amendment offered by Representative Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland, which sought to alter the definition of "resident" so as to exempt all persons who do not maintain "a permanent place of abode" in the District.

First Effort Loses.

Palmisano explained he was interested in exempting secretaries and clerks of members of Congress. His colleague, Chairman Kennedy, of the sub-committee, pointed out that the amendment also exempted members themselves.

On the first roll call the amendment was adopted, 5 to 4. It was subsequently rejected when Representative Bigelow (Democrat), of Ohio, moved to reconsider and changed his vote.

The final vote was:

Although the members apparently

Carl Dorr, 47, of 1341 Connecticut avenue northwest, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital of what physicians believed was Rocky Mountain fever.

Dorr, who was connected with the Music Educators Association, became ill two weeks ago. A positive diagnosis of his affliction was not possible, physicians said.

The United States Public Health Service will make a bacteriological analysis to determine the exact nature of his illness.

Richard von Bernewitz, of Brentwood, Md., a business associate, said last night that some weeks ago Dorr stopped to pick some wildflowers in Prince Georges County and may have been bitten then.

Selassie Sues Il Duce In Fight for Rail Stock

Paris, June 9 (AP).—Haile Selassie lost his country to Benito Mussolini, but he made up his mind today to fight for his railway shares.

The former Conquering Lion of Judah filed suit against Il Duce and Italy in the French courts to obtain the right to sell his stock in Ethiopia's one-track railway. The stock is valued at about $1,350,000.

Many Film Stars Among 250 At Brief Service; Powell Shaken.

By the Associated Press.

Glendale, Calif., June 9.—Hollywood said goodby to Jean Harlow today with a brief and simple funeral service in a suburban chapel overflowing with flowers.

The services for the platinum-blonde screen actress lasted only 30 minutes.

William Powell, a suitor of the actress, was visibly shaken as he entered the Wee Kirk o the Heather. When he left, suppporting Miss Harlows mother, Mrs. Jean Bello, he seemed more composed. But as he sank back into his car, Powell brushed aside dark glasses and buried his face in his hands.

Mrs. Bello was weeping, as were two girls who had been the actress makeup attendants.

To Remain in Vault.

The mother, Powell, and Jeans father, Dr. Monticlair Carpenter, of Kansas City, were the last to look upon her. Until they decide on disposition of the body it will remain in a receiving vault near the chapel.

Barely 250 persons, most of them Hollywood stars and studio executives, were admitted to the service. Warner Baxter, Clark Gable, Carole Lombard, Spencer Tracy, Myrna Loy, Una Merkel, Madge Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Montgomery, Maureen O'Sullivan and her husband were among those attending.

These stars passed through a crowd of about 1,000, massed at the

Two May Be Indicted In Taylor Death Mystery

Los Angeles, June 9 (AP).—The latest dither over the William Desmond Taylor mystery murder of 15 years ago simmered down in customary fashion today. Authorities said the slaying of the ace film director was as much of a puzzle as ever and they are not any closer to a solution.

The Los Angeles Examiner said in a copyrighted story the county grand jury will be asked to indict at least two persons in connection with Taylor's death. "We are as close to an arrest as we were when Taylor was murdered 15 years ago," District Attorney Buron Fitts commented.

Home Shortage Charged With Causing Strikes

Housing Federation Head Pleads With President for Wagner Bill.

By William V. Nessly.

Laying "strikes and riots" in numerous States to unrest caused by an acute housing shortage, the American Federation of Housing Authorities yesterday appealed for passage of the Wagner-Steagall housing bill as it exists, despite President Roosevelt's disapproval Tuesday of subsidy provisions of the measure.

Langdon Post, head of the federation, calling at the White House, told the President all the housing authorities in the country had indorsed the present bill and expressed the hope the Chief Executive would support it even though it commits the Government to housing subsidies for some 60 years.

In a statement, the federation said that "behind ominous headlines telling of strikes and riots throughout Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois is a grim story of human misery and exploitation." It declared rent strikes had developed from the housing shortage, "which is turning people into the streets," and said industrial employes are being driven to fight "not alone for living wages, but for conditions which make living possible for them and their families."

Workers earning $50 to $60 a week have been compelled to rent

Moscow, June 9 (U.P.).—Sigismund Levanevsky, Russia's most daring aviator, was reported tonight to be ready for another attempt to fly nonstop from Moscow to San Francisco by way of the North Pole.

Levanevsky arrived tonight at Sebastapol, after a flight from Moscow at an average speed of 135 miles an hour.

It was reported a week ago that Dictator Josef Stalin had selected Levanevsky to make the first flight across the top of the world to the United States, as a reward for his previous pathfinding flights.

Wage-Hours Bill Assailed As 'Fascism'

Big Business Starts Revolt Against 'Super NRA.'

Black-Connery Act Also 'Unworkable,' Say Witnesses.

By Sidney Olson.

The Black-Connery wage-hour bill, lukewarmly indorsed through a week's hearings by several industrialists and labor leaders, received its first acid bath yesterday as witness after witness denounced it in whole or in part, for reasons ranging from "unworkability" to "tending to Fascism."

The men who sprayed the measure with epithets and legal arguments were chiefly representatives of big business. Only two defended the act—the Rev. John A. Ryan, of the National Catholic Welfare Association in Washington, and John P. Davis, of the National Negro Congress, but even Davis objected to portions of the bill.

Harsh Witnesses.

Two witnesses, Roy A. Cheney, managing director Underwear Institute, and Harvey Willson, of the National Upholstery and Drapery Textile Association, were particularly harsh in their condemnation of the measure.

Cheney said the Labor Standards Board, to be set up by the act, would be under the President's direction, and that "We think it unwise and contrary to a democratic form of government to give any one man such great power * * * If Congress continues to delegate its powers to boards and commissions and to the President, the time will come when some one will announce what is almost an accomplished fact, that Congress is no longer necessary as a part of our Government."

Willson, charging that "boards, commissions and bureaus invariably tend to exceed the authority and scope originally contemplated for them," said that "we believe this bill is wholly unworkable and will result in confusion in industry far exceeding the NRA, which was bad enough." He denounced the measure as complex, with infinite possibilities for delay in it, and attacked the wage differential powers in the bill as entirely "bad."

Details of Objections.

He also insisted that section 5 ought to be eliminated from the bill. This is the section empowering the Labor Standards Board to intervene in industries where the facilities for collective bargaining are "inadequate or ineffective," and its elimination was also sought by John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, for different reasons.

Mgr. Ryan, emphatic in favoring the bill, said:

"No legislative proposal that I have ever supported has given me quite as much satisfaction as the Black-Connery bill.

"It should be an elementary proposition that the effective demand for goods can be maintained only by putting more purchasing power within the hands of those who are willing and eager to buy.

"The bill will give more purchasing power to the wage earners through increasing minimum wage

Baldwin, Raiser of Pigs, Becomes Earl, Viscount

London, June 9 (AP).—Stanley Baldwin, the squire of Westminster who wants to go back to the country and raise pigs, was inducted into the House of Lords today amid the traditional pageantry of Britain's upper parliamentary chamber.

The 69-year-old retired premier found it a bit bewildering as he changed from Sir Stanley Baldwin, K. G., to Earl Baldwin of Bewdley, Viscount Corvedale of Corvedale in the County of Salop, in the peerage of the United Kingdom.

Europe Fears Danzig Coup Is Hitler Aim

East Prussian Visit Set for June 19 on Border of Free State.

Reich to Move Troops Through City; Another Rhineland Rumored.

By the Associated Press.

Marienwerder, East Prussia, June 9.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler is scheduled to address 600 of his oldest and trusted followers on Polish frontier problems here June 19.

Dramatically he has chosen for his important party conference this town of 14,000 inhabitants which borders on the Free State of Danzig, once Polish and once German and governed since the World War under League of Nations supervision.

Great secrecy cloaks details of the conference, but there are some who believe Hitler may take the day for a "surprise Saturday announcement of his intentions toward the Free City of Danzig.

Speaks in East Prussia.

There are these indications to support that belief, based only on speculation by seasoned foreign observers:

The Fuehrer will be speaking in East Prussia, cut off from the rest of Germany by the corridor to the Baltic Sea which Poland won by the Treaty of Versailles. His address probably will be confidential, made public in the event a sweeping, decisive step is to be undertaken.

The day before his scheduled address, Nazi sub-leaders will visit Danzig itself. Rudolf Hess, Robert Ley and others high in the service of the Fuehrer will go to the Free City.

It was learned Heinrich Himmler, chief of all Germany's police, inspected SS troops (Schutz Staffel bodyguard), numbering 9,000 men, in Danzig yesterday.

The Nazis now have a two-thirds majority in the Free City's Parliament—for the German nationalists have made their peace with the regime and several Socialists have joined the Nazi camp.

May Upset Constitution.

The Nazis are in political position, therefore, to throw over the Free State constitution which has League of Nations approval and to convert Danzig into an authoritative state like the Reich.

Some foreign quarters suspect Hitler might wave aside the authority of the League of Nations, just as he marched troops into the Rhineland, and as he built an army, air and naval force, declaring military restrictions of the Versailles Treaty to be obsolete.

Polish quarters, however, discount the theory. They point to the 10-year non-aggression pact between Poland and Germany and to repeated warnings that Poland never would tolerate annexation of Danzig by Germany.

But there are reports German troops from west of the Polish boundary will be moved into Arys in East Prussia to strengthen garrisons on the extreme eastern border of Germany. They are to be shipped

Husband Is Exonerated In 'Last Kiss' Suicide

Los Angeles, June 9 (AP).—A coroner's jury decided in three minutes today Mrs. Luella L. Giles, 29, shot herself to death in the "last kiss" case.

Her husband, Basil L. Giles, 32, was released. He had been held for investigation. Mrs. Giles' body was found in her bathtub Sunday. Giles testified at the inquest he heard a shot, rushed into the bathroom and found his wife bleeding. He said he impulsively kissed her and got blood on his hands, then fumbled with the telephone book to call police.

Alcoholic Drink, Tobacco Oath For Capital Teachers Defeated

The District's public school teachers will not be asked to abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages and tobacco in order to keep themselves in line for appointments and promotions, the Board of Education declared yesterday.

Turning down a proposal from the committee of allied organizations, headed by William V. Mahoney, school trustees described such checking as "unnecessary and undesirable meddling into the private lives of teachers and other employes."

Appearing before a special committee of the board last winter Mahoney and his committeemen, representing several anti-alcohol and anti-tobacco groups, asked that all applicants for teaching positions be required to state if they were addicted to the use of alcoholic beverages and tobacco. Members of the committee recommended that candidates who said they neither drank nor smoked be given preference.

Replying to this proposition yesterday Robert A. Maurer, chairman of the board's special committees said: "The committee finds the board of examiners inquires carefully into the character of candidates and is convinced that they can be depended on to enforce the rules of the board regarding conduct becoming a teacher."

The report brought in by Maurer was adopted unanimously by the board.

At the same time the board, following Maurer's recommendations, made three suggestions to school administrators for tightening the enforcement of the law of 1886 which requires that school children in the District of Columbia be instructed in the effects of the use of alcohol and narcotics.

It was in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the enactment of this law that Mahoney's committee appeared before the board.

Recommendations adopted by the board were:

1. That the responsible officers and teachers be instructed to observe fully the requirements of the law of 1886 relative to instruction in the effects of alcoholic drinks and narcotics.

2. That the principals of buildings be held responsible for observance of this law by teachers who are to give the instruction.

3. That the superintendent and his associates set up a plan of instruction adequate and uniform, that will co-ordinate instruction of pupils in all school levels.

Maurer's committee suggested that in junior high schools a definite program of instruction about the effects of drinking and smoking be incorporated in the course of elementary science, also that in senior high schools a similar plan of instruction be made a part of the physical education courses, and that in the teachers' colleges it be made a part of the courses in physiology and hygiene.

This is the third article in a series in which Eugene Meyer, publisher, and Felix Morley, editor of The Post, are collaborating in analyses of social, economic and political trends abroad.

By Felix Morley.

Copyright, 1937, The Washington Post.

London, June 2.—One aspect of the imperial conference, which opened here immediately after the coronation of George VI, recurs like a theme song in all the speeches made by all the representatives of the British dominions. It is a conception of the empire as a functioning league of nations. This league is seen as an organization much less extensive, but much more compact, closer knit and effectively powerful than that which centers at Geneva.

The comparison is significant for two reasons. On the one hand, it recognizes the failure of Geneva as the basis of British Empire foreign policy which it has been since 1919. Then the Dominions, including India, were given separate membership in the League of Nations in spite of American criticism of that development.

On the other hand, it emphasizes the complete equality of statehood now achieved by Australia, Canada, New Zealand and South Africa within the British Commonwealth of Nations. The term "league" implies a loose federation of wholly independent governments, with no superiors and no inferiors. Conversion of the empire into a political organism of that character would be a most momentous change.

It is not the British way to make such changes by formal pronouncements. Political evolution here takes place gradually and almost surreptitiously, receiving recognition only after the event. There will never be a New Deal in England and yet a new deal, without capital letters, is always going on. The record shows how particularly true this is with reference to the relations of Great Britain and the dominions, the subject of the very important conference which will continue here until the middle of June.

The imperial conference system has now been in operation for exactly half a century. It was in 1887, the year of Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee, that the first formal meeting took place between British statesmen and those of all the dominions, then still known as colonies. Then, as now with the coronation, the conference was made to coincide with a great imperial celebration, thus minimizing its significance in the public mind. But then, as now, there was a clear realization among the

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, June 9.—By drastic personnel changes the Soviet Union sought today to bolster its western and far eastern frontiers against the two powers it professes to consider its most likely enemies, Germany and Japan.

In the west the Red army command was shaken up in changes involving key frontier garrisons from Leningrad to the Iranian (Persian) border. The shifts meant new leadership along the whole western frontier, which Soviet spokesmen assert they believe the Reich may attack some day.

In far eastern Siberia eight important industrial executives were named in a sweeping "denunciation" of the kind that almost certainly means arrest and trial for treason.

Assailed As Traitors.

The men named held vital positions in the Soviet Union's ambitious plans to make its Far Eastern provinces a self-sufficient industrial and military community, a bulwark against Japan.

They were denounced as "Trotskyist" traitors by I. M. Vareikis, secretary of the far eastern Communist Party, at the twelfth district conference of the party at Khabarovsk. No mention was made of their fate, but such "exposure" in similar cases has meant the persons designated already were in prison.

None of the eight was among the 66 persons already executed in recent weeks in eastern Siberia for treason. This was believed here to

Dr. Dressler, who is chief State parole officer, received his degree at New York University today. He based his thesis on burlesque, and estimated he had witnessed 1,000 performances of the type now outlawed in New York.

His principal interest was in the reaction of the audiences. At one point in his thesis he wrote:

"Dances do not interest patrons. They must be sexual. If the chorus is doing a routine, the audience relaxes."

North Pole Weather.

Soviet North Pole Camp (By Radio to Moscow), June 9 (AP).—The temperature today was 28.4 degrees fahrenheit with an overcast ceiling at about 900 feet and visibility limited to between five-eighths and one and one-fourth miles. The position of the camp was 88.45 north, 21 west.

U. S. Medical Group Rejects Public Aid Plan

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, June 9.—The house of delegates of the American Medical Association today rejected a proposal of its New York State delegation for Government funds for medical care of the poor, but adopted, unanimously, a substitute with an enabling act by which organized medical bodies are authorized to co-operate with the Government to settle this and other medical problems.

Delegates coming out of the secret session which adopted this proposal were divided in opinion. Some said the letter of the New York idea had been rejected, but the spirit had been adopted. Some New Yorkers said they had received "half a loaf."

All agreed that the action was progressive. The "enabling act" read:

"Your reference committee recommends that the bureaus, councils and committees of the association continue their studies of the need for and the methods of distributing medical care to the end that the American Medical Association shall continue to do everything possible to promote and protect the health of the American people.

"The American Medical Association reaffirms its willingness, on receipt of direct request, to co-operate with any governmental or other qualified agency, and to make available the information, observations and results of investigation, together with any facilities."

The New York proposal recommended that public funds be made available to existing hospitals rendering services to the medically indigent. The substitute today omitted this provision.

The report asserted willingness to consider with other agencies means of providing medical care not only for the indigent, but for those who "find themselves under some circumstances unable to meet the costs of unusual medical procedures."

Strike Settled.

By the Associated Press.

Flint, Mich., June 9.—Nearly half a million residents of the Saginaw Valley were spared a night of darkness when striking employes of the Consumers Power Co voted late today to restore electric service that had been shut off here for 15 hours.

Flint division employes, first to vote, accepted, 88 to 27, an agreement between the Committee for Industrial Organization and the power company reached last midnight in Washington.

Then the negotiations committee, which flew here from Washington to submit the agreement to the strikers, left for Saginaw. Wyndham Mortimer, first vice president of the United Automoblie Workers, who headed the committee, said he was confident the employes of the Saginaw and Bay City divisions would accept it.

Current began to flow at 5:30 p. m. over circuits here that had been idle since 2:27 a. m., when the strike began.

80,000 Held Idle.

Since early morning the strikers had turned deaf ears to the pleas of their leaders that they restore servive. They insisted upon waiting until the committee submitted the agreement to them in writing.

While they debated acceptance of the agreement, more than 80,000 industrial workers in 192 communities remained idle. Food dealers worried about spoilage should refrigeration be shut off for long. Larger stores were closed because there was no elevator service, and most of the residents in 13 counties suffered some degree of inconvenience.

General Motors Corporation, with 57,000 employes in Flint, Saginaw and Bay City, largest cities affected by the strike, said its pay roll in the Saginaw Valley was $454,000 each 24 hours. All of its plants in that area were closed, some for the entire day and others since noon.

The total cost of the strike was incalculable.

The negotiating committee arrived from Washington by airplane at 2:30 p. m. Mortimer said he intended "to see to it that the men accepted" the settlement.

Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., had failed to shake their determination. As he left a meeting at which his persuasive powers had proved ineffectual, he said he had told the strikers "I cannot recommend any support for a movement started by men who are trying to wreck our union organization."

Just three weeks ago today a power strike affecting the same area was terminated after nine hours, when union leaders and Gov. Frank Murphy prevailed upon the men to go back to work pending further negotiations on wages. The Governor said then, "This must not happen again."

Today's strike found Gov. Murphy in Pittsburgh, where he delivered

Governor Acts To Avert Riots In Ohio Strikes

Davey Calls C. I. O. Steel Plant Heads for Parley Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 9.—Gov. Martin L. Davey, of Ohio, stretched a hand of peace to antagonists in the Great Lakes steel strike today to avert "the danger of preventable bloodshed in Ohio," as tense city officials in Monroe, Mich., assembled a special police force to help reopen a closed mill.

Gov. Davey cited "the ominous chance of rioting, bloodshed and loss of life" in asking Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel Corporation and outspoken foe of unionization, to meet in joint conference with Philip Murray, chairman of Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

Also invited to the conference Friday—the first joint meeting of the two sides since pickets besieged independent steel mills in seven States two weeks ago making at least 73,000 men idle—were Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., and John Owens, Ohio strike leader. Inland Steel Corporation, third concern insisting it would not give the S. W. O. C. the signed bargaining contracts it has demanded, has no plants in Ohio and was not asked to send representatives.

While news of the peace overture spread rapidly down the picket lines in Ohio, Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs of Monroe, Mich., mobilized 100 civilians for the planned reopening tomorrow of the closed Newton Steel Co., allied with Republic.

C. I. O. leaders strengthened their picket lines at Monroe and said they would be supported by "8,000 or 10,000" unionists from Detroit.

The reopening, planned for 8 a. m. tomorrow, was deferred to 4 p. m., and representatives of the company and striking workers agreed to meet at noon with Gov. Frank Murphy at Lansing in an attempt to settle the controversy peacefully.

Mayor Knaggs said a poll he conducted among Newton employes showed a 782 to 32 vote for returning to work. An S. W. O. C. group in Monroe charged the mayor with "working as a strike-breaking agency against the men and not for the good of the city."

In Chicago, where worst disorders in the strike occurred Memorial Day, resulting in eight deaths, the S. W. O. C. invoked the Wagner labor act in its fight against Inland Steel.

Charges Are Filed.

Van A. Bittner, Chicago director for the S. W. O. C., reiterating that "the strike will go on until we get signed collective bargaining contracts," said a formal complaint charging Inland with unfair labor practices had been filed.

At the same time, a reliable source close to the situation reiterated the stand of Republic and Youngstown Sheet & Tube against signing a contract was "absolutely unchanged." This source said neither company would sign the C. I. O. contract and that they saw nothing in the immediate future to change their stand—willingness to bargain but not to sign contracts.

It was indicated representatives of the companies would go to Gov. Davey's conference with no expectation a solution to the strike would be reached there.

"No peace in sight!" was the most authentic report on the situation which could be obtained from steel headquarters.

Murray announced soon after receiving Gov. Davey's invitation that he and Owens would attend the conference. Murray said last week he would not accept any arbitration plan except one offered by President Roosevelt.

Ford Offer Rejected.

Boston, June 9 (AP).—Representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America today rejected an offer by a Ford Motor Co. official to settle a dispute arising from the union's charge that 150 men were laid off in the Somerville plant two weeks ago for union activity.

Samuel Sandberg, New England organizer for the U. A. W. A., said the general manager of the Somerville plant offered, at a conference called by the National Labor Relations Board, to send a letter to the labor board offering to reinstate all men laid off when normal production resumes in October. The plant now is operating during a slack season with one instead of two shifts, Sandberg said.

Politics and People

Van Devanter Replacement in Supreme Court During Summer Held Essential.

By Franklyn Waltman

MORE than three weeks have passed since Justice Willis Van Devanter notified President Roosevelt of his intention to retire from the Supreme Court bench and more than a week has elapsed since his retirement became effective. The President has made no move to nominate a successor for Justice Van Devanter.

WALTMAN.

This, of course, is not surprising because Mr. Roosevelt, with a few exceptions, requires months, running to a year or more in some instances, to make up his mind regarding judicial appointments. Yet there are several cogent reasons which make an appointment to this vacancy urgent and which may have been overlooked by Mr. Roosevelt.

In the first place, it is not true, as generally assumed, that there is no need to fill this Supreme Court vacancy until October 4 because the tribunal will not again be in session until that date. The members of the Court work throughout the summer on petitions for review and appeals. Usually approximately 300 to 350 such petitions are sent them by the Court's clerk during the summer months.

It is necessary for the justices to study these petitions, look up precedents and citations and formulate a judgment as to whether they should be granted. This is necessary in order that when the court reconvenes in the fall it can immediately announce their decisions so that counsel will have an opportunity to prepare for cases that are to be argued. If the court did not do this preliminary spade-work during the summer recess it would require a month or two after its return to pass on the petitions for review accumulated during their absence—with a consequent delay in final adjudication of meritorious cases.

Now as the President so well told us last February "delay in any court results in injustice" because "it makes lawsuits a luxury available only to the few who can afford them or who have property interests to protect which are sufficiently large to repay the cost." Of course, we do not want anything like that to happen and certainly Mr. Roosevelt does not wish to be responsible for such a development.

Moreover, we have it on Presidential authority that "the judiciary has often found itself handicapped by insufficient personnel with which to meet a growing and more complex business" and that "even at the present time the Supreme Court (then with nine members) is laboring under a heavy burden." With the Van Devanter vacancy, there now are only eight members of the court to shoulder that burden.

Mr. Roosevelt in his February message to Congress made a particular point of the court's handling of petitions for writs of certiorari—the work which the court does during the summer months. So it is unthinkable that Mr. Roosevelt will long permit the Supreme Court to labor under the handicap of a vacancy.

Moreover, it is only fair to the new member of the court, whoever he may be, that his appointment should be made now to permit him to get in on the ground floor, so to speak, of the new term of court. If he is not named until fall it would be impossible for him to participate in most of the decisions to be made during October on what cases the court will hear. If the other justices wait for him to read up, much time would be lost and delay would result.

If it is Mr. Roosevelt's intention to name Senate Democratic Leader Robinson to the Van Devanter vacancy—and some observers are unable to see how he can escape doing that—there is all the more reason why the appointment should be made at once. The longer Senator Robinson remains in the Senate the greater his incapacity—legally, not physically speaking—becomes for passing on New Deal laws.

The most important legislation that will come before the Supreme Court in the future undoubtedly will be the Black-Connery hours-and-wage bill. If Senator Robinson remains in the Senate until he is forced to vote on that measure, he may later, in all conscience, feel he is disqualified to pass on it judicially. Moreover, no man in Washington has worked harder or sweatted more during the last winter than Joe Robinson, and he is entitled to some rest before taking up his judicial duties. It would be unfair to him and to the country to rush him from the halls of Congress to the Supreme Court bench.

But perhaps, all these reasons notwithstanding, we shall have to wait until late summer or fall to know who the Van Devanter successor will be. Mr. Roosevelt, despite his ardent pleas against judicial delays, seems to have great difficulty in making up his mind regarding appointments to the Federal bench.

There are now three vacancies on the circuit appellate bench and seven in Federal district courts. The President on Tuesday made nominations to two of the circuit bench vacancies and previously to one of those in the district courts. If these are confirmed, another district court vacancy will result through a promotion.

The really significant thing about these vacancies is not their number but the length of time some of them have existed. For instance, the vacancy on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals—to which a nomination has not been made—was created when Judge Samuel Alschuler retired on May 15, 1936. He gave notice of his retirement six weeks previously. Until last March 17 there were two vacancies on the bench of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, one of those with congested dockets and laboring under a heavy burden.

On March 17 the Senate confirmed Judge J. Earl Major, then a district judge, to one of the Seventh Circuit vacancies. The vacancy filled by Judge Major had existed since the death of Judge Louis Fitzhenry on November 18, 1935. Thus it took the President one year and four months to fill that vacancy. At that rate the existing vacancy on the Seventh Circuit should be filled around September of this year.

Of the vacancies in district courts, one in Kentucky has existed since the post was created by Congress—because of congestion—on June 22 last year. Another—in Oregon—has existed since the death of Judge John H. McNary on October 25, 1936. A third has existed since a resignation—of which advance notice was possible—took place on December 31 last. Two others have existed since last February. A sixth has existed since March 6. Nor has the President filled the vacancy created by the death on July 16, 1936, of Judge Norman D. Godbold, of the First Judicial Circuit Court of Hawaii.

But this is just carping criticism. One should keep his eyes off the record and on the stars and listen to the soothing Presidential voice tell us that "the simple fact is that today a new need for legislative action arises because the personnel of the Federal judiciary is insufficient to meet the business before them."

Copeland Seeks Senate Inquiry In Labor Strife

Steel, Shipping Industries Would Get Particular Consideration.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, proposed yesterday the Senate conduct an investigation into labor troubles in every industry, particularly steel and shipping.

Commenting on a request by Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, that the Senate investigate the current steel strike, Copeland said Congress should search for means to solve all labor troubles, perhaps in the manner provided by the railroad labor act.

That law, approved three years ago, requires railroads to exert "every reasonable effort" to make and maintain wage and hour agreements with workers. Disputes between a company and its employes must be "considered, and, if possible, decided" in conferences between their representatives.

Mediation Board Set Up.

The National Mediation Board, which the law created, may offer to assist in arbitration. If it finds that an impasse has developed, it is required to notify the President, who has discretionary authority to set up a special board to investigate and report on the dispute.

The act also provides that, after the creation of such an investigating board, no change in the conditions out of which the dispute arose shall be made by either party to the controversy for 60 days.

Asserting the situation in the shipping industry is "very serious," Copeland disclosed he had discussed it with the Senate Commerce Committee "because something must be done."

A new demand for a Senate inquiry into alleged interference with the mails at strike-bound plants came during the day from Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire. He proposed public hearings into charges that the Post-office Department had censored and interfered with mail deliveries in the Mahoning Valley area.

"Outside Interference."

Bridges told reporters he had evidence of "outside interference" with the mails. He disclosed that many persons had volunteered information. One, he said, offered a photograph of strikers stopping a mail truck.

A few hours before Copeland called for the Senate investigation, John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, announced representatives of the Consumers Power Co. of Michigan and a union affiliated with the C. I. O. had agreed on a wage scale in southeastern Michigan. He said he hoped it would lead to a quick settlement in the power strike at Flint.

Sidney Hillman, chairman of the Textile Workers Organizing Committee, said after a conference with Lewis a strike probably would be called in about two weeks in silk mills employing between 50,000 and 60,000 workers. He said the workers' union had been unable to obtain signed contracts for its members.

Pope Promises Continued Aid Against Nazis

By the Associated Press.

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, June 9.—Pope Pius XI personally declared today he would continue the bitter fight for German Catholics "no matter what becomes of us," and lamented the menacing conditions within Nazi Germany.

The Pope's pronouncement, made to a group of Bavarian Catholic pilgrims, was interpreted as an indirect reply to the last German note, which virtually broke off diplomatic relations between the Holy See and Germany.

The Pope, apparently referring to the church-state controversy in the Reich, said conditions in Germany were "so grave, so menacing and so dolorous" for Catholicism that "they cause one to weep."

Allays Rumors.

The papal statement allayed rumors the Vatican, because of representations from the Italian government, soon would modify its policy toward Germany. Italy and Germany have a co-operative understanding in international affairs.

In a pre-Easter encyclical the Pope accused the Nazis of violating the German-Vatican concordat, which reserved for the church the right to educate Catholic youth.

Relations were further strained by the series of "immorality" trials of Catholic priests and lay brothers within the Reich.

The official Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano said the audience of Bavarian pilgrims was "a magnificent, moving scene" when the pilgrims sang a German hymn after the Pope's speech.

The Pope told the pilgrims that "it is a consolation to us that we are able to weep with you and to console you as a father consoles his children.

"We always have done what is possible to alleviate these great sufferings. We shall continue to do so, no matter what is said of us."

He promised to pray for "you and your pastors without stint," and told them to remember that "only the way of God and the old faith can give you happiness."

Grange Opens Farm Assault On Court Plan

By Robert C. Albright.

The National Grange, oldest farm organization, yesterday vigorously opposed any compromise on the President's court plan and called on Congress to defeat "this ill-conceived measure, so repugnant to the spirit of our free American institutions."

The Grange, first farm group actively to enter the court fight, sent letters to every member of Congress voicing the "devout" hope the plan will meet "the fate that it so richly deserves."

The farm warning against "compromise" coincided with a new development in the Administration's search for a substitute plan. Negotiations yesterday centered on dual proposals of Senator Charles O. Andrews (Democrat), of Florida, for a Supreme Court fixed at 11, and an accompanying constitutional amendment compelling retirement at 75.

Follows Hatch Proposal.

The Andrews plan is the second said to be figuring in the discussions of Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, given a free hand by the President on the court issue. First overtures pivoted on the proposal of Senator Carl A. Hatch (Democrat), of Nevada, limiting additions to the court to one judge a year.

Andrews was approached after Hatch opposed any increases by the House. The Florida Senator today plans to introduce in the Senate revised measures embracing his court proposals. There were unconfirmed reports that the Justice Department was working on a substitute along similar lines. Andrews declined to comment on a visit he made to the White House yesterday when he presented the President with a basket of limes.

Meanwhile, Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, announced a meeting this afternoon of Senate Judiciary Committee members who voted against the court bill. The final draft of the committee's adverse report will be read to the group. On their approval, it will be filed in the Senate tomorrow.

Asks Quick Adjournment.

The National Grange, which broke with the Administration on the original court bill, acted after an unsuccessful Administration attempt to win farm support. Simultaneously it called on Congress to adjourn immediately after disposing of the court plan, without passing on the other major legislation more recently submitted by the President.

"There should be no thought of compromise, because there can be no honorable grounds for compromise between right and wrong," read the Grange letter to members.

"If it is wrong to add 5 or 6 additional justices to the Supreme Court for the purpose of influencing its decisions, then it is just as wrong in principle to add two or any other number of justices with this end in view.

"After disposing of the court bill, and when really essential legislation, such as appropriation bills, have been acted upon, it would seem the part of fairness and wisdom for Congress to adjourn. This would afford an opportunity to the people of the country to study and become familiar with certain other legislative proposals touching the very fundamentals of our national life, which have recently been put forth."

The Grange letter said "the devitalizing heat of a Washington summer" would impede "careful deliberation and thought" by Congress.

The Andrews "compromise," which will be introduced in the Senate in revised form today, is strikingly similar to proposals made in the Senate Judiciary Committee by men now opposed to any court bill.

First, by legislation, it proposes to increase the court by two members without reference to age of present judges. The court would be composed of a chief justice and one justice named from each of the circuit court of appeals districts. The President could be directed, but not compelled, to make his selections in this manner.

This would be followed up by a constitutional amendment, fixing the membership of the court at this number, and requiring the President to make his selections from the ten circuit court districts. The amendment would provide voluntary retirement at 70 and compulsory retirement at 75.

Opposition Ready.

Andrews is not a member of the Judiciary Committee. Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, a committee member, proposed a court of 11 members, with all court districts represented. But McCarran abandoned his own plan when he became convinced the plan might be used for the purpose of influencing decisions. Senator Burke, leader of the opposition, like Andrews, has a constitutional amendment to compel retirement at 75.

It was reliably learned yesterday that a high Administration official has told the President that the opposition, in his opinion, "has the strength and the guts to prevent any compromise plan on the court from coming to a vote in the Senate."

Leaders of the opposition reiterated yesterday they plan to talk the court bill to death, if, on final check, they lack the votes to defeat a compromise. A poll was quietly to be taken to ascertain how many Senators would vote for a motion to postpone consideration indefinitely. One opposition Senator is known to have outlined 15 speeches. When the bill comes up, five opposition Senators, ready to speak on call, will be kept on the floor at all times.

Madeira School Graduates Hear Prof. McElwain

Commencement exercises for the 48 girls graduating from the Madeira School at Greenway were held yesterday afternoon in the Sylvan auditorium on the campus.

The address to the graduates was delivered by Prof. Mary Belle McElwain, of Smith College. She told the class to demand their birthright in obtaining the best education so as to take their proper place in life.

Mrs. David I. Wing, head of the school, presented the diplomas and certificates and Dean W. E. Rollins, of the Virginia Theological Seminary, gave the invocation and prayer.

The parents of the graduating class were the guests of the school at a luncheon preceding the exercises, and at a tea after the ceremonies.

The commencement concluded a senior program that began with a horse show last Saturday. Athletic awards were made at class day exercises Tuesday, and scenes from Shakespeare were given in the outdoor theater.

Certificates were awarded to:

Japanese Mission Will Boost Trade, Roper Forecasts

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Roper expressed hope yesterday a visit of a Japanese economic mission, arriving here tonight, would result in expansion of trade.

Headed by Chokyuro Kadono, executive director of the Japan Economic Federation, the mission will be greeted tomorrow morning at receptions by Secretaries Roper and Hull. In the afternoon, Roper will entertain at a garden party.

The Commerce Department chief told reporters the mission's visit indicated a trend toward settlement of international economic problems through friendly discussion.

Cummings to Rule On Jordon Today

Final decision in the case of Thomas Jordon—which will either send him to the electric chair or to life imprisonment for the Garden T. Shoppe murder of Mrs. Lizzie S. Jaynes—is expected today when confidential recommendations from Attorney General Homer Cummings are sent to the White House.

Jordon is scheduled to die at the District Jail Monday. Should the Attorney General's report not include recommendations for a commutation of sentence, it is believed at least a stay of execution will be granted in the face of recent "new evidence."

The confidential report was made to Cummings by Federal Pardon Attorney Daniel Lyons following a lengthy investigation of recently uncovered facts not presented at Jordon's trial.

2 Missing Fliers Safe After Leap

Elko, Nev., June 9 (A).—Safety of two Boston, Mass., National Guard aviators, missing 27 hours on a flight from Reno to Salt Lake City, was announced today by the Federal Department of Commerce Airways Radio Station.

The announcement said Maj. Clarence Hodge, commander of the Twenty-sixth Division Air Service of the Massachusetts National Guard, and Lieut. Joseph H. McNeil, had baled out and walked to Ely, Nev., today.

Reports said the plane had crashed in the mountains near Ely—apparently after its gasoline supply was exhausted.

90c Wheat, 60c Corn Foreseen By Wallace

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Wallace said yesterday present speculative grain prices indicated this year's corn crop was now valued at 60 cents a bushel on Iowa farms, and wheat at 90 cents a bushel on Kansas farms.

Wallace told a press conference he based these values on futures quotations at Chicago.

"I am not predicting these prices," he said. "They are the prediction by the Chicago Board of Trade by men who are willing to put up money on it."

the commencement address at Duquesne University.

He warned early in the day the State would act to end the strike unless service were restored by nightfall, and instructed Adjt. Gen. John S. Bersey, head of the National Guard, to hold himself available at Lansing.

Strikers had held undisputed possession of all Consumers Power electric and gas plants in the area, including the giant turbine generating plant at Milwaukee, the principal source of electric supply in the valley. Local law enforcement officers made no attempt to dislodge them.

Late today, strikers in the gas plant here sent out word they were ceasing to manufacture gas. There had been no previous curtailment of gas for residential customers, although mains supplying factories were shut off.

Hospitals and other public buildings were supplied with electricity, but traffic lights were out here and the fire-alarm system was inoperative until storage batteries were connected.

Hitler Planning Move on Danzig, Europe Fears

Fuehrer to Speak June 19 From City Bordering on Free State.

for the first time through Danzig and will stop over in the Free City.

Hitler also might choose the moment for a demonstration of German power and solidarity close to the frontier of Poland just as the convention regarding Polish Upper Silesia expires.

The 15 years which mark the convention's existence will be up June 15. Under League of Nations guarantee, Poland has had limited control over the Silesian territory. But after June 15, Poland will have full control over the territory and the German minorities residing there.

Nazi speakers of late have warned the Poles to be sure that these minorities are accorded fair treatment. (A section of Upper Silesia became part of Poland after a plebiscite authorized by the Versailles Treaty. It was German before the World War.)

Foreign observers are confident that, whatever the nature of his address or the strength of possible military demonstrations, the Fuehrer will avoid carefully actual military incidents or anything that might provoke open conflict with his Polish neighbor.

An indiscreet county Nazi leader disclosed the "surprise Saturday" coming of Hitler—in a public appeal through the press to the population to adorn homes with flags, and gather "to show our gratitude to the saviour of Germany."

The announcement apparently was premature, and for a time it was believed the meeting might be canceled because of the unwanted publicity. But tonight the high command of the Nazi Party was reported to have completed plans for the conference, and there was every indication it would be held as scheduled.

709 Graduates Hear Dr. Marvin At G. W. Finals

President Urges 'Ignorance of Wisdom;' Alumni and Other Wards Made.

George Washington University's seniors, robed in academic cap and gown, marched into Constitution Hall last night and in impressive commencement ceremonies received the charge of the their president, Cloyd H. Marvin, and their diplomas.

Dr. Marvin, delivering this charge to the 709 graduates, made the only address of the school's 116th commencement ceremony. He recommended that they choose the "ignorance of wisdom" over the "ignorance of stupidity."

"The ignorance of wisdom," the college head said, "recognizes the infinite disproportion between that which is known and the vast unknown." The "ignorance of stupidity," he said, "thinks that it knows all that is of worth."

Following the invocation given by the Rev. Chesteen Smith, D. D., of Washington, the program began with the presentattion of alumni-achievement awards. They were made to the following:

May Paul Bradshaw, A.B. 1909, A.M. 1913; Harry Cassell Davis, A.B. 1878, A.M. 1881, L.H.D. 1894; Frank A. Hornaday, B.S. 1907, M.D. 1910, M.S. 1920; Sarah T. Hughes, LL.B. 1922; Paca Oberlin, LL.B. 1903, LL.M. 1904, M.Dip. 1905, D.C.L. 1911; James McPherson Proctor, LL.B. 1904; Gordon Strong, LL.B. 1890; LL.M. 1894.

Dr. Marvin conferred honorary degrees on three women; Hattie Maria Strong, doctor of laws, whom he cited as a "world citizen in whom a variant life has served to discover rich appreciation, unfold fine enthusiasm and ripen generous character;" Helen Taft Manning, doctor of laws, dean of Bryn Mawr College, and Elizabeth Peet, doctor of pedagogy, who, Dr. Marvin said, is "continuing in a family tradition devoted, experienced and expert in the education of the deaf."

Awards were made as follows:

Shoes, Sunburn, Dress, Clews to Where 'Didi' Was

London, June 9 (AP).—A dress, a pair of gold evening shoes and a coat of sunburn provided Scotland Yard detectives today with their only clews in the strange eight-day disappearance of Diana Battye, found this morning in a state of collapse.

The 21-year-old society beauty was unable to tell where she had spent the time from June 1, when she vanished, until she was noticed early today sobbing on a doorstep next to her fiance's home.

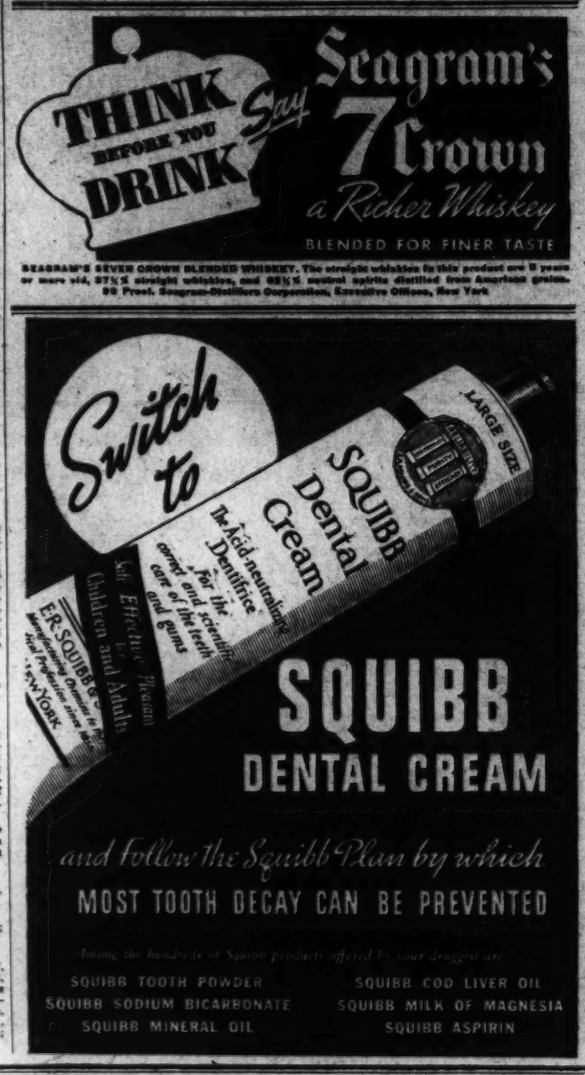

Investigators learned that "Didi" was wearing a different dress from the one she had on when she vanished from the home of her childhood friend, Viscountess Long. When found, the girl had no shoes. Detectives discovered a pair of gold evening shoes belonging to her in a mews opposite the home of her Oxford undergraduate fiance, Michael Asquith.

HELP WANTED

GENTLEMAN who is very particular about his drinks wishes a gin that really mixes. Does not like gin taste or odor in Tom Collins, rickeys, etc. State experience, wages required, age, etc.
Box 246, Gazette-Times.

Dear Mr. Box 246 -

I wish to apply for the position described in your advertisement in the Gazette-Times. You are just the kind of employer I like - a gentleman of discrimination. Obviously you are American, for American gentlemen say gin mixes only if it neither tastes nor smells in the finished drink.

I am an American - in fact the ORIGINAL AMERICAN GIN and am especially made for mixing.

I have many splendid references from other gentlemen of discrimination like yourself and am sure that I will give full satisfaction.

I was born in 1870 and therefore have many years of experience. My wages are small - only a few cents for each perfectly blended Tom Collins or rickey.

Respectfully yours,

Labor Member For D. C. Wage Board Sought

Representatives Already Named for Employers and Public.

Search for a person to speak for "labor" on the District Minimum Wage Board was under way last night, Commissioners said, after they announced the appointment of representatives of "employers" and the "public."

A prominent labor official in the city was under consideration until yesterday. However, he declined to sit on the board, it was learned, because his affiliations were national and not purely local.

Mrs. William Kittle, president of the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters, was selected by the Commissioners to act for the public on the three-man board. For the employers, John H. Hanna, chairman of the board of the Capital Transit Co., was named.

In Effect July 1.

When a labor member is chosen, the task of taking testimony from all interested parties in wage negotiations faces the new board.

Under a ruling of the city, the minimum wage regulations will go into effect July 1. Setting a "fair standard" of wages will be the job of the board, for women and for minors of both sexes under 18. It has been ruled by Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal that the minima recommended before the invalidation of the old law may be subject to change.

The old board set wages for women in the printing industry here at $15.50 a week, mercantile establishments, hotels and restaurants at $16.50, and laundries and dry-cleaning establishments at $15. Domestic servants do not benefit by the law.

U. S. Law May Take Place.

How long the new board will function is still a question. A Nation-wide minimum wage law (the Connery-Black bill) is now under consideration in Congress and according to Representative Connery, the national law will supersede the old District law, which functioned here from 1918 to 1923.

Mrs. Kittle, who lives at 3131 Military road, has been a resident of the District seven years. Active in parent-teacher work and a member of the State Industrial Commission of Wisconsin before coming here, she at once entered the local fight for enfranchisement. Mrs. Kittle is also vice president of the Washington Council of Social Agencies.

Hanna was for many years president of the Capital Traction Co., and after the 1933 merger of local transportation lines, became president of the Capital Transit Co.

8 Feared Slain By Head Hunter

Manila, June 9 (AP).—Four constabulary detachments headed into the Cagayan province wilds tonight, determined to end the wholesale killing spree of a crazed headhunter.

The reinforcements were ordered after officials expressed fear for eight soldiers who reputedly had the headhunter, Kalinga Boli, trapped in a cave. They feared Boli and his followers, a well-armed band of headhunters, might wipe ou the soldiers before help could reach them.

Boli, who began his bloody rampage a fortnight ago because he suspected his wife of unfaithfulness, has killed 13 persons and vowed to slay 11 more.

Indiana Schedules Triple Execution

Michigan City, Ind., June 9 (AP).—Three former Ohio convicts glumly awaited a date with death in Indiana's electric chair tonight for the "head and hands" slaying a year ago of Harry R. Miller, retired Cincinnati fire captain.

The death march of John Joseph Poholsky, Frank Gore Williams and William A. Kuhlman was scheduled to begin a few minutes after midnight. It will be the first triple execution in the 36-year history of the Indiana State Prison.

The killing of Miller for his $150,000 fortune was called the "head and hands" crime because the slayers chopped off his head and hands.

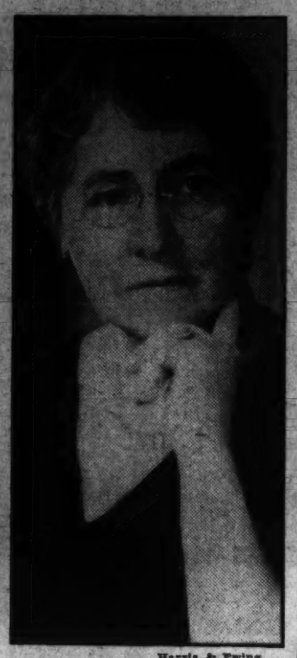

Harriman Ordered to Pay.

New York, June 9 (AP).—Joseph W. Harriman, released from prison last August 27 after serving about two years for falsifying accounts of the defunct Harriman National Bank he headed, was ordered today to pay $287,484.46 to the bank's receiver. Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy ruled the amount was due as balance of a promissory note for $544,668.53.

Statue to Gallatin Is Assured By Senate

Senate agreement to a minor amendment has virtually assured the erection of a statue to Albert Gallatin, a Pennsylvanian who served longest as Secretary of the Treasury. The Senate agreed Tuesday to an amendment authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to select a site near the Treasury Building.

Representative J. Buell Snyder, of Pennsylvania, sponsor of a resolution authorizing $10,000 for a base and pedestal, said patriotic societies already have raised funds for the statue.

Defense Raises 'Perjury' Cry at Winfield Trial

Board Hearing 'Ticket-Fixing Case Will Consider Charge.

The Police Trial Board yesterday "took under consideration" defense requests that the district attorney's office investigate perjury charges at the trial of Policeman Welford E. Winfield, former traffic division officer accused of "ticket fixing."

Charges of "deliberate perjury" were made at yesterday's session by Defense Counsel Charles Ford and his assistant, William McGrath. The accusations centered around the testimony of Miss Jessie J. Ball, former nurse in the Winfield home.

Charles Linkins, an attorney representing Teunis Collier, Georgetown's traffic "crusader," testified earlier that Miss Ball met him by prearrangement to offer alleged "ticket fixing" evidence she uncovered in the Winfield home. Miss Ball, however, contended she "just happened" to meet Linkins and there was no prior arrangement.

Citing numerous other alleged discrepancies in testimony, Ford halted his cross-examination of Miss Ball and thundered at the board:

"I charge deliberate perjury. It is my duty as a lawyer to call this to your attention and demand that the District Attorney be called to consult the record and present facts to the grand jury. I have previously disclosed an 'unholy trinity' here, attempting to wreck the livelihood of an honest man."

Responded Inspector Edward J. Kelly, chairman of the board:

"We have only the testimony of one witness against another. It is not for us to decide which is truthful and which is not. The board will take up your perjury charges at the proper time."

During earlier sessions of the trial, Miss Ball testified she overheard telephone conversations in the Winfield home pertaining to "ticket fixing" by the accused policeman. She said he received groceries and other "favors" for "taking care" of traffic violation notices.

"Did Officer Winfield ever tell you he received such things to 'fix' tickets?" asked Inspector Kelly yesterday.

"No," replied Miss Ball.

Linkins yesterday produced photostatic copies of traffic warrants, tickets and personal "thank you" notes allegedly turned over to him by Winfield's deceased wife.

These photostats were being discussed when the board adjourned until tomorrow.

Repeal Is Defeated In Georgia Voting

Atlanta, June 9 (AP).—Complete, unofficial returns tonight showed defeat of a proposal to repeal Georgia's 22-year-old prohibition law by 8,277 votes.

The vote was: For repeal, 94,652; against repeal, 102,929.

In the same election, Georgians gave a heavy majority to 26 constitutional amendments, including social security measures, sponsored by Georgia's pro-Roosevelt Governor, E. D. Rivers, and opposed by the State's anti-New Deal former Governor, Eugene Talmadge.

Gray Veterans Gather At Jackson for Reunion

Jackson, Miss., June 9 (AP).—Faded by time, the remnants of the Confederate Army trooped into camp today for their forty-seventh reunion, which may be their last.

Every year fewer in numbers than the year before, the veterans came here still fired with memories of the war they fought in 1861. One of the principal questions to be settled is the offer Union veterans have extended for a joint reunion next year at Gettysburg.

Stalin's Mother Dies At Home Near Tiflis

The death occurred June 4, but the announcement, made by the Communist Party of Georgia in the Tiflis newspaper, Dawn of the Orient, reached here only today.

'Master-Mind' Gets 3-10 Years In D.C. Robbery

Two Colored Aides Also Sentenced for Attack On Tailor Here.

Over the protests of defense attorneys' Justice F. Dickinson Letts in District Court yesterday ordered John Williamson Tomlinson, alleged "master-mind" of a robber gang here, to serve a sentence of from 3 to 10 years following his conviction two weeks ago on a charge of robbery.

With Tomlinson went Phillip John Pratt and Charles Henry Bass, the latter two being colored. Bass entered a plea of guilty and was given a sentence of from 3 to 8 years, while Pratt, who was tried in open court, was given from 3 to 8 years.

The trio is charged with having robbed Sam Siratonis, a tailor at 3003 Fourteenth street northwest, last August. The tailor had $785 on his person when the two colored men entered, beat him over the head and robbed him. The pair is said to have divided the loot with Tomlinson several hours after the robbery.

According to Bass, Tomlinson planned the robbery and gave each of them directions as to which part they should carry out. Their mistake, it was shown, was that when they became frightened, they ran away and left their car in front of Siratonis' shop.

SHOPPERS searching for bigger values! Buyers looking for a greater dollar's worth! What's this got to do with gasoline buying?

It's got a lot to do with it! Plenty to do with it!

Why? Because these shoppers are looking for greater values! And you ought to apply the same thinking to gasoline. You buy gasoline more frequently than other purchases. It is an important item in your family's budget. You owe it to yourself to go where the values are!

American Gas has always been the best regular gasoline buy. But now we have created an even bigger buy! A new gas of greater value!

Science has recently found a way to give you a new value in regular gasoline. Value not possible before—because the facilities did not exist to make it. New processes were perfected ... patented. New additions to what was already the world's greatest refining unit. We doubled our capacity... improved the gas. We are now able to build-in—refine-in—extra values that mean a lot to you and your car.

The new gas is ready—NOW! And because of its extra built-in values we call it New Value American Gas. It means New Value for you—greater value for your gasoline dollar... greater value from the money already invested in your automobile. It is known as a "sweet" gas — meaning it's pure, free from undesirable odors — and no added chemicals. You'll say it gives "sweet" performance, too, in your car.

Buy your gas on VALUE—and you will buy the New Value American Gas!

Hull Declares War Threats Hurt All Nations

Secretary Assails Dictatorships in Pennsylvania U. Address.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Philadelphia, June 9.—Hitting at dictatorships that "brutally brush aside" democracy as a form of government, Secretary of State Cordell Hull today told the graduating class of the University of Pennsylvania that "even threat of war or widespread preparations for it" are frequently sufficient to throw international relations so badly out of gear that the well-being of all nations is injured.

Appealing for "good neighbor" relations, Hull said the life of a nation "is enriched precisely in the measure in which it shares, as well as supplements, its own spiritual and material resources * * * rather than leads a self-inclosed and self-contained hermit existence."

Premier Mussolini of Italy, it was recalled by listeners, recently has called for economic self-sufficiency for his nation.

"To me," Hull said, "these things are fundamental: Peace and cooperation among nations, as well as between individuals and groups within nations, are indispensable if the twentieth century is to bring to fruition, in the form of the highest level of civilized existence ever attained by mankind, the marvelous gifts of the two preceding centuries. Strife or isolation, within and among nations, checks the onward course of civilization and destroys much of what man has thus far accomplished."

Furthering his advocacy of economic disarmament and the lowering of trade barriers, the Secretary said:

"The natural resources * * * are unevenly distributed over the surface of the earth. The progress of invention and the development of particular skills proceed in the various countries at an uneven pace. Only by developing among themselves mutually beneficial exchange of goods and services, only by learning from each other's experience, can a nation reap the immeasurable benefits that accrue from access to the resources of the whole world and to the scientific and inventive genius of the whole human race."

Pointing to the World War and the "most profound economic dislocation within the memory of man," which had been brought by the twentieth century, Hull declared the two catastrophes "have left in their wake not only destruction and suffering, but also devastating doubts and perplexities."

To solve the problems he urged co-operation, and a recognition of the interdependence of all parts of a social mechanism, along with mutual regard, respect and tolerance.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Piano recital by James Bopst, Charlotte Gusse and Elizabeth Kirkpatrick at the Arts Club Wednesday evening.

One of the difficulties confronting the critical reviewer at the average pupils' recital is a plethora of impressions; there are so many participants in the program that the singling out of individual traits involves a computation almost mathematical. But last evening Norman Frauenheim had simplified matters by choosing three of his students whose temperaments and types were distinctive and allotting to each of them sufficient time for their images to become clear.

The opinion of a critic is, among other things, the testimony of an auricular witness and therefore subject to his individual peculiarities as an observer. On this occasion, three interesting young pianists seemed to present in turn three of the possible interpretative facets displayed by musicians: James Bopst, the structural; Charlotte Gusse, the lyrical, and Elizabeth Kirkpatrick, the dramatic.

It was the conception of form that most impressed one in Mr. Bopst's performance of Liszt's transcription of the Bach prelude and fugue in A minor; Franck's prelude, chorale and fugue, and Ravel's "Jeux d'Eau." This implies not a lack of feeling for emotional content, but a concentration upon the expansive lines of the compositions. His style of playing was broad and flowing, and the music was built with the dynamics of architecture.

In the A major sonata of Paradisi, the "Evocacion" from the "Iberia" suite of Albeniz and Chopin's preludes in A flat and G major, Miss Gusse disclosed sensitive perceptions of phrasing and tone-color and a predilection for poesy of sound. The limitation of her dynamic range is, one surmises, as much a matter of temperament as of technique.

Miss Kirkpatrick took the instinctive dramatic approach to Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, Chopin's C sharp minor scherzo and the same composer's polonaise in A flat. Her sense of rhythm was not always exact, nor was her coloring invariably pure, but there was a communicative quality of intense emotional absorption in her playing. She was to some extent in rapport with the "raptus" of Beethoven and the aureate romanticism of Chopin.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

100 Indian Languages Traced To Single Source by Scientist

Single Boatload of Migrants From Siberia Could Have Given Rise to the Multitude of Dialects and Tribes, Ethnologist Says.

Just because early explorers found more than 100 different Indian languages and tribes on the North American continent is no indication that the original migrants were great in number, according to Dr. John P. Harrington, Smithsonian Institution ethnologist and one of the foremost authorities on native American tongues.

"It would have been entirely possible," he said yesterday, "for a single boatload of migrants to be responsible for the sum of the Babel which white men found in the New World."

All Indian languages developed, Dr. Harrington believes, out of one "proto-American" language brought into Alaska from Siberia. He pointed out that this belief is strengthened considerably by intensive research into the language of the Chukchas, native Siberian tribe related to the Indian. Findings of this research are contained in Bogras' Chukcha Dictionary, just off the press.

The dictionary points definitely to a common root for the many Indian dialects and the Chukcha speech, Dr. Harrington said.

In an explanation of the cause for so many Indian languages—some of which were as different as English and Russian—Dr. Harrington gave much credit to superstition.

"Widespread among Indian tribes was the terror of the dead. Even a person's name could not be uttered after death—for the name was part of the individual and might serve to call up his ghost, or make the bereaved suffer by remembering him.

"Suppose a dead man's name was Blue Reindeer. It might be necessary for his immediate circle to invent new words for both 'blue' and 'reindeer.'"

Other contributing factors in the development of the new language, Dr. Harrington believes, were the constant association with new objects that require new names and the loss of old associations as the group enlarged and broke into tribes that became isolated from each other.

Mrs. Hoffman New Housing Secretary

Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, president of the Washington Housing Association, yesterday announced that Mrs. Helen Duey Hoffman has been elected executive secretary to succeed Mrs. Florence Stewart, who resigned effective July 1.

Mrs. Hoffman, a resident of the District since 1932, is a graduate of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa. She has been on the management staff of Jackson Heights, a large garden apartment development in New York; special representative of Better Homes in America, special representative of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, consultant to the Housing Division of the Public Works Administration, and is now working on housing aspects of the Radio Education Project of the United States Office of Eduaction.

Mrs. Stewart, whose resignation was accepted by the board with regret, has been with the Washington Housing Association since its organization in 1933, and executive secretary since 1934. Mrs. Stewart resigned to accompany her husband, whose work requires their residence in New York City.

Father Who Sold Children's Milk To Starve in Jail

Atlantic City, N. J., June 9 (AP).—A man charged with selling three quarts of milk intended for his children and using the money to buy liquor was sentenced by Recorder Thomas G. Taggart today to spend three days in jail "without a bite to eat."

Witnesses testified the children went without food three days after their father took the milk.

"You're going to suffer like your children suffered," Recorder Taggart told the man, booked as John H. Scott. "And after you have gone without food three days you will still have nine more months to sit in a cell."

Britain Protests Almeria Mines To Gen. Franco

Blames Rebels for Deaths on Destroyer; Bilbao Evacuation Hinted.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 9.—Great Britain dispatched a protest to Generalissimo Franco today blaming the Spanish insurgent regime for a mine hit by the British destroyer Hunter off Almeria May 13 with the loss of eight British seamen.

Although Britain termed the explosion an "accident," a foreign office spokesman indicated the insurgents had laid mines off Almeria and elsewhere.

Sir Henry Chilton, the British ambassador to Spain who maintains headquarters across the French border at Hendaye, was ordered to present his government's protest to the insurgent junta at Salamanca.

Britain reminded the insurgents she previously had notified both sides of the Spanish civil conflict that mine-laying was not legitimate since the British had not accorded belligerent rights to either side.

Bilbao Evacuation Planned.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier (Thursday), June 10 (U.P.).—Basque deserters said today elaborate arrangements were being made in Bilbao to evacuate the shell-shattered capital if the Fascist advance gets much closer, according to rebel reports.

The 340,000 civilians in Bilbao and the government of President Jose Antonio Aguirre would be moved to Santander, leaving the troops to resist to the last, the deserters said. The government felt there were too many Fascist sympathizers in the city to defend it successfully, they declared. Both armies waited for a let-up in the torrential rain that has washed out all activity during the last 24 hours.

Liberal Flood Aid Sentiment Grows

By the Associated Press.

Sentiments for more liberal Federal financing of flood-control projects developed yesterday in the House Flood Control Committee.

Chairman Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, expressed belief that, unless present regulations requiring local communities to pay land and damage costs on such projects are relaxed, the Government may have to bear the whole load "just as it does for navigation."

"That's correct," Powell said. "I'm afraid many of the reservoirs would not be built otherwise."

He referred to 69 reservoirs included in a proposed $800,000,000 flood-control program for the Mississippi and Ohio River basins.

Hunt Ordered Dropped For Air Crash Victims

Salt Lake City, June 9 (AP).—Immediate search for bodies of seven airplane occupants dashed to death against a Utah mountain December 15 was abandoned tonight, with the possibility they never may be recovered.

The crash scene, a granite-studded ridge in the Wasatch Mountains 25 miles southeast of here, was placed under guard "until the snow melts." With the scene menaced by falling rocks and snowslides, executives of Western Air Express, the Forest Service and Utah's aeronautics board decided against risking lives of searchers.

Agreement on 'Hot Oil.'

Retired G. W. Chemistry Professor Dies At Los Angeles.

Funeral services for Dr. Hiram Colver McNeil, 70, retired chemistry professor at George Washington University, will be held tomorrow at Los Angeles, where he died Tuesday.

A native of Winchester, Ohio, Dr. McNeil was graduated with a bachelor of science degree from Denison University, and later received the degree of master of science there. Subsequently, he studied at Harvard and Chicago. In 1905 he received his Ph.D. from George Washington.

He was an instructor in chemistry at Denision and from 1899-1904 was head of the chemistry department at Shurtlef College. The following two years he was research chemist for the Geological Survey; later he served in a similar post for a private concern and then became assistant chemist of the Bureau of Chemistry here. From 1914 to 1918 he was associate chemist at the Bureau of Standards.

Starting as an assistant professor of chemistry at George Washington in 1910, he became head of the department eight years later, continuing in that position for eight years. He continued to teach until 1932.

Dr. McNeil was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the American Chemical Society and the History of Science Society. For many years he was a member of the Calvary Baptist Church here, also belonging to the LaFayette Lodge of Masons; he was a past patron of Fidelity Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah H. McNeil; three sons, Robert H. McNeil, a professor at Virginia Polytechnic Institute; the Rev. Harold O. McNeil, Baptist minister at Rockville Center, N. Y., and Ernest S. McNeil, of 327 Longfellow street; a sister, Mrs. Jessie Selman, Kent, Ohio, and three grandchildren.

Following tomorrow's funeral services, the body will be cremated and the ashes brought here to be placed in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

State Department, French Diplomats Hold Up Basques

A deadlock in the controversy over temporary admission to the United States of 500 Basque children, refugees from the Spanish civil war, apparently was reached last night.

The American Board of Guardians for the children, through Gardner Jackson, announced that the children, now in temporary camp at St. Jean de Luz, France, will not be moved "the several hundred miles" to Paris for formal application for visas until the State and Labor departments here make final decision on granting of the visitors' visas. Jackson made public a message from the Duchess of Atholl, in charge of the refugee children in France, pointing to the "discomfort of the children and heavy expenses involved if return to St. Jean is necessary."

Government officials here, however, pointed out to the consular officers in France the law leaves the decision as to whether the visas shall be granted to them, and that no ruling can be made until application is filed.

N. Y. Postoffice Accepts Sardines For Steel Plants

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—Dwight J. Scovel, of Hopewell, N. J., today mailed four cans of sardines to strike-bound plants of the Republic Steel Corporation in Ohio, where there has been a controversy over whether the Postoffice Department should deliver food mailed to non-strikers inside Republic's plants.

Scovel said his only interest was in seeing that "the mails go through."

"I don't want to see the Government take sides in this situation," he added. "Men should be allowed to work if they want to work."

W.W. Evans to Head Young Democrats

William Wilder Evans, an attorney, was elected president of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Chevy Chase, Md., last night. The club met at the home of its retiring president, Donald Glassie.

Other officeds named were Allen Graham, vice president; John Birch, secretary; William Dynes, treasurer, and Donald Reed, sergeant at arms.

James H. Pugh, State's attorney for Montgomery County, told members that his office was beginning a drive to curb bookmaking and declared that operation of Washington handbook men will not be tolerated in the county.

Campaign Sale Of Roosevelt's Name Assailed

Snell to Ask Inquiry on Corporations Buying Autographed Book.

By the Associated Press.

Representative Snell, House Republican leader, said yesterday he would propose a Congressional investigation into the Democratic National Committee's sale of campaign books autographed by President Roosevelt.

He told reporters the books were being sold to corporations for as much as $250 a copy. A section of the corrupt practices act, Snell said, was designed to make it unlawful for a corporation to contribute money to a political party. Snell said he had a photostatic copy on a Democratic committee letterhead which mentioned a contract for four books at $1,000.

At the White House, Stephen T. Early, a secretary, issued this statement:

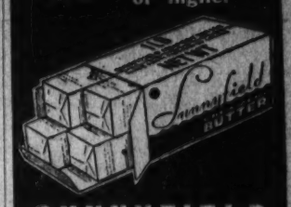

"The contract was drawn by Forbes Morgan (late treasurer of the Democratic committee) who asked the President to sign blank sheets, telling him if they were autographed the committee could sell them to individuals and raise a sum to go toward erasing the party deficit.

"The President agreed. He signed the sheets and sent them to the committee before he went to South America last November.

"That is all we know about it."

"If this isn't immoral evasion of law, I don't know what would be," Snell said.

Money For Ships.

The American people have shown time and again that they want an adequate merchant marine and are willing to pay to secure it. In spite of past mistakes of policy on the part of the Government, as well as mismanagement and dissipation of funds by shipping companies, the country is making another attempt to build up the industry by direct construction and operating subsidies in place of the disguised subsidies of the past.

The purpose is not simply to provide vessels for carrying American goods under the American flag, but also to provide an auxiliary for the Navy in case of war or other emergency. The cost of the program, therefore, has to be allocated in part to defense and insurance against a repetition of the disastrous conditions that arose at the outbreak of the World War when goods piled up on piers for the lack of American ships to transport them.

The President's request for $10,000,000 for the Maritime Commission's revolving fund and for authorization to spend $150,000,000 to finance construction of 95 vessels is a modest sum in view of the objective sought and the long way we must go to attain it. According to the President, not a single sea-going vessel of the general cargo carrying type has been built in the United States in 15 years. Chairman Kennedy estimates, indeed, that an outlay of $400,000,000 spread over 5 years would be necessary to rehabilitate the ocean-going freight services. He adds that at the end of this time 90 per cent of the merchant marine will be 20 years old and hence obsolete.

The $150,000,000 requested, therefore, is merely a beginning; it calls attention once again to the importance of considering future commitments when trying to appraise the budgetary position. While only an authorization to enter into contracts for ship construction up to $150,000,000 is asked, it is evident that the Maritime Commission is prepared to exercise that right without delay. Fortunately, its outlays will provide work in idle shipyards, thus affording one more argument in favor of offsetting this new expense by reductions in work relief appropriations.

Not Agents Of The Executive.

Congress is now confronted by two diametrically opposite viewpoints as to the future of the Government's regulatory commissions. The President's Committee on Administrative Management believes that this "haphazard deposit of irresponsible agencies and unco-ordinated powers" should be reorganized into administrative and judicial sections, the former to be under control of the White House. In a special report the Brookings Institution takes the position that the independent regulatory bodies should be expanded to perform some functions now assigned to the regular departments.

Several points emphasized by the Brookings report to the select Senate Committee on Reorganization weaken the arguments of the President's advisers. Mr. Louis Brownlow and his colleagues took the stand that the operation of independent commissions seriously divides responsibility that should be lodged in the Chief Executive. Experts for the Brookings Institution reply that these commissions are in no sense agents of the President, that their activities should be carried on with no domination from the White House, so as to avoid making the "newer social policies" the "football of politics."

The Brownlow committee drew a sharp line of distinctuion between administrative and judicial activities. It would have administrative sections of the Federal Trade Commission, the I. C. C., the Tariff Commission, etc., placed directly under Cabinet officers. But if the President should control the administrative activity of these organizations, the current report shows, he would also control their policies. The judicial body might continue to pass impartial judgment upon the cases presented to it, but at best this would serve only as a check upon the administrative policies directed by department heads.

In other words, most of the impartiality and independence of the regulatory bodies would probably be lost under the Brownlow plan. Since one of their important functions is fact-finding, the seriousness of that loss is readily apparent. Congress has intrusted the delicate task of fact-finding and regulation in various fields to independent bodies only because it requires a high degree of objectivity as well as technical training. Experience indicates that the departments cannot always be relied upon to render that type of service.

Defects in the present system ought to be clearly recognized. But it is doubtful whether the advantages of more unified management would in any way offset the dangers of political administration of highly controversial policies, in which a large measure of discretion must necessarily be exercised.

A New Challenge To Congress.

Congress is plainly worried over the widespread disturbances resulting from the current epidemic of strikes. Senator Copeland has called for a general investigation of labor disputes. A less sweeping probe into alleged interference with the mails in areas where pickets have laid siege to steel plants is sought by Senator Bridges. Each move indicates an undercurrent of grave concern over the situation which has developed during the last two weeks.

It is quite natural that Congress should be perturbed over the recent outbreaks of rioting, fighting, armed picketing, interference with the mails and other forms of lawlessness. For these disturbances are an indirect result of the policy fostered by the Administration with the overwhelming approval of Congress. As Senator Wagner has pointed out again and again, labor difficulties are on the increase because of, and not in spite of, the labor relations act which bears his name.

The Administration has greatly stimulated interest in the organization of working men and in collective bargaining. For that policy it is entitled to a large measure of commendation. In this age of gigantic corporations labor must be well organized to protect the rights of the working man. But having helped to stimulate these powerful forces into action, the Administration is doing very little either to guide them or to discourage irresponsible and lawless practices.

A national labor policy was adopted on the theory that the States were not competent to deal with huge corporations engaged in far-flung activities without regard for State lines. But when the conflicts between powerful companies and labor groups disrupt the peace of local communities, the responsibility of meeting those crises falls entirely upon State and local authorities. It is not surprising, in these circumstances, that the law has been flouted in many instances.

Fortunately, some local officials are coming to grips with the situation. At Monroe, Mich., special police have been deputized to prevent trouble when a steel factory closed by the strike reopens today in response to what is reported to be the wishes of an overwhelming majority of the workers. But it is said the strikers will be supported by upwards of 10,000 men from Detroit. Can local authorities be reasonably expected to cope with a vast organization like the C. I. O., which is willing to resort to violence to gain its ends?

That is the very serious question which has been thrust upon Congress. If the policies governing the employer-employe relationship are to be fixed in Washington, the Federal Government will doubtless have to assume a larger responsibility for their enforcement. To date the Administration has been woefully negligent in meeting the problems arising out of its own statute.

No doubt the Wagner act is inadequate to deal with the present critical situation. But no effort seems to have been made to apply even its limited provisions. The law clearly gives the Labor Relations Board power to investigate conditions that may lead to industrial strife. The best way to illustrate its deficiencies would be to proceed as far as possible under its provisions. But the board as well as the President is maintaining a "hands-off" policy.

Moreover, the Administration continues to tolerate without protest, conditions which have caused local postoffices to reject certain mail addressed to plants under siege. In short, the strikers have successfully obstructed an arm of the Federal Government in addition to defying local authorities. Regardless of how arbitrary the conduct of the companies involved in the strike may have been, this tacit acquiescence in lawlessness creates an extremely serious problem.

Much is being said about the need for greater responsibility on the part of newly-organized labor groups. There seems to be a still greater need for responsibility on the part of public officials who are obligated to enforce the law and protect the public interest. The question of new Federal legislation in this field is both complicated and controversial. While that is being worked out, however, the least that can be expected is co-operation of existing agencies to prevent strikes from degenerating into actual warfare.

Irresponsible Cab Companies.

The unfortunate case of Mrs. Rose Page should not be missed by Washingtonians who use taxicabs or, indeed, by any who, afoot or in car, ever come within striking distance of these public carriers. Some time ago Mrs. Page was injured by a taxicab. She sued, and the corporation to which the cab belonged was adjudged liable for damages of $3,500. But when she tried to collect the award, she found the corporation to be nothing but a name with no one on whom responsibility could be fastened. Mrs. Page returned to the courts for assistance, only to be told last week that the law can do nothing for her.

But though Mrs. Page will find small solace in it, the court's statement of its inability to act in the matter may be just what is needed to prevent repetitions of the case. At least, Representative Nichols has announced that the House District Committee will begin hearings "within a week" on a bill to amend the local Public Utilities Commission act so that all common carriers will be made financially responsible. This is the seventh year that the bill has been laid before Congress. Once during this time it passed the Senate but the House has never accepted it. In view of the frequent abuses reported, that neglect is far from understandable.

Washington is one of a very few cities that does not protect its citizens who ride in licensed carriers. And this is all the more indefensible because the Capital has an unusually high ratio of automobiles per capita and thus a high accident rate. Of course, compulsory taxi insurance would probably mean an increase in fares. But this would be cheap insurance for which the vast majority of taxi patrons would readily pay.

Restoring The Patrol.

Through the persistent efforts of Great Britain, the dangerous sequel to the Iviza and Almeria incidents may be liquidated in a constructive manner.

Those incidents were followed by the withdrawal of Germany and Italy from the international naval patrol. Thus arose the distinct possibility of open Fascist intervention on the side of Gen. Franco, supplementing the covert aid given the Spanish insurgents by the Berlin and Rome governments since the beginning of the civil war. Fortunately, such a development has not taken place and Europe has been given another breathing spell. For Germany and Italy are now manifesting a readiness to rejoin the international patrol.

The latest British effort to make nonintervention effective represents a compromise between the views of France and Russia, on the one hand, and those of Germany and Italy, on the other. France urged that the number of participants in the sea patrol be enlarged to include the Soviet Union and that the international fleet surrounding Spain be placed under a single command. In that way, it was argued, the possible occurrence of another Almeria episode would be minimized. But to both points of this plan the Fascist nations voiced strenuous objections.

To reconcile these divergent views has been the task facing British statesmanship during the past fortnight. It now appears that these efforts of the London government may succeed. Germany and Italy have apparently been won over to the idea of establishing safety zones for foreign warships. They are not entirely pleased with the British proposal that, in the event of an attack upon a foreign warship, the nations forming part of the sea patrol should consult each other "with a view to further action." But they may accept it, with or without reservations.

In that way the status quo obtaining before the Iviza episode would be restored and a new effort could then be undertaken to secure the withdrawal from Spain of all foreign combatants. But the outlook for such a development, which would undoubtedly curtail the bloodletting in the Iberian Peninsula by many weeks, is no better now than it was a month ago.

The Fascist powers have apparently decided that, for the moment, their interests will be best served by permitting the restoration of the nonintervention front. But they give no indications that they are as yet prepared to wash their hands of the Spanish civil war. Consequently, the international crisis centering around Spain may continue to plague the chancelleries of Europe for some time to come.

That For Science!

Spring, according to tradition, is the time for romance. Vacation flirtations, though as notoriously painful and short-lived as sunburns acquired at the same time, continue to flourish. Novelists and poets are still harping on the old theme of a young man's fancy. Magazine covers are full of smiling brides and grooms, while on the inside all stories manage to end optimistically. Only science rears its ugly head with disillusioning facts on love and lassies.

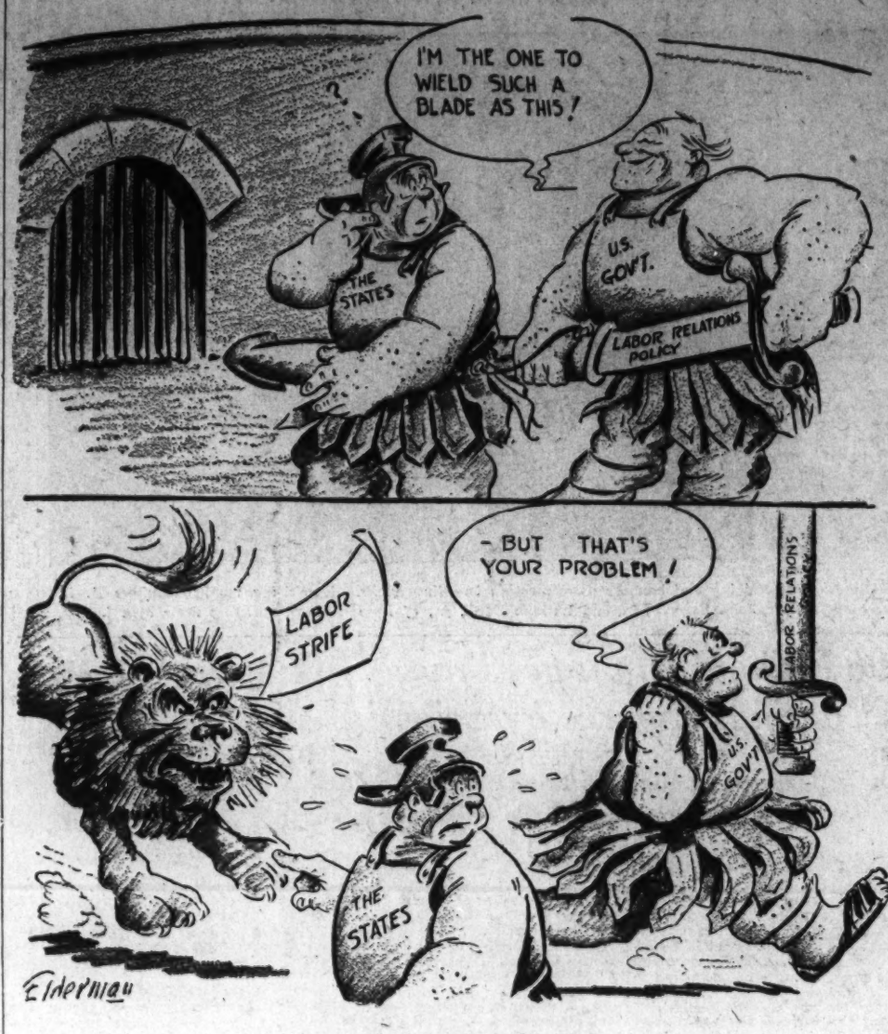

Recently Dr. Harold Hildredth of Syracuse University analyzed so-called love at first sight and declared that there ain't no such animal. Reducing it to its lowest common denominator, he maintains that this form of the grande passion is simply "a result of identification of early childhood relationships." As if that were not hard enough on all the sad young men, the National Inventors Congress, convening in New York City, announces that it has a new instrument for vesting dream girls with dimples.

But there's one consolation. Neither Dr. Hildredth nor the inventors have been able yet to explain or offer a substitute for human nature. So in the spring a young man's fancy will continue to be captured by dimples at first sight, whether they're real or synthetic.

Scientists at Cornell University have succeeded in giving a pig nervous prostration. Now let them turn their talents to scaring a road hog out of his wits, if any.

The Duke of Windsor has mastered the accordion and bagpipes, but a much more difficult task now confronts him: Learning to play second fiddle.

"The best way to prevent colds is to keep your mouth closed," says a physician. It's also an excellent method for preventing black eyes.

Real Estate Developments.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Until a few days ago a wooded hillside across the meadow along the south side of Tunlaw road, near the Veterans' Hospital, was on of the most charming, secluded spots in Washington. During the last few days the woods have been entirely cut down and the top of the hill removed. A festering sore of level brown earth now takes the place of the woods and the hill. In the background behind it one views the little row houses of Glover Park.

The citizens of Washington have, in this instance, permitted private real estate interests to destroy one of the city's unspoiled wooded retreats. However, it seems useless to talk or write about this sort of thing. Every other wooded spot in Washington is similarly doomed to eventual prostitution and desecration. The situation in Washington, as in probably almost every other town in the country, is that visionless, selfish real estate promoters are and always will be allowed to ride roughshod over the public interest. It is just one of the many manifestations of the spinelessness of us other Americans.

Pitchers For The Nats.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How much longer are you going to sit idly by without one word of criticism towards Griffith, Harris and Co. There is no more loyal fan than yours truly but it is disgusting to see sports writers take this "do nothing" policy as a matter of course. You are the ones whose word carries weight if anyone's does so why not start howling for some pitchers and for the consignment of Cascarella, Linke and some others elsewhere.

Out on the Coast are Gibson, Stutz and Liska; in the association are Pressnell, Bass and Tauscher, and in the Texas are Fisher and Reid. They are vets it is true but they could be had and they would help plenty.

It's a crime to see a club like ours sink to the cellar which is yet only seven games from the top, despite such rank pitching and a do-nothing owner.

The "New Germany."

To The Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to commend your editorial and cartoon of June 8. The cartoon shows Hitler as he really is. It is exactly as 75 per cent of German people see him, but dare not say it.

I came from Munich, Germany, a year ago after waiting four years for the quota. Studying English in my spare time aroused a suspicion of Hitler's secret thugs and for a year before leaving Germany I was followed and terrorized by them everywhere I went. I would be approached and accosted by these thugs I would least suspect. They came to me as preachers, priests, vendors, salesmen, shoe shiners, waiters, bartenders, etc. In fact, it seems the whole German people are Hitler's whisperers. Everybody is afraid of everybody, and nobody speaks.

Whenever a foreigner, especially a rich one comes to Germany, he is immediately taken into arms of trained Fascist propagandists and is shown only the "great achievements" of "new Germany." He is never shown the sweatshops, the starvation, the murder and the secret chambers of horror where innocent people are tortured and murdered and no one ever finds out what happened to them. If the walls of these chambers could speak, they would reveal facts so horrible it would make our hair stand up.

My heart bleeds when I compare the happy, outspoken, pre-Hitler Germany with the present vale of tears. Everything earthly would I gladly give, if by doing so I could help free Germany of this Fascist scourge of darkness.

I thank you again ever so much for exposing these scoundrels, and if you can I wish you would publish this letter. It would help some honest American to navigate his boat clear of the "new Germany."

Taxicab Liability Insurance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the agitation for legislation to require taxicabs to carry liability insurance so that persons injured will be able to collect, I suggest that Congress accompany any such legislation with additional legislation which will enable the taxicab drivers to secure liability insurance at a reasonable rate.

Some five or six years ago, I became interested in a small taxicab company (which has since become defunct at a loss). Despite the fact that no law required it, we sought liability insurance and found that the premium demanded was at the rate of about $1 per day per cab, $360 per year, to be exact. We had ten taxicabs, which would have meant paying $3,600 to the insurance companies for the privilege of conducting a small business which would not yield that much per year.

When a legislative body such as Congress or a State legislature enacts a flat requirement concerning the carrying of insurance, it puts the insurance companies in the position of saying to those affected: "Now it is the law. Pay us or get out of business."

It would seem to be a simpler matter for Congress to enact legislation putting this matter under the supervision of the Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia and empowering him to set up a fund into which every taxicab would have to pay, say, 25 cents per day, until $2,500 had been accumulated.

If 25 cents per day were found to be insufficient, the rate should be increased. If, upon the other hand, the fund continued to increase beyond the reasonably safe needs of the situation, then the payments of the drivers could be reduced. Here then, would be a means of encouraging safe driving, because the drivers would know that increasing losses would be reflected in increasing payments and that decreasing losses would be reflected in decreasing payments upon their part.

All too often, compulsory measures of this sort are urged in the name of "benefit to the public," when as a matter of fact they are engineered by powerful lobbies seeking to create monopolies for their own benefit. A few years ago, a real estate license law was passed in a neighboring State, under the powerful pressure of a real estate lobby. Many of the members of the Legislature were lawyers. They did not like the legislation, and it had hard sledding.

However, at the windup of the session, the bill was amended to exempt lawyers from its provisions, and then it was passed. At a later date, one of the members of the Legislature said to the writer: "Nine out of ten of the men who were urging the passage of the bill hoped and believed that it would put everybody out of business except themselves."

In a few days, thousands of young men will graduate from high school. They will seek employment. In all too many avenues of endeavor they will find the doors of opportunity closed by the selfishness of those who have gone before them and who, through all sorts of licensing devices speciously urged for the benefit of the public, have created monopolies into which it is difficult for an outsider to break.

This chain begins with the labor unions at the bottom, who limit the number of apprentices to be admitted to the trades, and ends with the most prosperous merchants of the community, who have driven the pushcart men from the streets in order to protect themselves against even their little competition. It is high time to put a stop to that sort of legislation.

F. G. CAMPBELL.
Washington, June 8.

The Court Reform.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post, in an editorial of June 5, headed "The Fight Continues," indulges in a most unfair criticism of the President, in my judgment, when it characterizes his determination to insist upon Supreme Court reorganization as "that utterly unreasonable and apparently vindictive policy."

On the contrary, it would seem that the President deserves strong commendation for refusing to be dissuaded from his intention to insist upon judiciary changes that will, for a time, at least, terminate arbitrary and high-handed interference with congressional efforts to legislate in humanitarian terms. There is nothing vindictive in such an attitude. The vindictiveness is found in the tenacity of judicial monarchs who seem deaf and blind to the demands of the people for relief from plutocratic exploitation.

Ardent appeals to the Executive to let bygones be bygones and abandon his attempts to reorganize the Supreme Court simply because it has recently made a right-about-face and handed down—by a ticklishly narrow margin—a few liberal opinions, and because Van Devanter's resignation has created one vacancy, could hardly be expected to deceive a clear-thinking public man.

Naturally, these appeals have not altered Roosevelt's attitude. It is strongly to his credit that he has stood firm. It would have been a case of yielding to the most transparently hypocritical arguments if he had dropped his program after the late decisions and the retirement of one judge.

The issue is still here and must be dealt with. It is not "unreasonable" and "vindictive" to insist upon facing the situation and sufficiently increasing the membership of the high tribunal so that, for some years to come, it will not be likely to "torture" the Constitution and read into it meanings repugnant to every citizen hoping for social justice in his country.

To Wall street, to the parasites of our economic system, it seems "unreasonable" and "vindictive" to persist in a brave fight to end judicial dictatorship. But it seems otherwise to the plain people who elected Roosevelt again because they looked to him to be their champion and defender.

LINN A. E. GALE.

A Dry's View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently a distillery company advertised in a number of Nation-wide publications that it did not want "bread money," that it counseled abstinence for some and moderation for all, and, thus, its conscience was clear. This is but another attempt by selfish interests to deceive the public.

The advertisements of liquor concerns stress liquor as a respectable counterpart to social functions, and as a matter of good taste and refinement. They never try to illustrate the sorrow and trouble that a drunkard brings upon his wife and children, nor the broken-hearted mothers and fathers seeing their sons, even daughters, lose character and ambition in drinking, nor the numerous lives which are shortened and lost through the influences of liquor. A large portion of the increase in automobile accidents may be attributed to "that little highball," or "just a glass of beer," but the distillers and brewers don't mention these facts in their advertisements. Statistics and a little looking about will prove that they are not exaggerated.

Liquor is placed within reach of young and old, poor and rich, of those who "can take it" and those who "can't take it." It is a temptation that many, whether they can afford it or not, are too weak to resist. Yet the liquor manufacturers claim that their conscience is clear, and even give advice, which is worthless, considering its source.

The conscience of every right-thinking individual will not be free until he, or she, has done everything within his power to remove this temptation, especially from the curious, uncertain minds of youth.

Unemployment Extravaganza.

YOU never knew how expensive it was to be unemployed until the AAA gave you a furlough with 800 others. The trouble, no doubt, is that you got started wrong. Whereas you should have gone home with lagging steps, broke the news gently, and then clewed sails for a hard financial blow, circumstances forced a slightly different course.

It was difficult enough to tell the news, though more because of a slow than a reluctant tongue. Frances was talking for both. She broke the inviolable rule never to come to the office on pay day, met you for lunch, and explained, wildly happy, that an aunt had invited her to go on the Congressional junket to New York.

You ordered strengthening drinks and good meals for both, to soften the blow. And that was the first false step. Frances was too excited to eat. Finally she interrupted her rapid tale of Mayor LaGuardia, West Point, French Casino and other high points on the proposed itinerary, to ask,

"Oh, by the way, did you hear any more about furloughs today?"

"Yes," you answered simply, "I got one."

Then she couldn't eat.

* * *

But as you were facing long privation, and as so many things on the trip were free, you both decided it would be false economy for her not to go. It would be a grand, new experience, make her more contented to settle down and be one of the poverty stricken. That, perhaps, should be listed as the second false step.

Nor was the third long in following. Two weeks later, on your last day at work, a private dining room was obtained for a farewell luncheon. All your friends were going, so naturally you looked in. And you can't be blamed because you took a sociable drink on saying good-by to friends of three years' standing.

Nor rightfully can you be blamed for taking those last two drinks. You wouldn't if it hadn't been for the joke. A parched friend ordered them. And it seemed a fine gag to waylay his waitress on the way back, ask casually, "Are those my drinks?" and take them.

On this luncheon alone, according to the tentative budget Frances and you had made, you both could have lived three days. But after all it was the last time you would see many of the fellows. And you were a little sad.

* * *

During the days that followed you waited expectantly for expenditures to drop to a level fitting for a jobless person. The food budget was carefully planned: 30 cents for breakfast, and, since that would be eaten late, only 20 cents for lunch, and 50 cents for supper. By shopping wisely and eating at home the amounts were surely enough—generous, in fact. And it would be more healthful to forego rich foods and return to a simple diet.

The first trouble was that, though eating breakfast late, sleeping kingly till 9 o'clock, you also had luncheon late. This necessitated an increase there, or else you were forever damning the budget and raiding the ice box before supper.

The 50 cents for supper likewise proved inadequate. Perhaps vegetarians could have managed, but not meat eaters. Nor can the budget be blamed that both your tastes ran to the more expensive cuts. And, as you both agree, it was poor thrift to buy meats neither of you liked.

Several other expenditures, unforeseen, but nonetheless unavoidable, helped pulverize the budget and prove it more expensive to live without a job than with one. These were lumped under the heading of "Keeping Up the Morale." In your wage-earning days you never suspected that you had a "morale," but immediately on being discharged you acquired that luxury which, apparently, only the jobless can afford.

* * *

It was necessary, for one thing, to look neater than before. A well-pressed suit and faultless linen, you felt, meant more to employers than the haggard look generally associated with unemployment.

Liquor, too, was a necessity. You had your pride if friends called, and, if not, you had your liquor. Also, there was the point that it aided you to write. Despite doubt as to this, both Frances and you accepted the reason, determined there should be no excuse for not turning out those planned articles, long put off because of lack of time.

And, as you had more leisure, entertainment expenses ran higher. Doubtful about classifying these expenditures as "morale boosting," they were excused on the grounds of resting the mind, sprucing the mentality, and, as such, were considered dirt cheap.

Looking back, you realize that your trouble lay in having nothing to shoot at. When you had an income, expenditures which caused you to overstep its bounds were automatically classified as extravagant. But, with that target removed, with even eating considered as downright financial recklessness, the voice of conscience that used to twit you for prodigality, ceased to twit, and life rolls on, fuller and nobler—an unemployment extravaganza.

Union Income Taxes.

ONE GREAT INCOME TAX which is generally overlooked is that collected by labor unions from a class of citizens most of whom are considered to be too humble for the official attention of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. True, there is some clamor for a "widening of the tax base," but even in the improbable event of its being enlarged to catch a few brackets which are now beneath the interest of the Treasury the profits will not be very substantial.

But below these brackets and all the way down the line of occupations embraced in unions, even to the poorest, the income tax exists in practice, though under another name, proving that politicians and statesmen underestimate the people's ability to pay. The unions keep their own books, and no politician would dare suggest that they be examined at a public investigation, with circus publicity, as that just isn't in the cards.

Yet it is interesting to speculate on the volume of money which the unions collect from a great section of the Nation which the Government, in its wisdom and mercy, has spared the dues of citizenship imposed on persons of better fortune. Labor leaders are not at all sentimental about ability to pay.

That these revenues constitute an income tax levied by private interests cannot be doubted. The members pay dues based on their rate of pay, which is the principle of the official income tax, and in addition many of them are subject to high, if not extortionate, license fees, failing the payment of which they may be prevented from earning a living.

• • • •

THE INITIATION FEE may be $50 or $500, and surely if any agency has the right to wring substantial sums from workmen as an entrance fee in the pursuit of happiness the Government should come first. Then, also, in the matter of the regular dues the Government waives its tax interest in favor of organizations which do not hesitate to tax people whom Congress has exempted on the ground of their poverty.

It will be argued that these dues and license fees as well as assessments levied on the earnings of a group whom Congress hasn't the heart to tax are voluntary contributions, but that contention is not consistent with the check-off system. If the union members were enthusiastic contributors to their labor organizations it would not be necessary to deduct the money at the pay office.

Labor leaders have admitted that collections are unreliable when left to the willingness and conscience of the members. Moreover, it is quite possible for 49 per cent of a union membership to be unwilling about their union income taxes even if you ignore the possibility of individual extortion practiced by leaders who acquire the power to give or withhold jobs and to blackmail individuals with threats of expulsion. Expulsion is a terrible thing, and a man may pay high to escape it.

• • • •

LABOR POLITICS is no less dark and ruthless than public politics, and the unions are extracting unknown, though obviously enormous, amounts from a private preserve of citizens whom the Government exempts. I do not suggest that the Federal income tax be applied to all classes, however poor.

Only a labor leader would tax those whom the President has described as ill-clothed, ill-housed and ill-fed. On the contrary, I suggest that many labor leaders are much more rapacious than the Government, and point out that the Government wouldn't think of persecuting poor individuals by placing them on a blacklist for failure to shower down.

The well-to-do must meet the Government on a different basis, but the official policy is lenience toward the humble toiler, who then discovers himself accountable to a private and irresponsible tax authority with the power to inflict dreadful suffering on his family for failure to pay.

The Government exempts him out of decent regard for his economic weakness, but then turns him over to a tax collector with no such qualms who may not even do him the honor of explaining from time to time what becomes of the money.

It is not only the employers who have trouble with labor leaders. There are many union members who are members against their will, but unprotected from terrorism, physical and economic, because no statesman will come to their aid for fear of being called an enemy of labor.

Baccalaureate Address.

The address of Dr. Elmer Twitchell, Dean of Stymie University, to the graduating class follows:

"Gentlemen of the graduating class of dear old Stymie: You are about to leave the quiet confines of this university and go out into the world of brick throwing, ultimatum hurling and general chaos. Terrorism In Barcelona Today

4,000 Set As Maximum Killed, Contrasting With "50,000."

By Lawrence A. Fernsworth.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Barcelona.

SO MUCH has been said about terrorism in Barcelona that it would seem well to dispose of that chapter once for all by examining the facts. The latest contribution to the literature on this subject was the communique of the insurgents, wherein it was stated that at Barcelona "50,000 or 60,000 horrible murders have been committed." It was the same statement which categorically stated that Guernica had not been bombarded and that, in fact, insurgent planes had not left the ground on the day of that tragedy. The statement with reference to Barcelona has about as much value.

Happily, it would seem that Barcelona's dark chapter of revolutionary terror ended some months ago, although up to the recent worker's insurrection "incontrollables" were still at work on a much reduced scale, while a note of the new delegate of public order shows that private prisons were maintained by one or more of the syndicalist or similar organizations. These have now been abolished and the prisoners either released or sent to official prisons in such cases as were deemed suitable.

Total Catalonian Dead Declared 8,000.

IT WOULD be difficult to estimate the number of victims in Barcelona, but "loyal" and well informed persons who are not disposed to hide the facts very commonly place the number at 4,000 by the last days of December, which is a very different matter from the recklessly stated "50,000 or 60,000" of the insurgent communique. The total in all Barcelona may possibly have been 8,000.

Advocates of "revolutionary terrorism," robbers and gangsters killing under the cover of "revolutionary action," persons acting out of motives of vengeance, have all played their parts. Many persons were the victims of servants making false accusations, and many a family was the virtual prisoner of its servants, whom it dared not dismiss. Stories could likewise be told of servants who have proved their faithfulness. One of the revolutionary organizations, the P. O. U. M., eliminated from the government last December, continued to preach terrorism as "an historic necessity," but in this respect has now been silenced.

But when one discusses this terrorism it must be seen in its proper perspective. Most Catalans, themselves suffering from the tragedy and the horror of it, still point out that the total in Barcelona was far less than in its twin city of Madrid.

They further insist that there have been no atrocities such as the bullring murders of Badajoz, the killing of nurses and patients in the Toledo hospital, an act amply established; the public spectacle into which the execution of left leaders at Palma was converted, or that other public spectacle, the torture of the Socialist deputy, Andres Manso, in a bullring at Salamanca, where he was put to death like an animal at the hands of bull fighters.

Chaos Accompanied Uprising Of July 19.

Catalans insist that it is only fair that these facts be borne in mind, but that they may have a relation to at least some of the excesses in Barcelona, however, inadmissable they may be as a justification thereof.

THE JULY 19 uprising was followed by chaos. Armed workers and their syndicates took command and for a time it appeared that the government would break up. But it stood its ground, came to terms with the anti-Fascist committee then in control, and within a week shops were open, transport was moving and there were many outward semblances of normalcy.

Foreigners were respected except for the fact that in the beginning some German and Italian nationals were the objects of reprisals for the obviously hostile attitudes of their governments. Special consideration was given to the members of the British and the American colonies. Your correspondent knows of no cases of well-behaving British or American nationals being molested.

The government further co-operated with all the consulates, including the German and the Italian, in the removal of their nationals. Persons in official positions risked the anger of extremists, and consequently their lives, to save priests, nuns, bishops and certain other Spanish nationals by getting them safely aboard foreign ships or across the frontier. These facts likewise must be taken into consideration when one looks at the Catalan picture.

The efforts of the government in those early days to stay the assassinations were frantic. One of the difficulties was the diverse entities which attempted to intervene in public order. In villages and towns there were local committees, and everywhere there were Las Patrullas—the patrols which frequently pretended to supreme authority. Such cases might be cited as that which occurred at Masanet de Cabrenys, near the French border in Gerona Province, about March 15, when some "uncontrollables" attempted to arrest a citizen. The alcalde laid down the law that "in this town no one is detained without my authority," but in his attempt to give force to his order he was shot dead.

Patrols Obnoxious Throughout Barcelona.

THE PATROLS became particularly obnoxious in Barcelona. They were formed when the ad hoc committees which had been administering "revolutionary justice" with a high hand, were finally suppressed. The government's intentions were good but the patrols immediately got out of hand and developed into a nightmare to order-loving Catalans. They became a super police force, a kind of Tcheka with an evil fame. In Barcelona they maintained a "preventative prison," the convent of Sans Elias. Many who entered there did not again leave except to go forth to their doom. The Catalan Prime Minister, Sr. Tarradellas, finally sent its unfortunate inmates to regular prisons or freed them.

The government's attempts to abolish the patrols were opposed by those most interested in keeping them alive. The Socialist party withdrew from them entirely. The government attempted to unify all the forces of public order and issued a decree dissolving them, including the patrols and establishing in their stead a single interior security corps. This plan was vigorously opposed by the Anarcho-Syndicalist labor organization, the C. T. N., and by the P. O. U. M., often called the Trotskistas. Under the new order now established this is being accomplished.

Another problem was the disarming of the rearguard. As the May 3 insurrection demonstrated, almost all organizations were armed to the teeth. The government issued a decree for the surrender of arms but some of the parties which really desired to disarm, hesitated to do so unless there were also a disarming of their opponents. The C. N. T. were particularly insistent in their refusal. They had some of their picked men in key positions in the police organization and these were especially active in preventing the carrying out of government orders which did not suit them.

On the very day that the last Catalan government before the recent troubles was formed, namely April 16, Dyonisius Eroles, a subordinate who nonetheless was the virtual dictator of the Barcelona police, assumed an openly contumacious attitude toward his own superiors, stating that he "considered the disarming of the people inopportune and the attempt to do so a lack of good tactics on the part of the government." In effect he placed himself above the government by annulling its orders.

Situation Is Improved Despite Feuds Of Syndicates.

Citizens Despoiled By Gangs Under Eroles.

EROLES was a sinister figure but fortunately he has now passed out of the picture. His men made searches and arrests, despoiling the homes of their victims of money, jewelry and other valuables under the pretext of "expropriations." Charges also were trumped up against innocent victims as an excuse for the despoilations. Once in prison, the moving of heaven and earth scarcely sufficed to produce their release. The government, alive to the iniquity of the situation, apparently tolerated it as the least of possible evils. Happily all that has now changed. And bad as the story is, one is appalled to reflect how much worse it might have been had the government not "sat tight" in critical moments.

Attempts to force collectivization on the peasants was another cause of violence. The Catalan peasant likes his own little farm and the government's decrees gave him the right to farm privately or collectively as he saw fit. An instance of what occurred is Fatarella, where, when outsiders tried to force their theories of collectivization on some 200 families, it resulted in an uprising of local people as a consequence of which some 30 persons were killed. Another instance was that of San Martin de Centellas, when five persons were killed. The trouble began when strangers came to the town and started taking possession of several fincas, or parcels of farm property, together with their buildings. The townsfolk turned out in defense of their neighbors and there ensued a battle in which one of the invaders and four of the inhabitants were killed.

There was trouble likewise when revolutionary committees and patrols attempted to take possession of the frontiers facing France and particularly the principal ports of entry, Port Bou and Puigcerda. Government and Catalan forces combined finally dislodged them. At Puigcerda a Syndicalist "dictator" had established a "libertarian commune," but he was finally killed when he challenged the government's armed forces.

Tribunals Reported To Dispense Fair Justice.

THE TRIBUNALS of Popular Justice dispatch cases with fairness. On the whole the sentences imposed do not seem excessive. They consist of imprisonment for varying terms, of sentences to work on fortifications or to engage in other labors related to the progress of the war. Death sentences have almost ceased while the government has long followed the policy of commuting them except in the most flagrant cases.

Conviction of charges of anti-Republican activities, unless actual conspiracy or treason are proved, never incur death sentences as is so frequently the case on conviction of "anti-right" or pro-Republican activities in the insurgent camp which was demonstrated in a singular way in the execution of Prof. Leopold Alas, rector of the University of Oviedo, grave charges had been made that he had accused the church of not following the teachings of Christ, the Jesuits of interfering in politics and had said it would be better to spend the money which a previous government had allotted to the construction of barracks, on the victims of the Oviedo revolution of 1934.

The execution of Alas was in reality an auto-de-fe, an inquisitional rite like the public execution of the Republican mayor and others at the gates of the cemetery in Palma, Mallorca. Incidentally, when certain English intellectuals attempted to appeal to the insurgents in his behalf, one of them was blandly told by an insurgent spokesman that no such man existed. As in the case of Guernica, of Durango, of the bombing of the refugees from Malaga, was another example of insurgent mendacity.

Broken Pledges

By Barnet Nover

Hitler's War On Religion

FOUR YEARS AGO, upon the invitation of Adolf Hitler himself, the Rev. Dr. Charles S. MacFarland went to Germany to make an impartial survey of the religious situation in that land.

He saw and talked with the chancellor. He conferred with church leaders of many denominations. And, while perturbed by certain of the developments taking place in the Third Reich, he was assured that these were only temporary. He returned home prepared to break a lance for the Hitler regime. In particular he was convinced that, so far as Germany was concerned, Americans ought to exercise restraint, sympathy and patience.

Since then, however, he has become bitterly disillusioned. The venerable general secretary emeritus of the Federal Council of Churches has discovered that his first optimistic conclusions regarding the religious situation in Nazi Germany were without basis. And now in an open letter to Hitler he has sorrowfully but courageously admitted this fact.

"You have violated," he writes the Fuehrer, "every assurance that you made to me." And again:

> In the four years you asked, whatever you may have done for the economic life of Germany, you have wrecked its Christian ideals. As the conclusion of my study, I can only say that you have, by consenting or approving, permitted the desecration of ideals of honor, integrity, truth and humanity associated with the Germany of my student days; that you are forgetting the respect of the civilized world and that you are leading your adopted nation to an abyss, for you cannot build an enduring nation upon force and hate.

• • • •

THE REV. DR. MacFARLAND is not the only one disillusioned by developments in the religious life of the Third Reich during these four years. Within Germany itself there are a great many clergymen, Protestant and Catholic, who have discovered what ropes of sand the verbal and written promises of the Fuehrer regarding religious freedom have turned out to be. They know now, if they did not before, that the Nazi regime has been engaged from the outset in a war on organized religion; that having failed to bend the churches to its will it now is seeking to break them; that, at bottom, there can be no real harmony, no permanent peace between Hitlerism and Christianity.

When the Nazi government came into being, the great majority of churchmen in Germany indicated their readiness to give it their full support. The Vatican, for its part, quickly made a concordat with the Third Reich. Political Catholicism, in the form of the Centrist Party, was thrown to the Nazi wolves. All that was asked of the regime was that it respect the church as a religious institution and protect it in its cultural rights.

Such a pledge was given but how little it has been respected, the recent papal encyclical clearly reveals. In this struggle between church and state in Germany, as a writer in the Dublin Review points out:

> There have been advances and retreats, and compromise by the way, according to circumstance and dictates of expediency. But the final aim—the elimination of the Christian idea from German life—has been steadily kept in view.

• • • •

THE TACTICS employed by the Nazis in their campaign against orthodox Protestantism has differed from those employed against the Catholic Church. But there has been no difference in the basic aim.

In 1933 the Nazis considered the Protestant Church a possibly useful tool in the process of unifying the people along Hitlerian lines. Indeed, in his Reichstag speech of March, 1933, Hitler declared:

> The National Socialist government thinks the Christian confessions are most important elements for the preservation of our national individuality. Their rights shall not be touched.

But it is now quite plain that the Nazis were convinced that these rights had and could have no meaning when they conflicted with the racial philosophy and the totalitarian aims of Hitlerism. In other words, freedom for the churches meant freedom to do as the regime wanted it to. But such freedom, church leaders realized, meant abandoning everything basic in their religious beliefs.

Some there were who did accept the Nazi thesis. There was, for instance, Reichsbishop Mueller, friend of Hitler. He was the leader of the so-called German Christian Church, whose religious basis was a mixture of orthodoxy and Naziism and whose purpose was to absorb all Protestant elements into one organization directly under the thumb of the regime.

This movement, despite its official patronage, quickly went aground on the rock of orthodoxy. With a courage unequaled by men of other professions, the men of the cloth fought back against efforts to degrade and destroy their religious beliefs in the name of totalitarianism and racialism.

• • • •

THE FAILURE of the German Christian movement did not, however, cause the Nazis to give up their efforts to dominate religion. In 1935 a new attempt was made. A minister for church affairs was appointed to make peace between "the quarreling pastors." And this minister, Herr Kerrl, soon after, as an indication of his seemingly conciliatory ambitions, created so-called church committees which included representatives from the Mueller faction and from the orthodox element. But the latter discovered this action was simply a ruse to wipe out the Protestant opposition. They refused to co-operate. Before long Kerrl showed his hand. In an address on November 28, 1935, he said:

> A church in Germany is not allowed to challenge the state or the Fuehrer. • • • I desire that you give up your opinions and that you entrust yourselves to the opinions of the state.

The orthodox Protestants, in large numbers, have, however, refused to give up their opinions. They have held their ground despite the increasingly bitter attack upon them. Their church organizations have been hamstrung, their confessional schools closed in many places, their newspapers suppressed and many of their group have been sent to concentration camps. In addition to this frontal attack, the Nazi regime has, more and more, tried to cut the ground from under organized Christianity by patronizing and encouraging the various neo-pagan movements that have sprung up in the Third Reich.

At one time there was a middle group, if not a middle ground, between Nazi paganism and orthodox religion. There is none now. The German Christian movement of 1933, which sought to reconcile Hitlerism with Christianity, has now sworn a readiness to abandon Christianity altogether. One of the journalistic organs of that movement declared a year ago:

> Today we still seriously want to be Christians, for Hitler demands this. If, tomorrow, he should demand that we sever the bond with the traditional churches, we shall be ready, without hesitation, to do so.

This is a perfect expression of the attitude which the Nazi government wants the churches to take. With such a view all those to whom religion has any meaning cannot but be in eternal conflict.

Newsprint From the South.

The Southern newspaper fraternity is vitally interested in an incident which occurred in Savannah the other day. A sample copy of the Savannah Evening Press was run on newsprint made in the South from Southern pine. Dr. Charles Herty, who developed the newsprint, mailed 2,170 copies to publishers of papers in the United States.

Not only will the manufacture of newsprint provide cheaper paper for the South, but the industry promises to bring wealth to this section. At any rate, we are no longer to be dependent on Canada for the major share of our newsprint.

Belgian Veterans Fight War Amnesty

Brussels, June 9 (AP).—Aroused by a proposal before the Senate to grant amnesty to all war-time prisoners, 400 Belgian war veterans today protested by showering the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier with their medals.

Mounted troops and tanks were stationed about the parliament buildings after the demonstration. A delegation of veterans swore before the speaker of the Senate to kill any "traitor" who profited by such amnesty. A further demonstration tomorrow was feared if the amnesty discussion in the Senate proceeds as scheduled.

The demonstrators deposited a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, saying: "Brother, those who soon will join you lay on thy grave the useless pledge their victory won at the expense of so many useless sufferings."

Quezon to Consult At Johns Hopkins

By the United Press.

President Manuel L. Quezon, of the Philippines, departed for Baltimore last night reportedly to consult physicians at Johns Hopkins Hospital regarding a throat ailment.

President Quezon had been under treatment in New York for several days before arrival in Washington Monday to attend to official matters. His associates said his condition was not alarming, and did not believe it would be necessary for him to enter the hospital as a patient.

The Philippine president is intimately acquainted with staff physicians at the Baltimore Institution, having undergone an operation there several years ago. His present ailment has not incapacitated him for routine official activities.

Sen. Byrd Indorses Roosevelt Tax Plan

Richmond, Va., June 9 (AP).—Senator Harry Flood Byrd was quoted by the News-Leader in a telephone interview today as heartily indorsing the Roosevelt proposals to tax the now tax-exempt securities in the future and to make Federal and State employes subject to income taxes.

Virginia's junior Senator said "I am strongly in favor of any plan that will tax interests and individuals who are now exempt from the payment of a fair share of taxes."

Byrd said he had offered a constitutional amendment under which Federal and State bonds may be fairly taxed, and bills requiring Federal and State employes to pay income taxes.

Gov. Peery, asked to comment, said: "I believe that all citizens, however employed or paid, should bear a fair part of the expenses of government."

C. H. Morrissett, State tax commissioner, said he believed the plan suggested by the President might yield results.

U. S. Investigating Tip Capone Born in Sicily

San Francisco, June 9 (AP).—Federal immigration authorities were reported today to be investigating a "tip" that Al Capone, former Chicago gang leader, now serving a term in Alcatraz Prison, was born in Sicily.

Federal law provides deportation for any alien convicted twice of a felony. In addition to the tax evasion sentence which he is serving, Capone was convicted of a gun-law violation at Philadelphia in 1929, when he was sentenced to a year in prison. The former gang ruler has claimed Brooklyn, N. Y., is his birthplace.

C. C. Sherrill, of the American Retail Federation, appeared, objecting in particular to Section 5 (a). Ralph Emerson, of the National Maritime Union and the American Radio Telegraphers Association, objected to the bill on the grounds it might cause a jurisdictional conflict between the Labor Standards Board and the Maritime Commission.

Arthur Besse, of Boston, president of the Wool Manufacturers Association, appearing against the bill, said he saw "nothing but disaster" in the delegation of powers by Congress to a board to fix wages and hours.

Super NRA Seen.

He said: "The bill is so cleverly and adroitly drawn that these powers are not easily discernible." He contended the bill would set up a "super NRA board," and said he was "against the bill 100 per cent."

Besse denounced "thuggery" by unions, and especially by the C. I. O. in its organization work, stating that he opposed the C. I. O.'s "organization by force."

Representattive Reuben T. Wood (Democrat), Missouri, asked Besse if he had read the records of the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee in their exposure of "thuggery, labor espionage and force used against employes." Besse said he had not, but that he knew of no such tactics within his own industry.

Earl Constantine, of the National Association of House Dress Manufacturers, was the final witness to appear. He objected to many parts of the bill, but centered his attack on the spreading of employment by the measure, which he said would result in overproduction and a weak price structure in his industry.

D. C. Boys' Club Orator To Compete for Honor

Bolling Bell, 15-year-old member of the Boys' Club of Washington, will leave for Cincinnati Sunday night to take part in the finals of the Junior Optimists oratorial contest. This contest will be a feature of the Optimist International Convention June 21-24.

Nation-Wide Housing Shortage Charged With Causing Strikes

shacks, it said, as they are forced "further and further down the scale of housing."

Following his talk with the President, Post told reporters the capital grant, alternative to the subsidy plan of financing new housing, will reduce the size of the program, will not be so flexible as the subsidy idea, and will not reduce rents sufficiently to reach the people most in need of aid.

He said that at the maximum the subsidy plan would cost some 25 per cent more than the capital grant, but insisted that, the latter scheme being flexible, thre is no necessity for using the maximum amount. Under the annual subsidy, he said, the Government has better control over the undertaking and can halt the flow of money if projects are not carried out satisfactorily.

Another point, he said, was that under the subsidy the people who will enjoy the housing in the future will be paying for it.

60 Per Cent Gift Required.

Post corrected the impression that under the capital grant a gift of 40 per cent would be adequate. The federation head said a 60 per cent Government contribution would be necessary, adding that thus the Government, making, for example, a capital grant of $100,000,000, would get only $140,000,000 worth of housing. A donation of only 40 per cent, he insisted, would not lower rents enough to accomplish the purpose sought.

Under the Wagner housing act, it was pointed out, only $50,000,000 would be appropriated by Congress in the first four years. Thereafter, about $30,000,000 annually would be required for the remainder of the period covered by the program.

A 60 per cent capital grant, however, Post said, would call for an outright appropriation of $600,000,000 for the $1,000,000,000 program set in the Wagner act, and he questioned whether Congress was in position to make such an appropriation now.

A 40 per cent capital grant would mean rentals of $9 or $10 per room in the housing provided, he said, while the 60 per cent grant would cut it to from $6 to $8, still too high in some parts of the country.

Predicts Adoption.

"The billion-dollar program provided in the bill," he said, "is not adequate—it is only the beginning. But a start must be made at once."

He predicted a program would be adopted at this session of Congress.

The federation statement declared that in Detroit "landlords are no longer satisfied with rentals of $50 and $60 a month for shacks that should be demolished. * * * Evictions are running at the rate of 4,000 a month." Factories wanting to increase production are blocked because there are no housing facilities for workmen who would have to be brought from other cities where employment is slack, it stated.

In Akron, Ohio, the federation said, rents have advanced since January 1, from 30 to 100 per cent, and now are "far in excess" of the 1929 level.

Norwich Gives Dr. Gregg Honorary Sci. D. Degree

Willis R. Gregg, chief of the Weather Bureau, received the honorary degree of doctor of science from Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., on June 7, it was reported here yesterday.

Dr. Gregg is a graduate of Cornell University, and has served in the Weather Bureau since 1904. For several years he was chief of Aerological Division, organizing a weather service in aid of commercial aviation. He was appointed chief of the Weather Bureau early in 1934.

Income Levy Restricted to Legal Citizens

Sub-committee "Caught."

Members of the sub-committee were caught napping on this change after successfully riding down previous revolts. Dirksen expressed the view that the definition of resident would offset the amendment. Later, however, he admitted the danger of widespread exemptions and stated he will carry the fight to the floor on Monday and insist upon a roll call vote.

"We'll see if the members will put themselves on record as voting to tax everybody but themselves," he said.

Schulte was successful in having stricken out a requirement that every person having a gross income of $5,000 or more file a return regardless of the amount of his net income.

Speaking in support of the motion, Hull pointed out that the paragraph would require members of Congress to declare sources of income other than their salaries from the Federal Government.

Seal explained that it had been inserted so that District authorities might check up on possible tax dodgers.

Mrs. Norton stated she would try to have District day moved up to a later day next week, but if unsuccessful she will call up the omnibus tax bill on Monday.

Earlier in the day the Kennedy sub-committee overrode attempts by their colleagues, under the leadership of Bigelow, to substitute a land tax and a $2 real estate levy for the income and business privilege taxes.

Schulte predicted that if the issue is presented on the House floor, as Bigelow said it would be, that "an overwhelming majority" of the members will vote for an increase in the real estate tax as a substitute for the income levy.

The full committee revolt against the omnibus tax measure began early in the day when Hull moved to strike out a section authorizing the commissioners to install parking meters when and if they see fit.

Members of the sub-committee joined Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, sponsor of the legislation, in voting down Hull's motion, 6 to 3. Palmisano and Quinn joined with Hull, while Mrs. Norton voted with the sub-committee.

Auto Tax Revolt Halted.

A threatened revolt against inclusion of the motor vehicle weight tax in a new highway fund, instead of the general revenues, was dissipated under arguments made by Nichols and Dirksen. Palmisano suggested that a gas tax increase be substituted, but the proposal was never put to a vote.

Hull also sought to amend the previously non-controversial tax on insurance companies by proposing that fraternal organizations that sell insurance be exempt. While the amendment was defeated, the sub-committee agreed to change the language of an exempting clause to include fraternal organizations that do not engage in business for profit.

The title of the bill setting up the highway fund and transferring the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the Traffic Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department to this fund in exchange for the revenue from the motor-vehicle weight levy and permit and title fees that now go into general revenue was adopted without controversy.

Likewise, the proposed levy on inheritances and estates was adopted without objection.

The business levy came in for more debate as members suggested exemptions of nonresidents or persons who do only occasional business in the District.

Hull asserted that the all-inclusion provision of the tax was without precedent and that a tax on traveling salesmen and transients could never be collected.

Bigelow called the tax an indirect sales levy and predicted that it will be passed along to the consumer, while Quinn attacked it as "vicious" and secondary only to the sales tax.

Controversy arose, but remained unsettled as to whether the committee will favor an amendment to change the definition of "gross receipts" so as to limit the three-fifths of 1 per cent business privilege tax to the interest collected by finance and loan companies.

Dirksen said he will perfect his amendment and probably offer it on the floor of the House.

Reminding members that assessments are made upon full valuation, he said:

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Baltimore S. S. B. U.

The employes' side of the difficulties recently and currently confronting the Baltimore Social Security Board Union in its relations with its workers was given this column yesterday by a committee, during a visit to Washington on union business. The union, it was disclosed, has sought Congressional support and "expects reverberations from this source in the immediate future." The commitee left a statement of background and aims, which pictures the Baltimore situation:

"The Social Security Board Union of Baltimore grew from 50 to 1,000 members in the last six months. It owes its rapid growth to its constant fight to maintain good working conditions in the Baltimore office. Time after time it found that the best interests of the employes conflicted with those of the petty administrators in Baltimore who sought to further their ambitions at the expense of the morale and health of employes in the Candler Building.

"The union fought the unfair medical examinations which were failing between 15 and 20 per cent, an unheard of percentage in the Government service. Through its militant campaign in the press and through delegations to the Civil Service Commission, the union succeeded in reducing this abnormal percentage to 2 per cent.

"The union also fought for the alleviation of a faulty speed-up system of production instituted by the Baltimore officials.

"Time after time the union went unhesitantly to the front to fight injustices in numerous individual cases. Thus we see laid the background for the reprisals which have taken place in the Baltimore office.

"Four of the most active union members were forced to resign before the end of their probationary periods. All were told that their work was satisfactory but that their 'attitude' was wrong. The union investigated the cases and demanded immediate hearings. The union charged the Baltimore officials with antiunion discrimination, and stated that they had overwhelming evidence to show 'union-busting' tactics on the part of these petty officials. The union felt that there was something incongruous about the Government's asking employers in private industry to maintain decent relations with labor and at the same time being itself a most backward employer in this respect.

"In reply to the union's request for hearings in these cases, the Washington board stated, in effect, that the four cases were closed, but that they were willing to discuss the question of anti-unionism in the Baltimore office. Not being satisfied with this reply, the union was forced to go to the press and to various trade unions and civic organizations for support. As a result, the Social Security Board in Washington reopened the case. A hearing was granted on May 22, in Washington, and it was agreed that in the event of an unsatisfactory decision for the union, the board and the union would jointly carry their case to the N. L. R. B. At the hearings of May 22 and June 1 (June 1st hearing was held in Baltimore), the union presented evidence to support its case. The hearing is not yet over and the decision by the board has not been rendered.

"New developments occurred while the hearings were going on. A fifth member has been forced to resign without notice, and two others have been forced to take annual leave in order to prevent their acquiring status.

"The union could only interpret these acts on the part of the Baltimore officials as further attempts to destroy and panic the union before the hearings are over and before the cases come before the N. L. R. B. These latest developments have caused the union to redouble its efforts in its fight.

"Too, they have embarked upon a campaign for Congressional support. This week they visited the offices of the following progressive Congressmen: Teigan, Bernard, Burdick, Amlie, Maverick, Allen (Pennsylvania), O'Connell, Coffee, and Senators La Follette, Lundeen, King and Berry. The union expects reverberations from this source in the immediate future."

Hazen Urges Unsurpassed D. C. Police

Would Correct Traffic But Puts Mounting Robberies First.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

As an efficient means of combating local crime and traffic conditions, highly trained law-enforcement squads—second to none in the country—were proposed for Washington yesterday by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

At the same time, Hazen said he intended to admonish District police to "keep on their toes" in view of the increasing number of armed robberies and traffic accidents.

"We are having far too many holdups," Hazen declared. "We want to correct traffic conditions, yes—but first I think it is important to catch these criminals who are robbing our citizens and breaking into private homes."

Transients Blamed.

The Police Department, Hazen said, is doing its best to bring speedy apprehension of law violators—both traffic and criminal. But the city's transient population, he declared, is difficult to control and their activities are hard to check.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, recently warned petty racketeers and hoodlums to leave town "or face the consequences."

Meanwhile, Attorney General Homer Cummings yesterday charged "gross laxity in dealing with the traffic in firearms" after an intensive Department of Justice effort to trace the source of guns used in the 5-year-old murder of Milsie Henry, local gambler.

Charles Harris, saved from the electric chair by Presidential intervention, is now serving a life sentence at Lewisburg, Pa., for the crime. Said the Attorney General:

"A careful investigation has been concluded. The shotgun used has been traced to a retail dealer in firearms in Philadelphia who kept no record of the purchase or subsequent sale, and the two revolvers used have been traced to another retailer in firearms in Minneapolis, who sold them to a person unknown, who in making the purchase used a fictitious name and address. The weapons could not be further traced.

Urges Firearms Bill.

"Some of the weapons sold at the same time," Cummings declared, "were later found on the scenes of gang shootings in Oak Park, Ill.; Newark, N. J., and Philadelphia. The facts revealed * * * offer a forceful argument for the necessity of enacting the firearms registration bill which I recently recommended to Congress."

In the District, according to Detective Chief Bernard W. Thompson, a person who has not previous criminal record "has little difficulty" in obtaining a gun. To purchase a weapon, under present laws, it is only necessary to visit a local dealer, file an application, wait 48 hours for it to be investigated, and then complete the deal, he said.

Advertising Club Inducts President

The Advertising Club of Washington inaugurated its new president, Wilmot A. Squier, at a luncheon meeting at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday.

It was a day for honors to the retiring president, Norman C. Kal. Having served the club for four years as its president, the board of directors and the club members presented Kal with a complete moving picture machine outfit.

The new board of officers and directors was introduced to the members yesterday by President Squier as follows: First vice president, Alvin Q. Ehrlich; second vice president, George Bernard Burrus; secretary, Charles J. Columbus; treasurer, Louis D. Krakow; and directors, J. A. Anderson, Walter C. Coates, James W. Hardey, Allen V. DeFord, A. D. Willard, jr., Ernest S. Johnston, B. G. Viens, Melvin C. Viner, Joseph D. Marshall, Curtis Hodges, and Past President Norman C. Kal.

Tolerance Is Stressed by Vice President at Commencement.

Declaring that ignorance breeds dictatorships, William G. Feely, vice president of Columbus University, urged 250 graduates of the school to use their education as an intellectual tool to save our country's democracy at commencement exercises last night in Memorial Continental Hall.

"Education is the enemy of intolerance which breeds and thrives only among the germs of ignorance," said the speaker. "Intolerance develops in ratio to the increase in the per capita ignorance of a Government's citizenry.

"Our democratic form of government grew out of the wisdom and tolerance of our forebears. It has been kept alive by their successors who, especially from the time of Thomas Jefferson on, have been firm believers in the spiritual benefits of education."

Feely said a diploma did not represent the end of an education, but rather the ability to branch "out into new or higher fields of mental endeavor."

Prizes Awarded.

Mgr. Francis E. Hyland gave the invocation and George E. Herring, chairman of the board of trustees, gave the welcoming address. Prizes were awarded by John R. Fitzpatrick, dean of the school of law, and James D. Cushman, dean of the school of accountancy.

Prizes were announced as follows:

The President William E. Leahy prize of a master of laws scholarship to the student of the third year class who attains the highest average for the three-year course was awarded to Herbert B. Hulse.

The Dean John R. Fitzpatrick prize of $25 to the student of the second year class who attains the highest average for the first two years was awarded to Edward A. Dent, jr.

The Charles W. Darr Memorial prize of $25 in cash to the student of the first year class who attains the highest average for the year was awarded to John P. Mohr.

The Doctor Cyril Wynne prize of $25 to the candidate for the degree of master of laws who submitted the best paper on a subject pertaining to the Constitution of the United States went to Elizabeth V. Pranzoni.

The patent law prize for the post-graduate student attaining the highest mark in patent law was awarded to Joseph Bayer.

The faculty prize of $25 to the post-graduate student submitting the best thesis was won by Constantine G. Economus.

The Professor F. Joseph Donohue prize of $25 to the member of the Sigma Delta Kappa Sorority who attains the highest average for the senior year was awarded to Frances Lavender.

Debating Awards.

During the school year there are two prize debates held by the Pi Chi Sorority and confined to the ladies of the school. A final debate is held in which the two winners and the two persons who received honorable mention in the previous debates take part. The winner of this debate is awarded the grand prize; The prize for the winner of the first debate went to Rose Mary Walker. The prize for the second debate was awarded to Mary J. Kelly. The grand prize of $20 for the winner of the final debate was awarded to Rose Mary Walker.

The master of commercial science scholarship to the student of the third-year class who attained the highest average for the three-year course was awarded to William Hugh McNaughton.

The Francis P. Brasmor prize of $25 to the student of the second-year class who attained the highest average for the year was awarded to Milton Polinger.

The Prof. John A. Reilly prize of $25 to the student of the first-year class who attained the highest average for the year was awarded to Sarah Rinehart.

The faculty prize of $25 to the student who attained the highest average in the postgraduate class was awarded to Albert C. Christian.

The Prof. James E. Gillis and Prof. Edward I. Mullins prizes to the students selected by the faculty as the most deserving were awarded to Mary C. Ahern and E. Edward McLean.

The faculty prizes for debating in the school of accountancy were awarded to Mary Repetti, Francis Grimes and George W. Loving.

The Chi Sigma Mu Fraternity prize of a key to be awarded to the member of the Chi Sigma Mu Fraternity who attained the highest average for the three years was awarded to E. Edward McLean.

The Crimson Club prize of $25 to the outstanding undergraduate in extra-curricula activities was awarded to William F. Parker.

Congress Library Guard Acquitted

In a second trial which concluded yesterday in police court, Stanley Gursky, a guard at the Library of Congress and a former champion Navy wrestler, was acquitted of assault charges brought by E. K. McDaniel, a sightseeing guide. Judge Edward M. Curran presided.

McDaniels contended Gursky had grabbed him and applied wrestling holds when he came up on the library steps to meet his wife. The guard asserted McDaniel attempted to solicit persons coming out of the library for a sightseeing trip

Gursky was defended by Joseph A. Donovan and Felix A. Russell.

Man Hurt in Fight.

Paul E. MaGuire, 16, of Hyattsville, Md., was taken to Providence Hospital late last night with a fractured skull, suffered, officials said, when he had a fight near his home. Hyattsville police were questioning a man said to have been MaGuire's assailant.

Annex Costs Are Sought By President

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen to ascertain what the added cost will be to the District and public utilities if the Pan American Union annex were built in Eighteenth street, just above Constitution avenue.

The request was made at a White House conference called by Mr. Roosevelt in an attempt to break the year-old deadlock over the site of the proposed annex.

Hazen immediately ordered District engineers and utilities experts to compile estimates on the cost of tearing out and replacing underground electric and telephone lines, water mains and sewer conduits to conform to a plan whereby Eighteenth street would be deflected westward below C street to permit construction of the annex at the foot of the street.

May Cost $150,000.

The Commissioner said he thought the total cost of alterations would exceed $100,000, possibly running as high as $150,000. Approximately $58,000 of this would be needed for repaving, and would be paid for by taxpayers.

Attending the White House conference, besides Hazen, were Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State; Director General Leo S. Rowe of the Pan American Union, Representative Fritz Lanham, chairman of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds; Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission; H. P. Caemmerer, secretary of the Fine Arts Commission, and Charles West, Undersecretary of the Interior.

Ickes Opposed Site.

President Roosevelt's role of arbiter was the latest attempt to settle the prolonged dispute, whose principals are the Pan American Union and Interior Secretary Ickes. It was precipitated by the latter last year when he demanded that the Union, which obtained congressional permission almost a decade ago to build its annex in Constitution avenue, select another location which would not block the Southern exposure of the then uncompleted Interior Building.

Earlier this year the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee conducted hearings on a bill sponsored by Ickes which would have straddled the annex across lower Eighteenth street. They were suspended pending action on the plan by the Pan American Union governing board, of which Secretary of State Hull is chairman.

Montgomery Acts As Bookmakers Move Into County

A gambling raid—rare in Montgomery County—shocked residents of Bethesda, Md., yesterday and all because Washington police recently have been rough on bookmakers.

State's Attorney James H. Pugh learned Washington gamblers, hounded by police here, have moved to nearby Maryland.

"We are not going to tolerate gambling in Montgomery County," he declared, as he predicted more arrests.

Five county policemen bore down upon H. C. Lamson's home at 110 Del Ray avenue. Police said they found five telephones with 25 switches which, they said, multiplied by six their capacity for taking calls, seized betting memoranda, and arrested Lamson on a charge of maintaining a gambling house.

10 From D. C. Are Injured On Highways

Ten persons were injured yesterday and late Tuesday night in traffic accidents here and in nearby Maryland.

The injured, all of Washington, are Joseph B. Walston, 28, of 1430 W street northwest, driver; Miss Mary Winkley, 26, of 1740 New Hampshire avenue northwest, and Miss Hazel F. King, 28, of 1948 Calvert street northwest, unconscious when admitted to the hospital. A fourth occupant escaped injury.

Woman Injured Here.

Mrs. Elsie M. Soper, 22, of 30 Adams street northwest, escaped with cuts and bruises when the automobile she was riding in with her husband overturned and landed on a parked car at First and O streets northwest.

Struck by a truck, the automobile, operated by Paul M. Soper, 30, was knocked almost 50 feet before it came to rest half on top of a car owned by Louis Crawford, colored, 1329 First street northwest.

The truck, which also overturned, was driven by Allen E. Coates, colored, 26, of 97 Fenton place northeast. Neither driver was injured. Mrs. Soper received treatment at Sibley Hospital.

Raymond L. Sarbaugh, of Lumberton, N. C., received head cuts and bruises when his automobile crashed into a truck on the Baltimore boulevard near College Park. He was treated at Casualty Hospital. Sarbaugh's wife and 7-year-old daughter, Rachel, were not hurt.

Four Badly Hurt.

Elnora E. Powell, colored, 25, 1517 Corcoran street northwest, was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for bruises after she was knocked down by a car near her home.

Francis Clements, 74, of 4831 Colorado avenue, was critically injured late Tesuday night, and three other persons, including Paulo G. Hasslocher, commercial attache of the Brazilian Embassy, were hurt severely when two automobiles collided at Thirty-fourth and Macomb streets. Clements' skull was fractured and he was badly cut. Physicians at Emergency Hospital said he had only a fair chance to recover.

Miss Ellen Diamond, 25, secretary to Hasslocher and a passenger in his car, suffered a broken shoulder. Miss Edna Holbrook, 47, of 25 West Kirke street, Chevy Chase, Md., said by police to have been driving the car, suffered cuts on the leg. Hasslocher's head was cut.

Bar Group Votes For Divorce Study

The District Bar Association has voted to investigate alleged fraudulent procurement of divorces it was learned yesterday. This action was taken after a meeting Tuesday night at which Jean Boardman, attorney, stated a large percentage of divorce cases here are fraudulent.

Boardman, who specializes in divorce practice and who was active in obtaining the District's liberalized statute, declared: "a good law is being used as an instrument by unscrupulous persons to obtain fraudulent divorces."

A committee of seven as authorized to inquire into existing conditions and recommend to the association "measures best calculated to remedy the situation and protect the public."

State Dept. Lodge Cuts A. F. G. E. Tie

Action Based on Refusal to Seat Delegates Elected Here.

The troubled situation of the American Federation of Government Employes was further enlarged yesterday by a resolution from Department of State Lodge, No. 71, reading itself out of the national organization.

They based the action on the refusal of the District Department of the A. F. G. E. to seat certain delegates the lodge had offered and because the lodge has "felt a growing dissatisfaction with the American Federation of Government Employes as inadequately serving the purpose for which it was established."

"This dissatisfaction," it was stated, "has been intensified by the arbitrary, undemocratic, and unreasonable actions of the District Department with respect to delegates duly elected to represent this lodge in that department." All the delegates denied seats—for reasons which the lodge says it has been unable to learn—"are persons in good standing in the Department of State and have the full confidence of Lodge 71."

Joined for A. F. L. Affiliation.

The members of the lodge said they joined the A. F. G. E. "largely because of its affiliation with the American Federation of Labor."

Meanwhile, the seven lodges suspended by the A. F. G. E. national office for acting independently as a committee against false economy will hold a mass meeting at 8 o'clock this evening in the Willard Hotel. Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, and Representative R. G. Allen (Democrat), Pennsylvania, will speak.

The seven lodges this week demanded that there be an open door to the room in which their case will be tried Saturday morning by the executive council of the A. F. G. E. Col. Charles I. Stengle, A. F. G. E. president, met with a committee of the suspended lodges yesterday, and, according to lodge spokesmen, refused to state whether their request would be granted.

Split Further Widens.

The split has further been widened as Loans and Currency Lodge, which previously had voted to support the committee against false economy, decided to invite suspension from the national office by formally affiliating with the committee.

The national office distributed questionnaires yesterday to all members of the suspended lodges. The members were asked whether they had had an opportunity to consider the action undertaken by their delegates —whether they had voted for the mass meeting, and whether they would approve of disciplinary action against their officers and delegates. Stengle previously had stated that he did not believe that all the members of the seven lodges were in sympathy with the moves that have caused the split.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Two Veteran Players Point Way to Cinema Success For Old-Timers of Theater Whose Spirits Droop

IN "Make Way for Tomorrow," the new Paramount picture that was unspooled for the drama desks in the private projection room of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Exchange yesterday afternoon, the roles of the parents are taken by two veterans of the stage who have demonstrated that "old-timers" still may look forward to a future in Hollywood. These two are Beulah Bondi and Victor Moore.

BELL.

Beulah Bondi, being from my native town of Valparaiso, Ind., I have known all her life and most of mine. For a long time she refused to relinquish the right to return to the stage at any time that a promising role offered itself, but of late seems to have been won over completely to the celluloids. It was she who did so fine a piece of work opposite Lionel Barrymore, with Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, in "The Gorgeous Hussy." It was she also who played the role of Emmy throughout the long run of "Street Scene" in New York and appeared to advantage in Dan Totheroh's short-lived play of "Distant Drums" that opened here on the stage of the Belasco Theater.

It is a matter of positive knowledge that Miss Bondi once shocked Sam Goldwyn out of a year's growth, or sleep, or something, by refusing to sign a long-term contract for appearances in the films. Her heart still was in the theater, like Helen Hayes', Katharine Cornell's and a few others. Mr. Goldwyn never could understand that.

Victor Moore, of course, is one of the old wheel-horses, in a manner of speaking. For years he played the varieties with his late wife, Emma Littlefield, in "Change Your Act, or Back to the Woods," or something of the sort. It was a vaudeville classic. Then, of a sudden, George M. Cohan discerned the potentialities of the whimsical Moore methods as something of value to the musical comedy stage and starred him, with Fay Templeton, in "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway," a hit that ran interminably on Broadway and then took to the road with similarly happy results.

"Make Way for Tomorrow" opens tomorrow on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater and will reward the investigative impulses of all those who venture to see it. There is a well-chosen cast in support of these two seasoned players who lend the drama the greater portion of its tug at the heart.

Among the pictures cited in the Will H. Hays pamphlet of "The Best of the Month" a few days ago was "Slim," which I said had not as yet been definitely booked in the Capital. It comes out now that "Slim" will be the feature of the screen bill at the Earle Theater for the week beginning Friday, June 18.

It also comes to my knowledge that Benny Goodman, headlining this week's stage bill at the Earle, has about decided to decline that offer to lead the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra this summer. Benny, I am told, feels that his band should be merged with the symphony and that the entire program should be of "swing" 'm'usic. That, he thinks, would be very fine, but trying to extract "swing" from the more or less solemn "symph" might be something else again. So he will go on to Hollywood and make that picture.

It seems to me one of the distressing ironies that the most recent autographed photographs of the late Jean Harlow should have reached the drama desks in Washington on the day of her death. They were gorgeous examples of skillful portraiture and were inscribed, as usual, in the white ink that Jean always used.

* * * *

In this connection, it seems worthy of note that the Rialto Theater, with an eye to public interest, has switched its bill completely about for its reopening on Sunday. "Hell's Angels," the Howard Hughes production that brought Jean Harlow to eminence on the screen, will be the major feature and with it will be shown "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," starring William Powell, with Jean Arthur. "Roman Scandals," originally booked for this date, has been postponed, but, one surmises, will come along in due course, with Eddie Cantor in the stellar role.

That was a nice breeze that blew papers all over the library yesterday, don't you think?

Is Naval Officer in Keith Film

In the airplane feature, "Wings Over Honolulu," which opened yesterday on the screen at the RKO-Keith Theater, the principal male role is played by handsome Ray Milland, whose likeness appears above. His leading woman in this subject is Wendy Barrie, and William Gargan does himself proud in a role similar to that played by John Litel in the stage version of Commander Wead's "Ceiling Zero."

Loew's Palace Starting Week With 'Make Way for Tomorrow'

At Loew's Palace Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, the chief feature will be "Make Way for Tomorrow," in which the principal roles are played by Victor Moore and Beulah Bondi, supported by a Paramount cast of conspicuous merit. The story is one of deep human appeal, relating to the divergence of viewpoint between two generations. The bill will be completed by the usual short-reel subjects and "Events of the Day."

"I Met Him in Paris" is the title of the film play that will bring Claudette Colbert to the screen of the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Melvyn Douglas appears in the chief masculine role opposite the star. The scenes of the drama are laid in Paris, aboard an ocean liner and in the Swiss Alps. On the stage the entertainment will be provided by Clyde Lucas and His Orchestra.

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy are the pictured costars of "Parnell," to be presented as foremost screen feature for the week beginning tomorrow at Loew's Capitol Theater. They are supported by a cast of celebrities in this intimate story of the life of the great Irish statesman. The stage headliner for the week will be Herman Bing, that eminent twister of the king's English who comes to life from the films with all of his delicious dialects.

"The Story of Louis Pasteur" is being returned to the screen at the Metropolitan Theater next week, beginning tomorrow, with Paul Muni and Josephine Hutchinson in the leading roles. This is a picture of the first rank that deserves to be seen by all discriminating theatergoers. Short reels and full news added.

The next attraction at the Belasco Theater, following the return engagement of "Ecstacy," will be "Loneliness," a picture addressed to adolescent boys and girls. Short-sound subjects and newsreel will complete the new bill.

The Rialto Theater will reopen on Sunday with a double-feature bill. The major attraction will be "Hell's Angels," the picture that brought the late Jean Harlow to fame; the secondary attraction, William Powell, in "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford."

"Dancing Lady," the film that "discovered" Fred Astaire and Nelson Eddy, will be revived at the Little Theater next week, beginning Sunday. The stars of the picture, of course, are Clark Gable, Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone. Short subjects and newsreel will complete the bill.

Spencer Tracy, Franchot Tone and Gladys George will be the pictured stars at the Columbia Theater next week, beginning tomorrow in a repeat F street engagement of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "They Gave Him a Gun." The bill will be augmented by short sound subjects and a new issue of "Events of the Day."

The Trans-Lux Theater for the new week will offer 40 minutes of new world events, as caught by the camera, supplemented by added short-reel attractions, screen cartoons and a special reel devoted to "A Day With the Dionne Quintuplets." The bill will run, as usual, to a total length of an hour and a quarter.

Glen Echo Park announces a full midsummer schedule for the impending week. All of the 50-odd amusement devices are in operation and the Crystal Swimming Pool is open day and night for the benefit of those who wish to cool off or acquire a coat of tan on the "sea beach" that adjoins this perfectly equipped natatorium.

The Wilson Line S. S. City of Washington is making regular daily trips to Mount Vernon and nightly cruises down the river to Marshall Hall and other points of interest. A nice way to avoid the heat of the city.

The S. S. Potomac, having recovered from its recent relapse, has resumed its Colonial Beach schedule and also makes night cruises down the picturesque Potomac to "breathe out" the tired cliff dwellers of the Capital.

Farm Owner.

Naval Aviation Is Background Of Keith Film

By Nelson B. Bell.

"WINGS OVER HONOLULU," Universal picturization of a story by Mildred Cram, adapted to the screen by Isabel Dawn and Boyce DeGaw, featuring Wendy Barrie and Ray Milland, with William Gargan, Kent Taylor, Polly Rowles, Mary Phillips, Samuel S. Hinds, Margaret McWade, Clara Blandick, Joyce Compton and Louise Beavers. Directed by H. C. Potter. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon at RKO-Keith's Theater.

The aeronautical forces of the United States Navy once again have been turned over to the uses of the films in this Universal production of a story that places romance slightly above the purely technical maneuvers of service wing aircraft.

"Wings Over Honolulu" is a tale that has its inception on a peaceful plantation in the South, where Lauralee Curtis' birthday is being celebrated. Lauralee has a suitor who is ardent in his affection. Then she meets a couple of vagrant aviators who are compelled to make a forced landing in her cornfield. With one of them she falls in love "at first sight," as the saying has it, and they are precipitately married. The groom immediately is ordered to duty in Hawaii.

On the transport, going over, Lauralee learns something of the jealousy, the spite and the social barriers against which she will be forced to combat, because, it seems, a great many other young women also were in love with Lieut. "Stony" Gilchrist. But that is not the end of it.

So They Elope.

In Honolulu, Lauralee is constantly harassed by the thought of what may happen to her husband while he is engaged in routine air drills. At about the time she is ready to "crack up" from mental anxiety and the fuming of those who resent her marriage to "Stony," Gregory Chandler reappears on the scene, and it is decided that the easiest way out for all concerned is for them to elope.

At this juncture in the slightly incredible story, "Stony" steals a plane and crashes. Learning of his plight, Lauralee turns back the elopement yacht and does what she can to succor her husband. He is ordered up for court martial and she takes the witness stand, in heroic gesture, to make plain to the court the genesis of the whole sorry and melodramatic business.

"Stony" is convicted, but given clemency, in view of the romantic circumstances surrounding his case—something that might or might not happen in the orderly procedure of Navy business, I dare say you are familiar, more or less, with the dramatic formula that has been followed here.

The two principal roles are played with fair effect by Ray Milland, as "Stony," and Wendy Barrie, as Lauralee. Both are agreeable and pleasant young people, but neither does anything in this item that points to immediate personal stardom. Miss Barrie is a beautiful young woman, but still an ingenue; Mr. Milland, a stalwart leading man whose physical equipment, so far, outruns his dramatic technique. William Gargan does perhaps the best work in the cast as Lieut. Jack Furness, whose role is something like that of John Litel's in the stage version of Commander Wead's "Ceiling Zero"—a happy-go-lucky chap who takes nothing too seriously and has a fine time in the mere act of being alive.

"March of Time" Added.

Kent Taylor is the lover who never quite gets to first base and other parts of importance are played by Polly Knowles, a catty sort of young woman; Mary Phillips, Samuel S. Hinds, who doesn't look quite like an admiral; Margaret McWade and Clara Blandick.

There is much squadron flying and a large measure of aviation enthusiasm engendered during the action of the picture.

The companion feature of the bill is the new issue of "The March of Time," in which three subjects are treated—Poland, the buffer state between Germany and Russia; dogs in their relationship to human welfare and the Government's efforts to reclaim the barren lands of the "dust bowl." Poland long has been "on the spot" in Europe and this "clip" will make it plain why. Dogs, as the "seeing eye" of the blind, have won themselves a place in official regard; they are now permitted to travel on trains with their masters and otherwise exercise the rights of "citizenship." The "dust bowl" sequences are slightly repetitious of views that already have been screened many times. There still is a lesson to be learned from viewing them and an emphasis laid on the dire need of remedial action.

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, June 9.

JOE LEWIS, Broadway's funniest clown, missed the dinner-show at the closing of the Frolics Sunday night. Six weeks earlier, at that same club, he heeded the Show Must Go On tradition of the theater, and wept tears during his hilarious routine. The patrons laughed at his new turn in comedy—unaware that Vincent Joseph, Joe's nephew, had been killed by a truck a few hours earlier . . . I reported these details the next morning. Lewis read the item, immediately phoned Metropolitan Hospital and spoke to the doctors who were attending Richard Joseph there.

RICHARD was the younger brother of the lad who was killed. He had been confined to the hospital for many months—suffering from a strange malady . . . Lewis was his favorite uncle. And, perhaps, because Lewis's name had appeared in this space so often, the boy never missed reading this column and kept a scrapbook of his favorite paragraphs.

"DON'T LET the kid read Lyons today," Lewis told the doctors, and explained that reading of his brother's death might retard the youngster's progress. Better to wait until he had been steeled to the knowledge . . . And so that afternoon, when Richard asked for this column, the physicians shook their heads. "Not now," they advised. "Because right now we're going to experiment with a new kind of medicine. We've tried many things to help you. We think this one will work . . . So open your eyes—wide . . . wider." Two drops were placed in each of Richard's eyes. Harmless drops—but potent enough to blind him for 24 hours, thereby keeping from him the news of his brother's death.

THE STORY can be told now . . . for Lewis missed Sunday's performance because he received word that Richard Joseph had died.

"What's the idea," Morehouse asked, "of paying more attention to them than to me?" . . . "Well," Cerf replied, "there's no road company of 'Miss Quis!'" . . . Cerf, incidentally, is treasuring the postcard he received from Frank Sullivan, whose book was published simultaneously with Pearl Buck's "The Good Earth." After the first sales reports were out, Sullivan wrote: "Dear Bennett, is it too late to change the title of my book to "The Good Earth?'"

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, June 9. — Settin' Around (United Artists): Hollywood concedes that Samuel Goldwyn, kingpin of this lot, is the showman in the picture business. He has proven it by stars developed and hit pictures made. No other movie-maker has a greater flair for the artistic than this former glove salesman from New York's East side.

TAYLOR.

But watching the buzz of activity on his sets, I couldn't avoid thinking Dame Luck ought to share top billing with genius in Hollywood. For example, take John Hall, playing the lead in "Hurricane," and being touted as a new Goldwyn find. John lived in Tahiti as a boy and speaks Polynesian. He is a champion swimmer, a 6-foot good-looker, a very capable actor. Goldwyn tested 150 men for the role—and then an actor's agent introduced him to Hall, who lived three houses from the producer.

Four years ago, Goldwyn had an option on a college boy named Arlington Brugh—salary $35 a week. But he released the option because he thought the boy was too thin to please the feminine fans. And that's one on Goldwyn, for "Skinny" is doing fairly well these days under the name of Robert Taylor.

Goldwyn brought a girl named Vilma Banky to America—and made millions on her pictures. He brought another girl named Anna Sten to Hollywood—and her pictures flopped

So it strikes me that even Goldwyn needs Lady Luck for a godmother in this goofy business of picture-making.

On the "Dead End" set (Goldyn paid $160,000 for the screen rights), I found all work stopped and the director tearing his hair. Sylvia Sidney had broken her fingernail! She wears them long—as long as a Chinese mandarin's—and the broken nail stood out like the freckle on the end of Myrna Loy's tip-tilted nose. A prop man was hurriedly sent for some of these trick nails the girls paste on, for what reason no mere man can guess. When he returned, the false nail was cemented on, filed down and painted to match Sylvia's own. It took about an hour and cost the studio as much as a columnist's annual income. Wonder how they will enter that on their list of tax deductions?

Barbara Stanwyck paid the "Dead End" company a visit while I was there and stood regarding the East Side tenement street like one in a dream. Willie Wyler, the director, came over to her between scenes. "Not pretty, is it?" he said with a sweeping gesture that took in the littered street, clothes hanging out on tenement windows and grimy river wharf, all in exact replica of a section of New York.

"Yet it is!" Barbara said. "It's beautiful!

"I ought to know. See that tenement—the third one on the left? I was born there!"

I stared at Barbara for minutes before I recognized her. She looked like a 50-year-old slattern in her makeup for final sequences of "Stella Dallas." Under a flashy ill-fitting dress, she wore thick rolls of cotton padding that distorted her own shapely figure into a mass of ungainly bulges.

"If you're embarrassed at not knowing me, you should have seen Joel McCrea," she laughed when I finally stammered hello. "I met him a few minutes ago, nodded graciously and waited until his face wore just the proper blank expression. Then I made a nasty crack about actors who get too 'high-hat' to recognize old friends. I never saw a man so flustered."

Contract Bridge

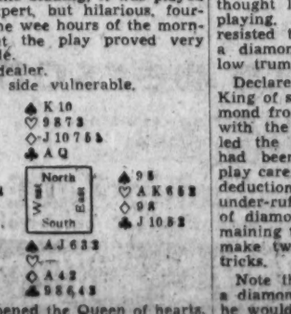

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

The Outcome of a Mistake.

If this column were confined to an account of the excellent contracts that were reached by expert players using good bidding methods, it would speedily become dull. Likewise, interest would die, after a while, in perfectly played hands. Most of us play in games where a bad bid or a bad play is not very unusual—and where some of them are contributed by ourselves. We know that some of the most fascinating situations are the outcome of a mistake.

Take the hand discussed today. The contract was a weird one: four spades. (Please don't expect me to give you the bidding; it was played by an expert, but hilarious, foursome in the wee hours of the morning.) But the play proved very remarkable.

West opened the Queen of hearts, and South ruffed. Faced with an almost impossible contract, South proceeded to play the hand very carefully and almost succeeded in bringing it home.

A club was led and dummy's Queen was finessed. Another heart was ruffed in the South hand, and a second club was led to dummy's Ace. A third heart ruff gave South an entry for another club lead. West hastily, and properly, discarded his last heart to prevent South from making his Jack of spades by ruffing. Dummy's ten of spades held the trick, and South returned to his own hand with the Ace of diamonds.

A fourth club was led, and West thought long and carefully before playing. After due deliberation he resisted the temptation to discard a diamond and played instead a low trump!

Declarer ruffed with dummy's King of spades and returned a diamond from the dummy. West won with the Queen of diamonds and led the King of diamonds. East had been watching his partner's play carefully and made the correct deduction from West's remarkable under-ruff. He trumped the King of diamonds and returned his remaining trump. Thus, West had to make two of the three remaining tricks.

Note that if West had discarded a diamond instead of under-ruffing he would have been forced to lead a trump up to South's Ace-Jack.

Vareikis said he was exposing a "new nest of state enemies," eight executives who for years had been engaged in "systematic wrecking" in the pay of Japan and Germany. They were:

Kotin, head of the Far Eastern transportation coal trust; Komroff, head of the Great Suchan coal mines near Vladivostok; Fleet, head of the Far Eastern lumber trust; Gerbik, vice manager of a section of the lumber trust; Petkevitch, vice manager of the district planning committee; Vedensky, head of the Kamchatka development trust; Adamovich, director of the Far Eastern Railway Co., and Lemberg, vice manager of the new Baikal-Amur Railway, an important unit in Soviet military plans in the Far East.

Charged With "Wrecking."

Vereikis said Kotin, Komroff and Fleet especially had been guilty of "wrecking" which greatly damaged defense preparations against Japan.

(Ever since Japan and Germany last November concluded an anti-Communist agreement, Moscow leaders have referred to them freely as potential enemies.)

One of the army shifts in the west apparently meant that Marshal Nikolaevitch Tukhachevsky, demoted from the post of vice commissar of war May 11, has been definitely shelved.

He had been named commander of the Volga military garrison after his demotion. But today Gen. M. G. Efremoff was announced as the new Volga commander, and there was no mention of Tukhachevsky's future.

The frontier shifts were these:

Gen. Jeremy Ubelevitch was removed from command in White Russia, which touches Poland, and was given no new appointment. Gen. I. P. Beloff was chosen to replace him.

In the Leningrad district, north of White Russia and bordering the Baltic countries, Gen. I. E. Yakir was succeeded by Gen. P. E. Dybenko, and there was no disclosure of another appointment for Yakir.

He had been transferred to Leningrad from the Ukraine, in southwestern Russia, less than a month ago. There has been no announcement of a new Ukraine commander.

In the Trans-Caucasus, which borders Persia, Gen. N. V. Kiubysheff was appointed commander. What will happen to his predecessors was not disclosed.

Another change was at Moscow, where Marshal Semion M. Budenny was named chief of the military garrison. There was no mention of whether he would continue as army cavalry leader.

May Be Under Arrest.

The announcement of Tukhachevsky's replacement at the Volga garrison gave strength to unconfirmed reports he already is under arrest with several other high army officers in a government drive to stamp out all opposition, potential or actual.

Among those said to be held with Tukhachevsky are R. A. Muklevich, assistant commissar of the newly formed defense of industry commissariat and former head of the air force and navy; Gen. Kork, head of the Frunze Military Acauemy, equivalent to West Point; Gen. Robert Eideman, head of the Osoavikhim, an organization for building up a civilian reserve force; Brig. Gen. Gorbacheff, acting chief of the Moscow garrison; Gen. Y. I. Alksnis, vice commissar for defense in charge of aviation, and A. I. Guekker, chief of the army's foreign section.

Several of them were close friends or associates of Gamarnik, who has been accused in newspapers since his death as a "Trotskyist" plotter.

Views on Taxes Misinterpreted, Asserts Morgan

He Opposes Evading Dues, But Defends Legal Avoidance of Tithes.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 9.—J. P. Morgan today declared himself opposed to "tax dodging or tax evasion," and said his remarks on taxation, made upon his arrival from Europe on Monday, had been misinterpreted by "some people."

"I certainly have no sympathy with tax dodging or tax evasion, and had no thought of defending such practices," the financier said.

"My interview on shipboard with newspapermen last Monday took place before I had seen President Roosevelt's message on income-tax evasion, with Secretary Morgenthau's letter. I am surprised at the interpretation that some people seem to have put on my off-hand remarks, for I certainly have no sympathy with tax dodging or tax evasion and had no thought of defending such practices. What I feel strongly is that when a taxpayer has complied with all the terms of the law, he should not be held up to obloquy for not having paid more than he owed."

Tax Avoidance Defended.

The financier, who returned from Europe only last Monday, made a vigorous defense of methods of tax avoidance that are within present laws.

"If the Government objects to tax evasion, it should change the laws, which can be done by Congress, but the taxpayers must not be insulted," he said, evidently referring to the President's message to Congress on the subject.

It is the business of taxpayers to stay within the laws and not to seek to rectify legal inadequacies by individual overpayment, he said, adding:

"Congress should know how to levy taxes, and if it doesn't know how to collect them, then a man is a fool to pay the taxes.

"If stupid mistakes are made it is up to Congress to rectify them, and not for us taxpayers to do so."

Morgan said he had never incorporated his yacht because he didn't think it worth while, but defended the unknown millionaire, referred to by the President, who did so.

"Why shouldn't he incorporate?" he asked. "You do only what you are compelled to do by law, for it is never any pleasure for any one to pay taxes. You don't do any more than you have to. It is just as bad to pay too much as too little."

Tax Dogers' List Awaited.

By the Associated Press.

Congressional leaders predicted last night the first move of a proposed investigating committee will be to make public the names of wealthy persons accused by President Roosevelt of tax evasion and avoidance.

The leaders said they expect those named then will be given an opportunity to appear before the committee and defend themselves.

Chairman Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, of the Senate Finance Committee, announced today he will ask the Senate to agree to changes made by the House in a resolution ordering the investigation.

After Harrison's announcement, leaders forecast that the Senate would complete Congressional action authorizing the investigation today. This would permit the inquiry to begin next week.

Europe Today

At the opening of the 1887 conference Lord Salisbury defined the gathering as "the beginning of a state of things which will have great results in the future." At the opening of the present conference, on May 14, Premier Baldwin put the same thought more precisely, as follows:

"Though we shall discuss other important subjects, we are agreed that questions of foreign affairs and defense shall be our main subjects. It is fitting that they should be. For we are met at a time when the international situation is difficult and even threatening, and the responsibility rests upon us to see that our deliberations not only are of service to ourselves but also may help in some measure toward the solution of those international problems which are perplexing the world."

This emphasis on international co-operation, extending beyond the empire itself, is a new development in the history of imperial conferences, now so developed an institution that there is a permanent secretariat, in the British colonial office, to conduct routine business between the sessions, held every four years or so. And the broad scope of the present conference helps to explain why the conception of the British commonwealth as a league of nations is now being stressed here, not merely for descriptive purposes but as a matter of policy.

NONE MORE DEVOTED TO CAUSE OF PEACE.

No country today is more passionately devoted to the cause of peace than is Great Britain. The fact is as undebatable as is the primary reason for it. This country has nothing to gain from any war, anywhere, and it has, literally, a world to lose.

The ties holding together the infinitely complicated structure of empire, built up in every quarter of the globe by the people of this little island, are difficult enough to maintain at best. Under the strain of a major war they would be subjected to terrific strain, even if Great Britain herself were not involved. War between Japan and the United States, for instance, would be ruinous to Australia. War between Germany and Russia, an Indian delegate to the conference tells me, might easily fan to flame the sparks of social revolution in his country.

Realization of these dangers made both Great Britain and the dominions firm supporters of the League of Nations from its outset. British statesmen of all parties have clearly seen the connection between the security of the empire and the success of the Geneva program. In words used at the present imperial conference by Premier Lyons of Australia, "the declared policy of the British nations has been based on the League's concept of permanent peace, ensured by the principles of conciliation, arbitration and collective action."

LEAGUE HAS NOT BEEN NOTABLY SUCCESSFUL.

But, as Mr. Lyons went on to intimate, the League of late has not been notably successful either in conciliating, arbitrating or acting collectively. Accordingly the Australian government, and those of the other dominions also, have insisted that "an examination of the bases of the British commonwealth foreign policy and of the position of the League should be one of the major considerations of this conference, with a view to the formulation of a consistent and unified empire policy."

The result of these considerations, now busily under way in London, is that the nations of the British commonwealth—Great Britain, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa, probably India, possibly Ireland, are seeking to constitute their own competent league within the demonstrably incompetent though much more universal body established by the Treaty of Versailles.

BRITISH LEAGUE WILL BE PREPARED.

And the British league will take pains to see that it possesses the teeth in which the Geneva organization has been notoriously deficient.

The magnitude of Great Britain's rearmament program has too much obscured the activities of the dominions in this direction. At the present conference each of them has reported willingness to supplement British preparedness activities to a greater or less extent. Canada, feeling secure by reason of her proximity to the United States, is least inclined to make expenditures to this end.

It takes little reflection to see the manifold political advantages which spring from this new conception of the British commonwealth as a smaller, but practically far more effective, league than that which centers at Geneva.

In the first place, the idea emphasizes the complete nationhood of the dominions and is thereby shrewdly calculated to soothe the restiveness of those which have active aspirations for full independence. The development would tend to placate the more extreme Indian Nationalists. And it would perhaps enable the Irish Free State to achieve a full republican form of government, even including Ulster, while remaining within the elastic scope of an undefined covenant of association. An Irish republic as a part of the British Empire would be anomalous; not so a republic within a British league.

ALL MEMBERS SHARE LEAGUE RESPONSIBILITIES.

In the second place, the league principle would place responsibilities as well as advantages on all the members. For instance, in the past it has always been understood that if Canada were attacked Great Britain would come to her aid. The new idea implies also that if Great Britain were attacked, assistance to her from Canada would be equally automatic, not from sentiment but as the result of a binding compact between equals.

This is close to what the Australian premier had in mind when he urged the present conference to issue a statement at its close "which will demonstrate to the rest of the world that the countries composing the British commonwealth of nations are prepared to act together in support of the maintenance of international law and order."

In the third place it is felt that the Geneva organization may be revived by the consolidation of the bloc of its British members which is suggested. Or, failing such revival, at least other nations, akin to the British in democratic traditions and ideals, might be disposed to cooperate with the commonwealth in its developed form more closely than would be the case with a centralized empire.

Such potential associates in a British league would obviously include the so-called "sterling area"—those countries whose currencies are already tied to the British pound for commercial reasons.

THIS CONFERENCE BREAKS A PRECEDENT.

There are some who think that the statement of Mr. Baldwin, quoted above, implied foresight of such development. No previous imperial conference has seen its sessions opened with a categorical statement that it should work toward "the solution of those international problems which are perplexing the world."

While the tremendous implications of the present conference in London are clear to all who are closely following its trend, there is no likelihood that they will anywhere be set down in black and white. That is not the technique of a nation which seldom gives hostages to fortune.

At the 1887 imperial conference Lord Salisbury deprecated "all ambitious schemes of constitution making." Similarly, Mr. Baldwin, in his final public speech as prime minister last week, warned this conference against any attempt to limit the evolution of the British commonwealth by constitutional definition. The text of his remarks was the saying that "the letter killeth and the spirit giveth life."

But the characteristic spirit of the British commonwealth can be preserved only by the perpetuation of democracy. And to secure that political system Great Britain and her dominions are endeavoring to league themselves together more effectively in a way which will not exclude far-reaching co-operation with any and all nations having similar fundamental ideals.

Newspaper Guild Plans Nation-Wide Job Drive

St. Louis, June 9 (AP).—The American Newspaper Guild was urged today by its convention's committee on unemployment and WPA to work for a permanent Federal department or Academy of Arts which would provide jobs for all unemployed professional and "white collar" workers in a Nation-wide cultural program.

The committee's report, accepted by the convention, recommended that the guild "take the leadership" in demanding "a WPA job for every able-bodied man in the country" at prevailing union wages for a full week's work. The committee suggested also that the guild establish a "national re-employment service" for newspapermen.

Recipes Prove Strawberries Are Versatile

By Rebekah Blake.

The strawberry season is still going strong; so include them in your menus as often as possible while they last.

When you serve strawberries don't simply have strawberry shortcake or preserves, for the best of foods will become monotonous if repeated too often. There are so many ways of serving this versatile fruit, so start now to try new recipes.

The Post Recipe Contest for strawberries presented many new ideas for strawberry dishes. The first prize for this contest, $3, was awarded Mrs. E. C. Hicks, 4304 Tenth street northeast, for her recipe for strawberry biscuit glace with apricot sherbet.

The recipe for strawberry nut ham slice, which was submitted by Mrs. Joseph W. Ireland, of 719 Third street northeast, won the second prize, $2. Mrs. Frank E. Edwards, Capitol Heights, Maryland, won the third prize, $1, for her recipe for strawberry filled pancakes with orange sauce, and Mrs. J. C. Trimble, 1701 Second street northeast, was awarded the fourth prize, $1, for her recipe for strawberry waffles. The fifth prize, also $1, was won by Mrs. Margaret C. Hancock, LaPlata, Maryland.

Strawberry Biscuit Glace With Apricot Sherbet.

1 cup strawberries, mashed
1 pint whipped cream
½ cup granulated sugar
2 eggs, beaten separately
1 teaspoon vanilla

Apricot Sherbet.

1¼ cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice
1½ cups water
2 egg whites
Pinch of salt

Drain apricots. Cook water, sugar and apricot juice 10 minutes. Add smooth apricot puree, lemon juice and salt. Freeze to a mush then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. In a wet ring mold pour strawberry biscuit in center and surround with apricot sherbet. Freeze. Serve, decorated with whipped cream and a few choice berries.

Mrs. Ireland's recipe:

Strawberry Nut Ham Slice.

1 slice ham, 1 inch thick
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon molasses
1 cup fresh strawberries, crushed
¾ cup sugar
½ cup walnuts, chopped
2 tablespoons lemon juice
8 whole cloves

Place the ham, water, and molasses in a shallow baking pan and bake in a moderate over (350 degrees F.) for 1½ hours. Combine the strawberries, sugar, nut meats and lemon juice and heat to boiling. Remove ham from oven, stick cloves into it, and cover with the sauce. Bake 15 minutes longer. Serve very hot, garnished with parsley. Serves four.

Here is Mrs. Edwards' recipe:

Strawberry Filled Pancakes With Orange Sauce.

1 quart strawberries
Orange juice

As soon as each strawberry pancake is baked, place it on an individual dessert plate. Put a few sweetened strawberries across the center of pancakes, fold the two sides over the berries, and turn over on the plate to hold the edges down as this keeps the roll in shape. Serve with hot orange sauce poured over it.

Strawberry Pancakes.

2 eggs
¾ cup milk
½ cup mashed strawberries
1 cup all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon melted butter

Beat egg yolks well with rotary beater. Beat in milk and mashed strawberries and juice. Sift flour once before measuring, then sift flour and salt together, and beat into liquid mixture. Beat in melted butter and lemon juice, beating until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake until lightly browned on hot pancake griddle. Makes 10 pancakes 5 inches in diameter.

Orange Sauce.

1-3 cup melted butter
1-3 cup orange juice (2 small oranges)
2 tablespoons sugar

Melt butter slowly over low heat. Remove from heat. Blend in sugar and orange juice. Pour over baked pancakes. Enough for ten cakes. Serve these as a dessert. They are delicious.

Mrs. Trimble's recipe follows:

Strawberry Waffles.

2 cups flour
2 eggs (yolks and whites beaten separately)
4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
Milk, sufficient for medium batter

Sift dry ingredients together. Add beaten egg yolks with milk to dry ingredients and beat hard. Add melted shortening. Last fold in stiffly beaten whites.

Have waffle iron smoking hot. After pouring in almost enough batter to make a waffle spread 2 tablespoons of strawberry preserves or cooked sweetened fresh strawberries over this batter in the iron and over this spread a little more batter, and cook about 3 or 4 minutes. Serve with butter while hot.

Here is Mrs. Hamcock's recipe:

Stuffed Angel Food.

1 angel food cake (large)
2 quarts strawberries
1 pint whipping cream
1 cup sugar

Turn angel food cake upside down and cut slice off top. Scoop out inside and fill with strawberries that have been washed, hulled and sprinkled with sugar. Put top back on cake and ice all over with whipped cream. Keep out a few berries to decorate top of cake with. Slice and serve at once.

For Dancing—A Sophisticate or a Ballerina?

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

How Can She "Live Down Tragic Moral Mistake?" Asks Girl Who "Still Sees Same Young Man."

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: How can a girl live down a tragic moral mistake? I am still going with the same crowd and still have to see the same young man. I still love him even though he has told me he doesn't love me and never will love or marry any girl. I am 19 and he is 23. My family wants me to give him up entirely, as I get so despondent when I don't see him for a while. I am not interested in anything. This worries my mother, who knows all that has happened and who tries to be patient with me.

* * * *

If I could only go away where I wouldn't see him, perhaps I could forget. Is there any hope of my forgetting and how can I best overcome this obsession? I have a good position and a fine home and family. It would be terrible if they knew the truth (no one knows but my mother, and she says if I don't cure myself something more serious may happen). Mother has tried so hard to help me but I just don't seem to see her viewpoint. I do hope your advice, added to hers, will make me understand. But now I wish I could die to forget it all. Do you think I can live down my mistake and eventually learn really and truly to love someone else?

UNHAPPY GIRL.

DEAR UNHAPPY GIRL: No doubt you are familiar with the scriptural exhortation, "Get thee behind me, Satan." So far as your happiness and well being are concerned, this boy is Satan incarnate. The only way to be rid of his evil spell, to overcome the temptation he represents, is to flee him and all that might remind you of him; to put him behind you as you would the devil himself. If this means giving up your good position, your comfortable home and your fine family in order to start anew somewhere else, I think you simply have to make that sacrifice. Since your mother knows all that has happened, and knows, as well, that no amount of persuasion on her part or pitiful determination on your part can be depended upon to break the slavish bond which currently holds you in living hell, it seems to me she ought to realize the wisdom of your going away; and should be the most ardent advocate of such a course.

* * * *

Without letting them know the extent of your "mistake," I think members of your family should be made to understand that you are desperately unhappy to the point of illness, as a result of this ill-advised heart interest and that your mother and you have decided the only remedy is for you to go away. A family purse might be raised, and family influence brought into play to the end of locating you in a position, and in respectable living quarters, in some not-too-far distant city. Perhaps you have relatives elsewhere who would take you in as a paying guest until you can find a job. Or you might consider going away to school—even working your way through school—and specializing in commercial courses, home economics, or some other field of professional endeavor open to women, which might eventually lead to a successful and happy career.

* * * *

Though you may have to make such a change without any help from your family, still I advise you to do it. Where there's a will, there is usually a way, and the time to make the change is now, while you can still present good references. If you go on as you are, your work and your reputation are bound to suffer and you might even lose your present position.

* * * *

Through enlarging your mental and social horizons, you can outgrow your infatuation for this boy, and more speedily than you now think possible. If you were to go away to a new environment and throw yourself into work or study, you might easily recover your senses within a year. What you feel is not love. It is blind, foolish, destructive enslavement of the senses. Your present scheme of things is too small and low-vaulted. This boy's tantalizing proximity throws a black shadow over your life, completely blotting out the sunshine of normal happiness and hope. You can, if you will, reduce him to the dimensions of a pinpoint on the landscape by creating new, interesting possibilities for self-development in other surroundings, amongst new friends and new business associates.

* * * *

As life expectancy is measured, most of your life still lies ahead, and it behooves you to see that it yields some measure of decent, self-respecting happiness. It is absolute folly to hang on where you are, hoping the boy will have a change of heart. He can no more change his nature than a leopard can change its spots, and he is just as dangerous a playmate, so far as you are concerned.

* * * *

The only way to "live down a tragic moral mistake" is to prove one's sincere repentance and reform by steadfastly avoiding thereafter any company and all circumstances which might lead to a repetition of the same mistake. Undoubtedly you will fall in love again; but the question which should properly concern you is this—will any man ever truly love me, and the answer is—only if you develop qualities of mind and character that are worthy of love. This means that you must live by an honorable, self-respecting, self-disciplining code. You can't be a weak-willed easy mark and win any man's profound, enduring devotion.

.Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Ice Cream as Food.

"My children are very fond of ice cream, especially in the summer, but I am wondering whether it will cause indigestion in later life if they eat too much of it."

There was for a long time a prejudice against ice cream, and still is in certain places in Europe, where it is regarded as an outlandish American dish, but I thought in this country that prejudice was all over. It is, as a matter of fact, a splendid dish, especially in the summer time.

Dr. McCollum, the eminent specialist in nutrition at Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: "There are many mothers who testify that their children dislike milk as a beverage and ask how it is possible for them to introduce a sufficient amount of dairy products into their diet. One of the answers to this question is ice cream. Almost without exception people of all ages like it."

Dr. James Tobey says that ice cream is frozen heat.

It is a truly American dish. The first ice cream sold west of the Alleghenies was sold in Daniel Drake's drug store in Cincinnati. Daniel Drake was one of the most eminent medical pioneers in the Middle West.

It is said that in France in 1774 the Duc de Chartres was served a delectable ice cream with the ducal coat of arms sculptured on it. Whether this was ice cream or not, we do not know.

Dolly Madison served ice cream at a White House dinner in 1809, although Mrs. Alexander Hamilton is said to have been the first hostess in the National Capital to offer this delicacy to her guests.

Ice cream is quite a complete food. It contains protein, fat and carbohydrate as well as vitamins and minerals. It is especially rich in lime. A half pint of ice cream contains as much lime as one and a half pounds of bread. Ice cream contains anywhere from 700 to 1,200 calories a pound, depending on whether milk or cream is used in its manufacture.

The natural affinity which young people have for ice cream in the summer time is easily explained.

The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Button-on Frills Brighten Dresses

Button-on frills of foamy lingerie or lace make it easier than ever to freshen up dark summer sheer dresses and suits. Worn in clusters on necklines, pockets and sleeves, they look like tiny doilies with a button in the center of each.

When they need to be laundered, they can be slipped off in a jiffy and replaced just as quickly. You don't have to put in overtime sewing and ripping. Simply squeeze them through frothy soapsuds, rinse well, and roll in a towel for a moment to remove as much moisture as possible. Iron them on the wrong side, and presto! they are ready to be buttoned on again.

Ankle Length Dancing Frock Is Here to Stay

Short Gown Has Important Place in Night Life Styles for Fall.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

WHEN THE ankle length dance frock first appeared it was frowned upon, not considered chic by the majority of designers and a short life was predicted for it. But that was several months ago and styles and minds have undergone a drastic change since then. The short dance frock is not only here for the summer, but according to advance information from fashion authorities, manufacturers and designers, it will lead the fall parade of evening styles. It is not considered strictly formal however, which gives the floor-length gown, an important place in fashion night life.

As a compromise for persons who have not as yet accepted the ankle length dance frock and who, for the summer at least, are tired of trying to keep long gowns off the floor while dancing and from under other persons' feet while standing, there is the uneven length. This new hemline, which is up in the front and down in the back, was originated in Paris, but has been definitely accepted on both sides of the Atlantic. Its popularity is increasing daily as it serves for both formal and semi-formal occasions, and is acclaimed a smart new evening note for the mid-season.

Regardless of which of the three evening gown lengths you prefer, there is a wealth of material from which to make a choice in interpreting the chosen styling. Cottons at present are leading the fabric array—both in crisp and sheer versions and in sturdier piques and linens. Silk crepes, taffetas and satins, comprise another group, competing with chiffons, marquisettes and sheers. Sleekness is also vying with old-fashioned femininity, in the style race for supremacy. At present, the odds are about even.

Molded bodices with wide flowing skirts that sway gracefully while dancing; Grecian-influenced classic models with simple draping treatments; sheaths of satin topped with fitted boleros; dirndls, reflecting the peasant influence which has spread over the entire wardrobe; off-the-shoulder models of the Southern Belle versions—these all play important roles in the summer evening drama.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, June 9.

IT BEGAINS to look as though boys and girls who went on that amazing junket to New Mexico aboard the Santa Fe's astounding Super Chief train a month ago are going to have a permanent alumni-ae association. Already we have met and partied twice since that breath - taking buggy ride, remembering this and that with glee and brushing up on the charming "Varsoviana" dance which was one of the nicest things we brought back from the Southwest.

ALICE HUGHES.

Our second party was held only the other day, at the Fifth Avenue penthouse studio of Robert Welles Richie, a brilliant photographer who was the official snapper on the trip. The main idea of this jamboree was to gape at the pictures he took on the trip—scenery, personalities and fallen bodies, mostly unidentifiable. In reality, however, it was a grand jamboree, with dancing, music by a little Mex band, elegant sandwiches and canapes, and a very busy bar. The studio itself was worth a visit. Anyone who cared to see New Jersey could do so by merely looking out a window, but a penthouse view of New Jersey is not considered a high treat by the average Gothamite. This studio, by the way was once occupied by the brilliant photographer, Margaret Bourke-White, who got famous shooting Russia a few years ago.

All the fashion girls who made the trip turned up—lovely Emmy Ives, of Vogue; Gertrude Bailey, Kay Silver, Kay Daniels—and for once we didn't talk shop, but Santa Fe trip. The only blot on a bright occasion was a picture Richie snapped of me asleep in my compartment on the Super Chief after a hard night spent taking the lads' money at poker. Though I offered Bob a duke's ransom for the negative, the cad only sneered. Even so, it was a ducky afternoon.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The last lingering doubt in local minds concerning the arrival of summer was dispelled yesterday when our gallant constables appeared for work without their tunics. They still maintain a handsome appearance, for they are required to wear shirts of a standard shade of blue, with a black necktie. And what a relief it must be to those poor traffic cops who swelter daily in the Fifth avenue maelstrom. That's my notion of a perfectly awful life . . .

The good old Normandie took out a very fancy load the other day—one of the shiniest I've seen in a year. Gladys Swarthout shed her beauty on the sailing, and those two grande dame inseparables, Anne Morgan and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, contributed most of the dignity. And young John Jacob Astor and his wife were aboard, too. The youthful Jack takes being an Astor very seriously, indeed. The same day the Washington took away our new lady Ambassador, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who will keep her eagle eye on goings-on in Norway for a spell . . .

* * * *

Some people never learn. World-sick people, for instance, keep leaping into the harbor from The Battery, one of the best patrolled areas in town, and are usually fished out while still breathing. Only the other day Ruth McGildery jumped despairingly from a Battery pier, and was promptly rescued by our famous "Buck" McNeil, a dockmaster of 60 who has saved no less than 50 lives at that very spot.

* * * *

I forgot to mention that the Normandie also took to France roly-poly Elsa Maxwell, the society party-planner, who has suddenly begun to make money at an appalling rate. She has sold many a magazine article this year, and just before sailing signed a hefty radio contract for next winter. Ah, I fear good old Elsa has gone commercial on us!

British Ruler's Birthday Is Marked by Party Here

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Washingtonians—particularly those who attended the garden party at the British Embassy yesterday—highly approve this custom of celebrating the birthday of Britain's King in June. Even those who never have heard of the "trooping of the colors," or who don't quite understand why the birthday flag ceremony in the London celebration is more effective in summer, agree that there's nothing like an English garden in June for a birthday party.

For years, there was no question as to when the sovereign's birthday was to be celebrated because the late King George was born June 3—a very suitable date for garden gayety and the historic trooping of the colors. If Edward VIII had remained on the throne, his birthday—June 22—also could have served without shifting. But with the present King's birthday falling on December 14, a change in the day of the celebration was indicated. June 9 was the official selection; hence the garden party given yesterday by His Britannic Majesty's Ambassador and Lady Lindsay, in honor of His Britannic Majesty's forty-first birthday, which actually passed six months ago.

The invitations said "weather permitting," and as it turned out the weather not only permitted but co-operated. The weather man, in fact, seems to favor garden parties at the British Embassy. Yesterday's was the fourteenth or fifteenth one given by the present Ambassador and his wife, and Lady Lindsay can recall that it rained only twice.

Lawn Inviting.

Anyway, the sweeping lawn never looked more inviting than it did beneath yesterday's sun. Guests coming out of the house paused on the steps, after greeting the Ambassador and Lady Lindsay, to take in at one glimpse the velvety expanse dotted with women in gayly-colored frocks and men in white or formal afternoon attire.

At one end of the lawn was a refreshment booth under a striped marquee where strawberries covered with whipped cream, punch, dainty sandwiches and cakes were served from a long table, decorated with a huge bowl of gladioli and roses. Around the house and at the end of a flower-fringed path was another marquee, where "sauterne cups" proved popular. Inside, in the embassy's spacious dining room, guests gathered around a table where tea was served at a long table centered with a mirrored plaque bearing a silver vase filled with daisies, gladioli and roses.

Inside and out, strains of music—now classic, now swing—came from a leafy bower in the garden where a white-clad orchestra played during the party, while guests wandered in and out of the house, up and down the lawn, or along the quaint by-path that leads up a terrace to the swimming pool and tennis court.

1,500 Enjoy Party.

The Diplomatic Corps and official Washington predominated the guests at the garden party celebrating the coronation almost a month ago. Residential Washington was more in evidence yesterday. Oh, there were diplomats and officials, too, but there were many more residents with no official connection. College presidents, the clergy and the "cave dwellers" were very much in evidence among the 1,500 guests who arrived at the party early and stayed until it was over.

Members of the British Embassy staff assisted the Ambassador and Lady Lindsay in looking after the guests. The wife of the Commercial Secretary of the Embassy, Mrs. Henry Frank Heywood, was here, there and everywhere, looking most attractive in a semitailored frock of pencil blue with a broad-brimmed hat of white and blue. Like Lady Lindsay, who favors simple attire and yesterday wore a green print frock and a small dark hat, those who acted as her unofficial assistants were dressed in similar fashion. Miss Irene Boyle, who makes her home at the embassy, wore a navy print dress, and Mrs. H. H. Sims, wife of the Attache of the Embassy, also chose a frock cut on simple lines.

Many Notables Present.

Mrs. McCook Knox and her daughter, Miss Kathleen Knox, were glimpsed chatting with Miss Anne Carter Greene and later with Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips. Baroness von Below found herself completely surrounded with acquaintances wherever she turned, as did Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely and Mrs. John Biddle.

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Roper—she wore a long, flowered chiffon frock with a broad-brimmed white hat—and the Secretary of War and Mrs. Woodring, the latter in a powder-blue frock with a big hat to match, were among others to arrive early.

The Very Rev. Noble Cilley Powell, newly appointed dean of the Washington Cathedral; Dr. C. Ernest Smith, pastor emeritus, of St. Thomas, and Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor of the American University, and Mrs. Gray were popular guests at the event. Dean Powell is still commuting to Washington from Baltimore, he said, since he has not yet decided where his home here will be.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, in a cool-looking green ensemble; Miss Mable Boardman, in a print frock; Mrs. James J. Davis and Mrs. Sumner Welles were among the other guests who could not take steps without meeting a crowd of acquaintances.

The Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, was seen in what appeared to be an extremely serious conference with the host, Sir Ronald Lindsay, while Lady Lindsay chatted with a number of guests who collected around her.

Italian Envoy Attends.

The Italian Ambassador, Signor Fulvio de Suvich, whose absence at the coronation party was noticeable, was present in full force yesterday. Among other members of the Diplomatic Corps glimpsed here and there were the Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki; the Ambassador of Argentina and Senora de Espil, the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Castillo Najera, the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun, the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky, the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander. The Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnick and Senorita Laura de los Rios, daughter of the Spanish Ambassador, who reports her trip to the West Coast "was wonderful."

Among others seen at the garden party were Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Moran, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Morris Clark, Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell, Mrs. William Pearson, Miss Lydia Loring, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Crittenden Calhoun, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Miss Rose Merriam, Mrs. Royal McKenna, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin and Representative and Mrs. Wesley Disney.

Married Yesterday in St. John's

MRS. EDWIN DENBY, Jr.

Elizabeth Lyster Wed to Ensign Edwin Denby, Jr., at St. John's; Rev. Hart Officiates; Couple to Live in New London.

ANOTHER WEDDING important in Army and Navy circles—there have been already half a dozen so far this week—took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Elizabeth Bissell Lyster, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William John LeH. Lyster, of Washington, became the bride of Ensign Edwin Denby, jr., son of Mrs. Edwin Denby, of Besonfield Hills, Mich., and the late Mr. Denby, Secretary of the Navy during the Harding Administration.

Historic St. John's Church opposite Lafayette Square was the scene of the ceremony, which was performed by the rector, the Rev. James Oliver Hart. Two large seven-branch candlesticks decorated the white altar, flanked by white gladioli and snapdragons.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. The white satin wedding gown she wore belonged to her aunt, Mrs. William Strone, of New York. Trimmed with princess lace, it had a rose-point lace cap from which fell a long tulle veil. The bride carried a prayer book with streamers of lilies of the valley.

Miss Marion Denby served as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Joseph Flagg, of Portland, Me., and Misses Fontaine Flannery and Josephine Rice, of Washington. All were dressed in frocks of marquisette in a deep turquoise shade, made with full skirts and short tucked jackets. Their leghorn hats were trimmed with turquoise ribbon, and they carried bouquets of spring flowers.

Mr. George Harrison Barbour 3d, of Detroit, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Philemon Kennard Wright, of Easton, Md., and Mr. Sibley W. Hookler, of Detroit.

Following the ceremony there was a small reception for friends and out-of-town guests. The latter group included Mrs. Denby, the bridegroom's mother; Mrs. T. C. B. Brodbeer, of Detroit; Mrs. Henry Lyster, also of that city; Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Heurber, of Grosse Point, Mich.; Thomas B. Lyster, of Niagara Falls; Mr. and Mrs. William S. Strong, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Denby, cousins of the bridegroom, also of that city, and Miss Frances Barbour, of Detroit.

The reception was held at the apartment of the bride's parents, 2029 Connecticut avenue, and the drawing room was decorated with masses of pink peonies. Mrs. Lyster wore a navy blue chiffon frock with a broad-brimmed matching hat.

After a wedding trip, Ensign Denby will live in New London, where the bridegroom is stationed. Mrs. Denby attended the May School in Boston and the Madeira School in Washington. Her husband was graduated from Annapolis in 1935.

Nippon Group Visiting Here

Roosevelt Will Greet Good-Will Tourists at White House.

The Japanese Economic Mission which is now making a good will tour of the United States, arrived in Washington last evening and is making its headquarters at the Carlton Hotel.

Members of the mission include some of the outstanding business men of Japan and several of the members are accompanied by their wives.

During the day they will be received by President Roosevelt at the White House and will confer with the Secretary of State, Mr. Hull, and Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Roper.

Secretary and Mrs. Roper will entertain the delegates and their wives at a garden party in the afternoon. Tonight they will be guests of the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Hirosi Saito, and Mme. Saito at an informal dinner at the Embassy.

Among those in the party are Mr. and Mrs. Chokyuro Kadono, from Tokyo. Mr. Kadono is chairman of the mission and has many friends in Washington, having received part of his education in this country. He is executive director of the Japan Economic Federation and president of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. Kisoji Fukushima are also among the party. Mr. Fukushima worked in this country for several years and has visited here frequently.

The mission will leave Washington for New York on Saturday, and sail for Japan on the Normandie, June 16.

Shouses Give Dinner Dance On Farm Near Vienna

By Dudley Harmon.

Wolf Trap Farm—the owners resent your calling it an "estate"—was the scene of a gay dinner dance last evening when Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse entertained for their friends. Guests who had never been to the Vienna, Va., home of the Shouses, were thoughtfully provided with maps by the hosts, but even then there were a scattered few who got a bit bewildered by the many twists and turns in the road to Wolf Trap and arrived breathlessly late.

More fortunate than many other "al fresco" hosts of the season were Mr. and Mrs. Shouse last evening. Wolf Trap Farm has extensive grounds, but the house itself is comparatively small, even with the rooms which the owners have built on from time to time as Christmas or birthday presents to members of the family.

So chairs and tables were set out on the lawn, with its view of the rolling hills and winding dirt roads in the distance. The president of the American Liberty League is famous for his mint juleps (he was born in Kentucky) and last evening these were much in evidence. The host serves them in big tin cups, and to him "freshening" means making his guests a brand new drink in another cup.

Tables Set on Lawn.

Although the invitations specified "informal dress," guests arrived in costumes varying from formal attire to that of the American farmer and the Mexican peasant. But the costumes added color to the already colorful scene on the lawn, where tables had been set up and where a cold supper, with the exception of hot soup, ladled out by Mrs. Shouse, was served.

An improvised platform had been set up for the colored orchestra, whose swing music added zest to the evening. Other featured types of entertainment included a racing game in the shipboard style. The Shouses are known for their attendance at and enthusiasm for horse races. Horses in the game were backed by various people, among them Mr. Newbold Noyes and Mr. Arthur Krock, and the Greek Minister, Mr. Demetrios Sicilianos, whose horse won the first race.

Notables Present.

Among the guests were Mrs. William MacCracken, who was dressed in a Panamanian costume; Secretary and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring; Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel; Mr. Anthony de Balasy and Baron Paul Schell, of the Hungarian Legation; Mr. and Mrs. L. N. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George Garrett, Mrs. George Sloane, of Warrenton, Va.; Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenburg.

Also Mr. James Landis, Mr. Tom Eliot, Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn Waltman, Mrs. Higginson Rogers, Mrs. Higgins Chapin; the Rumanian Minister, Mr. Charles A. Davila; the Belgium Ambassador, Count van der Straten-Ponthoz; Mme. de With, wife of the Netherlands Minister, and the Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik with their daughter, Mme. de Sibour.

Miss Kekenes Is Married to Robert Simpson

The marriage of Miss Virginia Kekenes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter E. Kekenes, and Mr. Robert L. Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Simpson, took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, Father Edward J. Nestor officiating.

Sister Is Maid of Honor.

Miss Julia Kekenes was her sister's maid of honor, and she wore a yellow mousseline frock and a large picture hat trimmed with yellow roses. Her bouquet was also of yellow tea roses. The other attendants were the Misses Helen and Mary Kekenes, also sisters of the bride; Miss Rose Pappadeas, a cousin; Miss Mary Roche, Miss Mary C. McCarthy and Mrs. Stephen McCarthy. They all wore gowns of French nude mousseline and large hats and carried American Beauty roses.

Mr. William F. Simpson was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Wilfred A. Simpson, Mr. John A. Simpson, also brothers of the bridegroom; Mr. Claude O. Cochrane, Mr. Charles Pappadeas, Mr. William A. Saccardi and Dr. Stephen A. McCarthy.

Miss Ann Pace To Be Married

The wedding of Miss Ann Elizabeth Pace, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Ernest Milton Pace, to Ensign Warren Eugene Oliver, will take place on Saturday at 4:30 at the First Presbyterian Church in Lansdowne, Pa. A reception at the home of the bride's parents, 828 Lindale avenue, will follow the ceremony.

Miss Bertha Lockhart, of Washington, will be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Villette Sullivan, of this city; Mrs. John Ellison, Miss Roberta Reid, of California, and Miss Katherine DeLany, of Annapolis.

Lieut. Richard Oliver will serve as his brother's best man, and the ushers will be Lieuts. John Ellison, Victor Soucek, William Howard, Edward Clexton, Robert Jones and Richard Anderson, all of the United States Navy.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Broas, of 1728 Hobart street, formerly of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Miriam A. Broas, to Mr. Paul T. Vanness, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Vanness, of Rumerfield, Pa. The wedding will take place August 14.

Mrs. Douglas Entertains.

Mrs. James Douglas, jr., entertained at luncheon yesterday in her home in Chevy Chase in honor of Mrs. Norman Clarke, jr. The guests were Mrs. Carlton Smith, Mrs. Walter Meayers Edwards, Mrs. John H. Clarke and Miss Mary Baldwin Clarke.

Entertains at Luncheon.

Mrs. William M. Ballinger was hostess at luncheon yesterday in her home in Spring Valley. Among her guests were Mrs. William A. Roberts, Mrs. E. E. Hadley, Mrs. Roy C. Miller, Mrs. Richard Thompson, Mrs. Roy Rommel and Mrs. George S. Carll, jr.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Appreciation of the ease with which housekeeping is done in America was expressed yesterday by a group of women, all natives of other countries who met in the kitchen of the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross for what might be termed "an international cuisine conference." The cooking demonstration was an international exchange of recipes by members of the food and nutrition class sponsored jointly by the Red Cross chapter and the Americanization School of the District. In the group were women from Germany, Italy, France, Estonia, England, Greece, Norway, Russia, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland.

Mrs. Hildur Bettum was there in native Norwegian costume and prepared a fish pudding which was one of the favorite dishes made. Mrs. Martha Grimm and Mrs. Anita Helbig, of Germany, both talked informally and commented on the simple way in which things are done in this country with the aid of modern conveniences. They explained that in Germany the housewife devotes most of her time to her home and is pleased to do so, but at the same time, they said they enjoyed the leisure they found here and the opportunity for such activities outside the home as the cooking conference. All were of the opinion the American housewife little generalizes how fortunate she is compared to her European sister, in the abundance and variety of fresh fruits and vegetables the market affords throughout the year.

The food and nutrition class, the first of this type ever conducted here, was organized by Miss Dorothy J. Donnally of the Americanization School for a group of European women who are applying for citizenship. It was started at the beginning of the year with a small enrollment and has increased steadily in popularity and size. A registration fee is paid by each class member. The Red Cross and the Americanization School provide the instructor and supply the classroom, texts, and materials for the course without expense to the student. Mrs. William G. Finn, who is instructor of the class, is a student of home economics and a graduate of Iowa State Agricultural College. She has taught American standards of food and its preparation. The members of the class have shown particular adaptability to the subject with an excellent grasp of food knowledge. Many of the students are women with university degrees from their own countries.

Mid-Week Series Is Opened; Fashion Show Is Feature.

CONGRESSIONAL COUNTRY CLUB opened its series of mid-week dances last night with a large gathering of members and guests at the clubhouse. After the dinner a fashion show was presented out-of-doors. A rustic bridge had been constructed above the swimming pool. Japanese lanterns were hung overhead, and the fashion models promenaded to the strains of soft Hawaiian music.

Club members who participated in the style show included Mrs. R. M. Austin, Mrs. O. R. Folsom-Jones, Mrs. Clifford McClain and Mrs. Robert Avis.

Among those who entertained parties of friends at dinner were Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Ryan, Mr. Lewis M. Lynn, Mr. Carlisle Bargeron, Mr. Verne Simmons and Mrs. Simmons, who was in charge of arrangements for the affair. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. William Kerlin, Mr. Frank ImMasche, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. James Styles.

The club pool opened May 15 and has been an increasingly popular spot as the summer has progressed. An innovation in the hospitality program at the clubhouse this season is to be the cocktail hour on Saturdays from 5 to 7, beginning this week.

Last night's party was given through the co-operation of the entertainment committee, of which Mr. John F. Maury is chairman, and the swimming pool committee, headed by Mr. Bancroft Foley.

Mrs. Lee Heads Shrine Group

MRS. FLORENCE K. LEE, of Washington, yesterday afternoon was elected supreme queen of the Daughters of the Nile, sister organization of the Order of the Mystic Shrine, in annual convention here with headquarters at the Mayflower. She succeeds Mrs. Maud E Luxford, of Denver. Other officers elected include Mrs. Coral Mickelthwaite, of Tacoma, Wash., princess royal; Mrs. Roxie Mathis, of San Antonio, Tex., Princess Tirzah; Mrs. Cora Evans, of Terre Haute, Ind., Princess Badoura; Mrs. Levella K. West, of Seattle, re-elected as princess recorder, and Mrs. Laura McGregor, Butte, Mont., elected as princess banker.

Members of Samla Temple of Washington yesterday entertained the visiting patrols at luncheon at the Lotus Tea Room before the session. Mrs. Lena E. Beatty, past queen, was chairman of arrangements, and Mrs. Edith Merz, was vice chairman, assisted by Mrs. Helen Brink, Mrs. Katherine Harwood, Mrs. Frances Roach, Mrs. Lila White and Mrs. Maud H. Shelton. There was community singing led by Mrs. Henrietta Vance.

Last evening at the closing banquet, followed by a formal ball, each of the patrols presented a stunt for the entertainment of the guests. Mrs. Vance also was in charge of this program. The Washington group sat together at a large table and presented songs under her direction. The enthusiasm with which they sang old-time favorites inspired their audience to join with them before their stunt was over.

The Cleveland group, of which Mrs. Catherine Baker is captain, presented a hill-billy radio program; the Cincinnati patrol, with Mrs. Edna Houser, captain, gave a sketch, "The First Women's Jury, 1892;" the Indiana patrol, Mrs. Pearl Vancleave, captain, presented the "Highwood Revue," and the Albany patrol, of which Mrs. Anna Hunter is captain, "McNamara's Band."

Alumnae to Meet.

The Washington Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Kappa and Zeta Chapter of Sigma Kappa of George Washington University will have a joint meeting tonight at Largo Farm, Md., the home of Mrs. Ednah Koontz. This assembly of college and alumnae chapters is an annual affair, taking place during the June graduation activities of the university.

Miss Simpson To Be Married

The wedding of Miss Frances Darlington Simpson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Augustus Simpson, of Washington, to Dr. Hayden Kirby-Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Kirby-Smith, of Mexico City, will take place at 8 o'clock this evening. No previous announcement of the wedding date had been made.

The ceremony will be in the apartment of the bride's parents, at 2101 Connecticut avenue, the Rev. Henry Snyder, officiating. The bride-to-be will have as her only attendant Mrs. Farmer Vanderbilt, of New York. Mr. Edward D. Skidmore, of Mexico City, brother-in-law of Dr. Kirby-Smith, have arrived from Mexico City to attend the wedding and are staying with Dr. and Mrs. Simpson.

Rubicans Staying At the Shoreham

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rubican, of New York City, and their daughters, Miss Kathleen Bodine Rubican and Miss Anne Rubican, are in Washington to attend the graduation exercises of their daughter and sister, Miss Jane Collins Rubican, at the Madeira School.

Mr. and Mrs. Rubican and their daughters are staying at the Shoreham. They will go to Williamsburg, Va., before returning to New York.

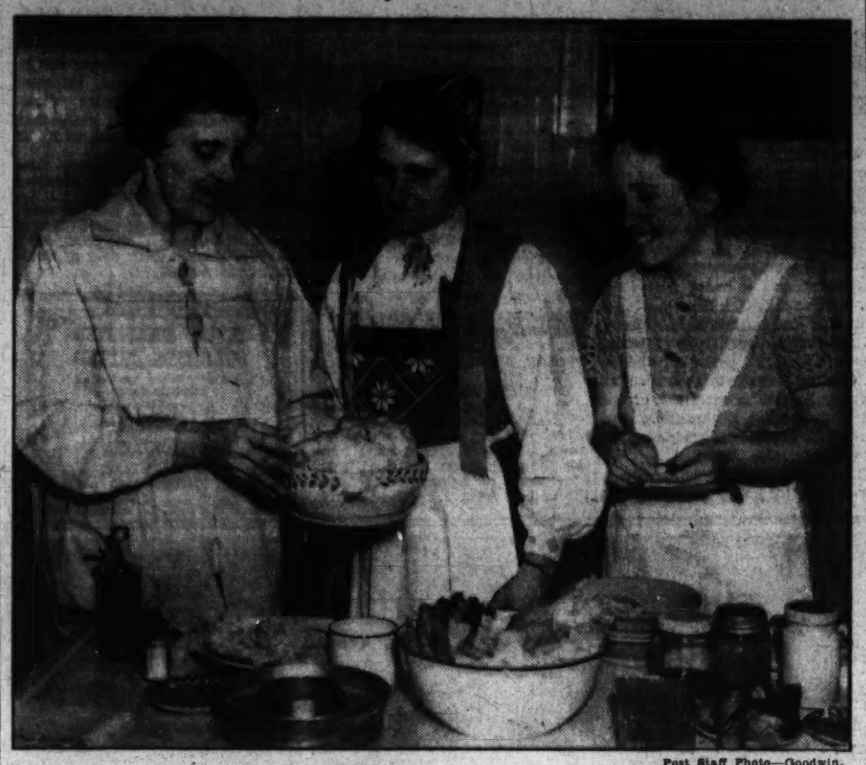

Chinese Dinner Sunday.

The Oriental Culture Group, organized in April by Miss Ida Hoyt Chamberlain, composer, and her brother, Mr. Culver Chamberlain, former United States Consul in China, will close its first season with a Chinese dinner Sunday evening, June 13, at the Chinese Lantern Cafe.

Mrs. Wilson Guest.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was the luncheon guest yesterday of Mrs. Henry M. Darey, of Wayne, Pa., who is spending a few days at the Mayflower.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

FEMININE MEMBERS of the sunshine committee of Bethany Chapter, O. E. S., are looking forward with keen interest to the lawn party tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Corinne Edwards, in Silver Spring. The head of the committee, you will note, is John R. Bradburn—which means the men are doing the entertaining.

Usually, when there's a party, the women of the committee have meetings, decide on the refreshments, the games and the other details and then make the preparations. This time the order's reversed. The men are doing both the planning and the work.

It must be admitted there's a certain amount of pardonable curiosity among the wives and daughters who are to be entertained, as to the details of the evening's program. These, however, are a deep secret. The men—as long as they are doing it all by themselves—mean to keep their party a surprise. However, there are drawbacks to complete secrecy. Being unaccustomed to having all the responsibility for the success of the affair on their shoulders, they are obliged to ask occasional questions, so plans have leaked out. There is to be an elaborate picnic supper, the women have learned, and children's games are to be one feature of the entertainment.

Another party—this time with the women in charge—will be a picnic July 11 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Huston, Avon Shores. Mrs. Augusta O. Johnson is chairman and Mrs. Willie R. Goodwin, vice chairman of arrangements.

MRS. ERNEST DANIEL, although an ardent club woman, has other interests and chief among them is her little granddaughter, Eleanor Dimitry Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Baldwin Cook. The very young lady (aged 3 years), is named for her mother, but her mother is called Eleanor and she is called by her second name, Dimitry. Incidentally, she has a head of curls as lovely as Shirley Temple's.

• • • •

ANOTHER DEVOTED GRANDMOTHER is Mrs. Elizabeth Cox, one of Washington's women attorneys and a member of the board of directors of the Zonta Club. She is planning to leave in a few days for California to visit her son, George L. Cox; his wife, and, best of all, the grandchildren. They live on a ranch in Shasta County, near Redding, and she will spend most of the summer with them.

• • • •

Miss Peet Guest At Zonta Luncheon

The Zonta Club had its regular luncheon yesterday in the Y. W. C. A., with Miss Elizabeth Peet, a former member, as one of its special guests. Miss Winifred Burwell, president of the Zontians, announced, amid applause, that Miss Peet was to receive the honorary degree of doctor of pedagogy, conferred upon her last night by George Washington University.

Among other guests at yesterday's luncheon was Miss Lillian Rixey, of Alexandria, who was there with Miss Frances Powell Hill, and Miss Alice Bray, an artist, who was there with Miss Alice Terrell.

Among the constructive activities of the local Zonta Club is the maintenance of a student loan fund. The club is helping a young girl through Alfred University and has word that she is on the freshman honor roll, prominent in campus activities and in her sorority.

Tramutolos Hosts For Dockweilers

Representative and Mrs. John F. Dockweiler, of California, were guests at a dinner given last evening at the Mayflower by Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Tramutolo, of San Francisco, who are guests at the hotel.

Others in the company were Representative and Mrs. John H. Tolan, Representative and Mrs. John J. McGarth, and Representative Frank R. Havenner, all of California, also Mr. and Mrs. Golden Bell, Mr. Justis Wardell, and Capt. Victor H. Harding.

The United States Ambassador to Hungary, Mr. John Flournoy Montgomery, has arrived in Washington and is staying at the Carlton Hotel.

Norman H. Davis Here.

2 Members Are Honored By 75th Club

Mrs. Byrne, Mrs. Towey Win Praises for Achievements.

THE 75TH CLUB, which has showed originality in its programs ever since it was organized following the opening of the Seventy-fifth Congress last winter, closed its season yesterday with an "achievement day" luncheon at the Dodge Hotel. Two members, Mrs. William Byrne, of New York, and Mrs. F. W. Towey, of New Jersey, were honored for their accomplishments during the Congressional year—the former for her writing and the latter for her painting. Each was presented with a handsome etching as a gift from the club.

When the wives of the new members of Congress formed their club, with Mrs. John R. Murdock as president, they outlined such activities of the season as swimming, horseback riding, archery and study groups—constructive things to which they could devote their time. At their recent luncheon honoring Mrs. Roosevelt, they announced as a gift in tribute to her, a wheel chair to be given in her name to a Washington school boy who was an invalid. Yesterday the members completed their interesting season by recognition of the work of two of their own group.

Mrs. Towey is first vice president; Mrs. Vincent Harrington, Iowa, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Clason, Massachusetts, third vice president; Mrs. Harold Cluett, New York, fourth vice president; Mrs. John Sparkman, Alabama, secretary, and Mrs. Jerry O'Connell, Montana, treasurer. The chairmen of the standing committees are Mrs. Harold Mosier, Ohio, hospitality; Mrs. John Coffee, Washington, arrangements, and Mrs. Jerry Voorhis, California, publicity.

Heads of Fidac To Attend Fete

THE FIDAC FESTIVAL, a program of songs, dances and playets showing the customs of the Allied nations, will be held at Gordon Junior High School, Wisconsin avenue and T street, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Among representatives from the Allied countries who will attend will be Prince de Ligne, of the Belgian Embassy, and Col. Lombard, of the French Embassy. Dr. Robert S. White, recently appointed dean of the law school of the National Catholic University, who is the American vice president of the Fidac, will be present as representative of the Fidac activities in the United States. The State Department will give recognition to the interest of Fidac by sending a representative from the Western European Division.

Miss Marion Chace has created a dance for Fidac, under the title, "The Hosts of Peace," which will be the final feature of the evening.

The units of the American Legion Auxiliary will compete for an award offered by Miss Henrietta McKay, of the Sergeant Jasper Unit, in presenting their parts in the program. The Sergeant Jasper Juniors will give a one-act play on Greece, the country which has been the subject of study during the year. Other units which will have numbers dealing with this country include Nash Unit and Killeen Unit, whose Juniors will sing the national anthems of Greece and of the United States.

Two Soroptimists Welcomed Home

Mrs. Waters, Mrs. Peterson Back From England.

Mrs. Laura Waters and Mrs. Isabel Peterson, who recently returned from England, where they attended the coronation, were welcomed home yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Soroptimist Club, of which they are members. Miss Daisy Reed presided at the luncheon meeting, held in the Willard Hotel.

Miss Martha Servis, of Philadelphia, executive secretary of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, was the guest speaker. She told of her work, forming new clubs, and announced 12 have been organized since last September. Miss Edna Reinhardt, of the Baltimore club, also was a guest.

The Soroptimists of Washington will recess during July and August and the first week of September. An attendance contest which has been in progress between groups designated as the Gold and Blue will close June 30, and the losers will entertain the winners.

Many members of the Washington club will attend the birthday party of the Alexandria Soroptimists at Boulevard Farms June 17, at 6:30 o'clock, when the Alexandria Club will celebrate its first year in the American Federation.

In New York City.

Two Armed Thugs Holdup Paymaster, Escape With $2,000

Richmond, Va., June 9 (AP).—Two colored bandits robbed Arthur Thomas, bottling works manager, of approximately $2,000 today as he left his plant to carry the money to a bank.

One of the two drove a gun into the manager-paymaster's chest and seized the money satchel he carried. Thomas said he feared he would be shot and turned to dive back through the plant doorway from which he had just come, stumbling and falling to the sidewalk.

Vitus Mitchell, who witnessed the holdup from his position beside a bottling machine just inside the door, said a second colored man then joined the first and the two ran from the soft drink plant.

Thomas estimated the loss at $2,000.

Juvenile Delinquency Is Greatly Reduced By Boys' Clubs, Brown Tells Business Men

A marked reduction in juvenile delinquency since the establishment of four boys' clubs in the city was cited by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent and founder of the local police boys' club movement, at the American Business Club luncheon yesterday.

In the year following the establishment of the No. 5 Boys Club in 1934, 74.9 per cent fewer juvenile cases were tried in this police precinct, Maj. Brown pointed out. Since April 20 of this year, when a club for colored boys was founded, there has been a 45 per cent reduction in delinquency in the vicinity of the club. Four thousand colored boys are now members, he said.

The idea of police-sponsored boys' clubs has been adopted by the International Association of Police Chiefs and has aroused interest all over the world. Maj. Brown told of a visit made to one of the local clubhouses by a Scotland Yard official, who was impressed chiefly by the sight of a boy standing near the building in friendly conversation with a policeman.

Maj. Brown was presented with an honorary membership in the American Business Club and a check for $35 for the Boys Club campaign for funds. He was introduced by Dr. L. M. Lucas, president of the businessmen's group.

Other guests of honor were Representative Hugh M. Rigney, of Illinois, and Judge Edward M. Curran, of the Police Court, both of whom spoke briefly in praise of the A. B. C.'s Big Brother movement. Maj. Harvey L. Miller, secretary of the District Boxing Commission, and Lewis A. Payne, a director of the Boys Club, also attended.

Gen. Fuller Rites Set for Tomorrow

Annapolis, Md., June 9 (AP).—Funeral services for Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller (retired), former commandant of the Marine Corps, will be held at the Naval Academy on Friday.

Gen. Fuller, who died yesterday, was a graduate of the academy. He will be buried in the academy cemetery. Plans for the funeral, which will be marked by full naval honors, have not been completed.

Navigator's Error Cause of Air Crash

Faulty navigation was the "probable cause" of an airplane crash near Kellogg, Idaho, on December 18, 1934, according to a Bureau of Air Commerce report yesterday. The crash killed two members of the crew, the only persons on board the plane.

The crash gave rise to vigorous cries of "pilot-pushing" at a safety conference sponsored by the Department of Commerce in early February. The widow of the pilot, Mrs. Lorna D. Livermore, filed a statement asserting her husband was ordered to fly in unfavorable weather against his better judgment.

The plane was a regular transport ship flying from Chicago and St. Louis to Seattle. The bureau's report said the ship did not follow the radio range course after leaving Missoula, Mont., and that it did not ascend to a safe altitude over the course from Elk River, Idaho.

Chemical Workers Paid $81,500,000

E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., giant chemical concern, informed the Securities Commission yesterday how it distributed more than $83,000,000 in salaries and wages in 1936.

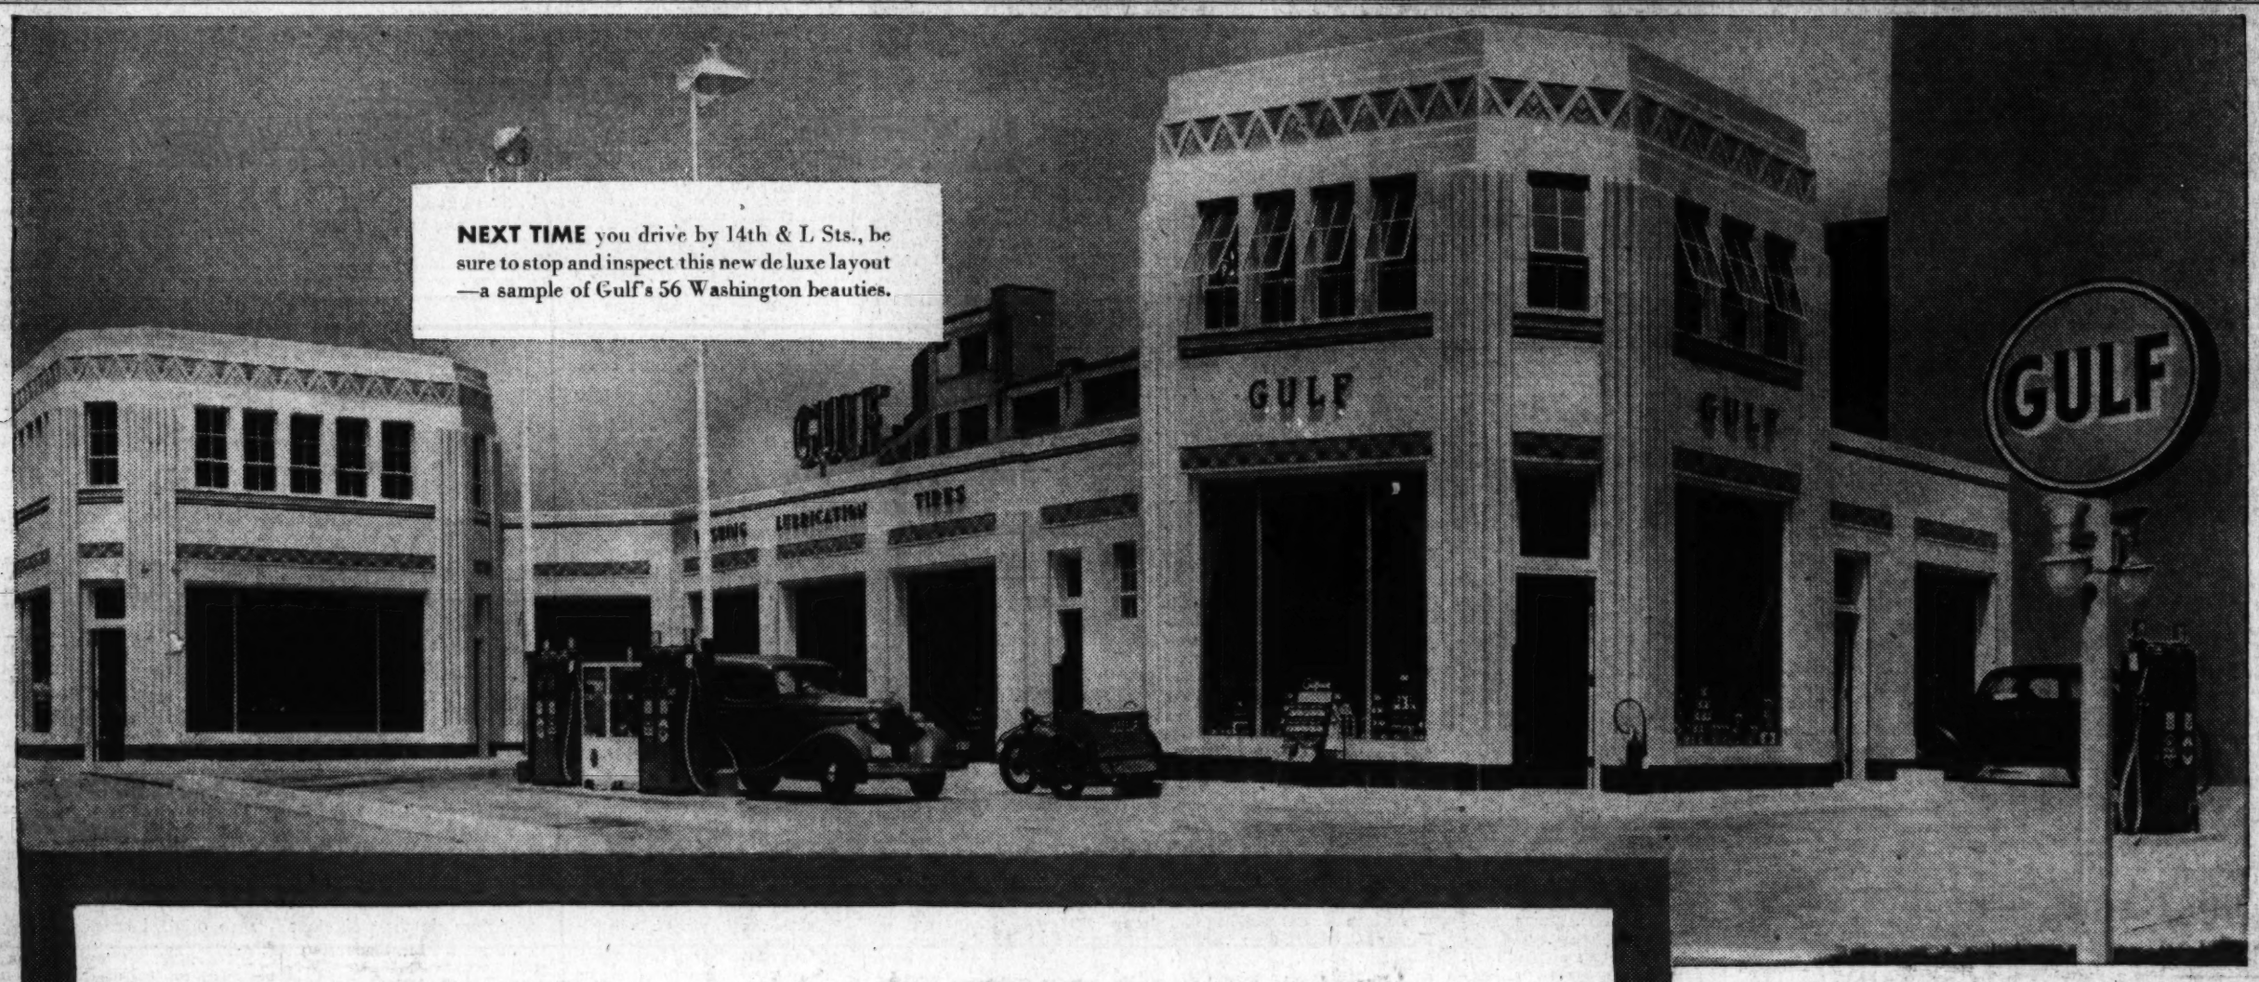

Twelve officers got more than $100,000 and 99 others received more than $20,000 each.

The total pay roll for the company's 23 officers and directors was $1,558,241.85, while the company's 54,000 employes were paid approximately $81,500,000.

Golfing Is One Sport That's Underpaid

By Shirley Povich.

St. Louis, June 9.—An enterprising figure filbert now on the scene of the National Open at Detroit has discovered that Harry Cooper's golf earnings for 1937 have now totaled $7,992.03, more than Horton Smith was able to achieve throughout 1936 when Smith led all the money winners.

POVICH.

If he has any luck during the remainder of the year, Cooper might run his total earnings to $10,000, but the pickings will be lean from here in. Because it is late winter and early spring that the big golf purses are posted.

It all goes to show that the golf course athletes can't hope to get rich quick. For every pro who can show a profit at the end of the tournament season there are dozens of pros who did not even make expenses. F'instance, Paul Runyan, the ninth leading money winner among the pros this year, can show less than $2,800 in tournament earnings.

* * * *

And because golf pros live high, are forced to take those long, expensive train jumps from coast to coast and stop only at the swankiest hostelries, Runyan's earnings may not even meet his expenses.

* * * *

The national pocket billiard champion, a half dozen professional tennis players, scores of wrestlers and dozens of boxers, and at least 30 big league ball players will make more money this season than the Nation's leading professional golfers. Golf skill comes cheap, in comparison.

* * * *

At that, baseball salaries are pretty generally overrated. Rare is the team with more than one $20,000 performer. Lou Gehrig draws down his $56,000 from the Yankees, and Cronin as playing - manager of the Red Sox is working on the third year of his five-year pact at $50,000. Grove and Foxx might top the $20,000 mark, and Greenberg, of the Tigers, is undoubtedly a $20,000 man. But I think that mops up on all of 'em in the American League outside of the managers.

JIM LONDOS.

The highest-paid player on the Washington team, it might as well be known, is Outfielder Ben Chapman, who wangled a $13,000 contract out of the club. Joe Kuhel, Buck Newsom and Jimmy DeShong are the only other Nats who top the $10,000 figure.

* * * *

If an average were struck, it is doubtful if the pay of the big leaguers would reach a figure in the neighborhood of $7,500—which is a nice neighborhood, but far from the fabulous salaries the big league fellows are generally supposed to draw.

* * * *

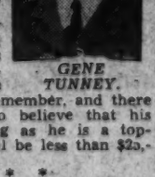

But that, and the earnings of the golf pros, is pin money compared to what the leading boxers and wrestlers can drag down during the space of a year's activity.

Jim Londos could show a profit of more than $200,000 for each year that he held the world wrestling crown and there were a dozen journeymen wrestlers, who, working five nights a week, could earn $25,000 a season. And $10,000 was pretty poor pay for even pretty poor wrestlers.

* * * *

Joe Louis earned more than $300,000 in his first two years of professional fighting. His case may be an exception but that kind of money doesn't exist in golf or baseball even for guys who might be composites of Sarazen, Hagen, Jones, Vardon, Ray, or Mathewson, Johnson, Cobb, Speaker, Ruth.

GENE TUNNEY.

Fred Perry was guaranteed $50,000 for his first year in professional tennis ranks, if you remember, and there is no reason to believe that his earnings as long as he is a top-flight player will be less than $25,000.

* * *

In the space of 40 minutes—30 minutes of actual fighting—Gene Tunney earned more money in one evening than all the pro golfers could earn in five years of tournament play; more than four major league clubs pay their players during the entire season; more money than has ever been made in the history of professional tennis.

* * *

When Gene Tunney finished his ten rounds against Jack Dempsey at Chicago that September evening in 1927, the amount of the check that was handed him by the late Tex Rickard was—don't faint—$990,000.00!

Interhigh Tennis Semi-Finals Today

The semifinal matches of the first interhigh singles tournament on record will be played this afternoon at 3 on the Monument courts.

Pairings have pitted the two Roosevelt survivors David Johnsen and Doyle Royal against each other. Emanuel Numez, of Western, will attempt to reach the finals at the expense of Harry Durst, of Western.

Overton's 146 Total Is Second

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Volney Burnett continued his red-hot streak of tournament medal victories yesterday, playing 36 holes at Manor in 3 over par for the qualifying honors in the Maryland State amateur tournament. The bespectacled Indian Spring star added this to previous victories at Manor, Five Farms and the Government tourney at Indian Spring, averaging 70 for the six rounds.

Spencer Overton, the defending champion from Baltimore, needed a birdie 3 on the home hole to tie Burnett's figure, but hit his second shot out of bounds and his third in a bush, winding up with a 6 and trailing the medalist by 3 strokes.

Nathan Kaufman, the hefty Baltimore entrant, drew a bye in his first round match todays, as only 31 entered the event, and the first flight requires pairings for 32. Eddie Bean, Beaver Dam, tied Burnett's morning 71, but faltered in the afternoon for a pair of 38's and a total of 149. Harry Pitt, the host clube ace and runner-up to Roger Peacock in this event in '33, tied at 149 with Kaufman.

The medalists card included 20 pars, 7 birdies and 9 holes over par, mainly resulting from mistakes on second shots. A trio of 40-foot putts dropped, on the first, eighth and twelfth holes. He was a model of consistency, with a 35 and three 36s.

Billy Dettweiler and Otto Greiner each shot creditable 150s, while Bobby Brownell was a stroke behind with 151. Louis Fuchs, after a morning round of 75, played the last hole of the third and fourth nines in 8 strokes each, to soar 10 strokes higher in the afternoon.

The field of 32 will be trimmed to 8 at the conclusion of the twin 18-hole rounds today. The first match off the tee will bring together the medalist and Martin F. (Iron Man) McCarthy, who required 172 strokes for the route yesterday, 31 more than Burnett.

Miss Moore Bows in Net Tournament

Baltimore, Md., June 9.—The closest approach to an upset so far in the Maryland State Women's Tennis Tournament at the Baltimore Country Club was the three sets Sarah Moore, of Washington, subjected Mrs. Stanley Robinson, also of Washington, to in the quarter-finals today before the latter won, 6—3, 6—4.

Other semi-final survivors were Edith Clark, of Washington, seeded third, who found Mrs. Barry Wood an opponent of good form and a not too easy victim. Miss Clark won, 6—8, 6—4.

Frances Grimes, ranked fourth, of Morgantown, W. Va., was extended in the first set before defeating slim, tall Anne Ellis, of Washington, 7—5, 6—3.

Singles, Quarter-finals.

Edith Clark, Washington, defeated Mrs. Barry Wood, 6—3, 6—4.

Eddie Fuller Loses In Men's Net Play.

Baltimore, June 9.—First of the seeded players in the Maryland State tennis championship tournament were eliminated today during an afternoon of play which offered both good and indifferent matches to the gallery, largest of the event thus far.

Highest ranking of those eliminated was Eddie Fuller, the No. 2 man on the University of North Carolina champion team and fourth on the list in the State play. He went down before the cunning and power of George Tanaka, Japanese netman from the University of California. The score was 8-6, 6-2.

Hugh Lynch, of Washington, and Lindsay Franklin, of the University of Texas, battled for three sets before Franklin came out on top, the scores being 3-6, 6-0, 6-0. It was a fourth-round match.

Barney Welsh, of Rockville, top-seeded player, and Rickey Willis, University of North Carolina, have a fourth-round match to play tomorrow prior to the four quarter-finals. The other brackets are up with the field.

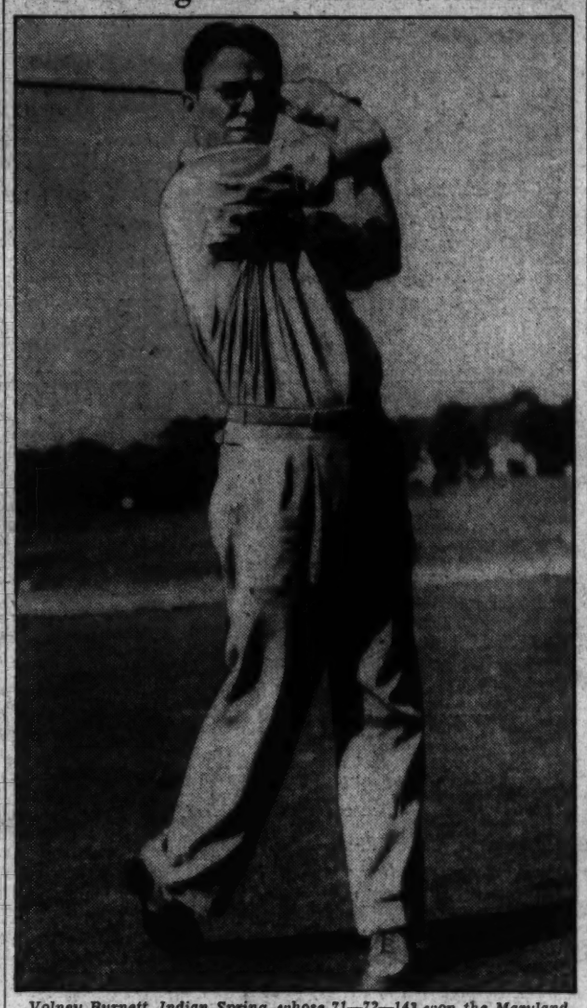

In second-round doubles today, Welsh and Modeste Alloo, University of California, defeated a local pair, N. Ashkin, and J. Caplan, 6-2, 6-0.

In a first-round match, Lynch and S. McCaskey, also of Washington, won from C. Neel and H. Stephens, 6-0, 8-6.

Braddock Attacked.

Paris, June 9 (U.P.).—A protest that Max Schmeling was denied "sporting protection" and a demand that the world's heavyweight boxing championship held by James J. Braddock be declared vacant, were cabled today by the international boxing union to the New York State Athletic Commission as an aftermath of the June 3 "phantom" title fight.

It's Getting to Be a Habit With Him

Volney Burnett, Indian Spring, whose 71—72—143 won the Maryland State qualifying medal at Manor yesterday. It was Volney's fourth consecutive tournament medal victory. He has averaged 70 for the six rounds.

Yankees Reported Interested In Buying Newsom From Nats

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, June 8.—Trade talk was on the wane in the camp of the Washington Nationals tonight, but in view of the continued undercover activities of Manager Bucky Harris, reports that a deal was not far distant would not down.

That the Nats manager has been making strenuous efforts to strengthen his club is apparent. He has been called to the telephone frequently during the clubs two days of idleness here and it is known that he is frantic to bolster his pitching staff.

Beyond declaring that "the Washington club will make any trade that will strengthen the team,' Harris was silent, however.

The Washington players are strangely on edge, though, tonight in the hotel lobby. Pitcher Buck Newsom and Outfielder Ben Chapman, a pair whose names have been bandied about frequently in the trade talk, made a wager.

"I'll bet you $5 at even money that either you or I are not with the club by the end of the trading limit on June 15," Newsom said to Chapman.

Then, fearing that he had made a bad wager, Chapman made a counter offer.

"I'll lay $10 against $15, Buck, that both of us are not with the club by June 15," Chapman said to Newsom.

The Boston Red Sox were believed to be the team to which Harris had attempted to peddle Newsom or Chapman, or both, but today there was a report to the effect that the New York Yankees had entered the bidding for Newsom.

Believed to be slightly panicky over the results of the past week, which saw them lose their comfortable league lead, the Yankees, it is believed would welcome the addition of Newsom to their pitching staff. They would not be interested in Chapman, whose rift with Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Yanks, still endures.

Harris admitted tonight that Owner Clark Griffith had asked for telegraphic waivers on Pitcher Joe Cascarella, and it is believed that he will attempt to peddle Cascarella to the Browns tomorrow. That failing, Cascarella may be shipped to the Nats' Chattanooga farm.

Rained out today for the second straight afternoon, the Nats will open and conclude their series with the Browns tomorrow.

Harris Is Relieved At Bolton's Departure.

St. Louis, June 9.—Advised by Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, that Cliff (the bolter) Bolton had been sold to the Detroit Tigers for the waiver price of $7,500, Manager Bucky Harris' first reaction was a sigh of relief.

"That's good," he said. "At least, I won't have Bolton and his vanishing acts to worry about any more. But I wish him luck with the Tigers—and vice versa."

With a catching staff comprised of only the aging veteran Bill Hayworth, and the rookie, George Tebbetts, as a result of the injury to Mickey Cochrane, the Tigers had been bidding for Bolton during the past week, Harris revealed.

Tribe Beats Red Sox in Bingle Battle

Takes 25-Hit Slugfest, 12 to 6; Rain Balks Other Games.

Cleveland, June 9.—The Cleveland Indians and the Boston Red Sox, playing the only game which the weather permitted in the American League today, put on a 25-hit slugging match which the Indians won, 12 to 6, without much difficulty.

Mel Harder started shakily, but settled down to take his fourth victory of the season. After the early innings his calm wasn't disturbed until the seventh when Jimmy Foxx lifted a 450-foot smash into the wooden bleachers of centerfield for a home run which climaxed a four-run rally for the Red Sox.

Harder was especially careful in the final inning to avoid such an uprising as the Red Sox staged yesterday when they scored eight runs in the ninth to take the game.

Still smarting from yesterday's debacle, the Indians started the game with a rush and scored four runs in the first inning. They scored in each of the first four innings and led, 9 to 2 until their seventh-inning rally was halted with Foxx's home run.

Bolton to Detroit By Waiver Route

Cliff Bolton, one of the most famous vanishing Americans and former Washington catcher, last night was claimed by Detroit via the waiver route, Secretary Eddie Eynon announced. He was transferred at the customary price of $7,500.

Eynon said that he understood Bolton was willing to join the Tigers and was making preparations to leave his High Point, N. C., home immediately. If he does report it will be a most satisfactory ending to a most unpleasant episode for the local club.

Bolton pulled his vanishing act three times in all, the most recent being about two weeks ago when he worked out for one day at the stadium and disappeared almost immediately thereafter. He abruptly left the club toward the end of last season, and again at the height of the spring training season.

Hanken Most Valuable G. W. Gridman for '36

Ray Hanken, George Washington University football star, has been awarded Omicron Delta Kappa's most valuable player award for the 1936 season, it was announced last night.

One of the greatest ends ever developed at the downtown school, Hanken succeeds "Tuffy" Leeman, halfback, who was named in 1935 for the honor. Hanken will join Leeman on the New York Giants roster next season.

Brilliant Field of 167 Awaits Start Today

All-Day Rain Soaks Oakland Hills Course; May Slow Competition; Will Be Free-for-All Shot-Making Scramble.

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Birmingham, Mich., June 9.—The weather man tossed a big wet blanket of rain over final preparations today for the opening round of gunfire in the battle of Oakland Hills.

Neither the all-day downpour nor the low visibility, however, obscured the likelihood that the forty-first United States open golf championship, starting tomorrow, will be another free-for-all shot-making scramble.

Made up of 167 assorted shot makers at the latest checkup survivors of country-wide eliminations, the all-star field faced a rugged scoring fight for the title, as well as fame, fortune and fares to Europe for the quartet of professionals landing the remaining places on the American Ryder Cup team. The latest withdrawal was George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, 1931 runner-up.

Eleventh-hour encouragement for the rain-bound golfing forces came from the United States Golf Association, which announced, through President John G. Jackson, that the foot-high rough would be cut to less hazardous proportions on a half-dozen holes.

A Tough Layout!

The order to get out the mowing machines before the first pair tees off at 8:15 a. m. (Eastern standard time) tomorrow was issued after a thorough inspection of the Oakland Hills Country Club layout, host to the tournament for the first time since 1924 (when Cyril Walker's 297 was the wininng score) and rated one of the toughest tests in the Middle West.

Jackson further soothed some of the professionals' worries by stating the pins will be placed as "fairly as possible" on the greens, most of which are as undulating as the putting surfaces of Oakmont, where so many hopes were wrecked two years ago.

Prospects that the course will play "slow," as a result of today's steady rain, favored the chances of the big hitters and accounted for the fact that most clubhouse betting installed such clouters as Henry Picard, Byron Nelson, Ky Laffoon, Sam Snead and Ralph Guldahl among the top choices.

Watch Mr. Snead.

None of these sharpshooters ever has won the open and Snead, the winter circuit sensation, is making his "freshman" start, but they rate right along with Lighthorse Harry Cooper, twice the runner-up, silver-thatched Tommy Armour, the local sentimental favorite, and Champion Tony Manero as the players to be most keenly watched.

Rival bookmakers made Snead and Armour the betting choices, at respective odds of 8 to 1 and 10 to 1, but the professional railbirds were inclined to minimize the chances of either the youthful slugger or the famous veteran who once made nearby Tam o' Shanter his base of operations. Snead, who hasn't been "on" his game in practice, figures to feel the championship pressure one of the toughest obstacles to overcome. Armour has the poise as well as the shots but it has been ten years since Tommy was on top and the 72-hole route is a physical barrier for him.

Practice Cut Short.

Odds quoted against the chances of Picard, Cooper, Nelson, Guldahl, Laffoon and Manero ranged from 10 to 16 to 1.

Like most of the field, Manero limited his practice in the rain to nine holes this afternoon. The dapper champion scored a par 36 for the incoming half, taking only 15 putts. He said:

"Cutting the rough will help my game but also hurt my chances of winning. There are places out there where the long hitters can spray their tee shots and get away with it, if they take chances or short cuts.

"They are penalizing the accurate player and helping the long-hitting but inaccurate player. The course, without so much rough, won't be the test of good golf that it would have been."

Al Watrous, the home club pro, also was reluctant to see his much-cherished rough cut down in spots, but conceded that the rain would add enough strokes to the scores to offset that official concession. Watrous holds the course record of 63, made prior to changes in the location of four tees, designed to lengthen the course to its present distance of slightly over 7,000 yards.

Professional interest, aside from the quest for the winner's share of the $5,000 in prize money, focussed upon the battle for remaining Ryder Cup team place. Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., entry, occupied the driver's seat in this competition, with a four-stroke lead over his nearest rivals, based upon his score of 139 for the 36-hole qualifying play in the recent P. G. A. championship at Pittsburgh.

The downpour of rain forced four of the five Washington contenders indoors, only Frankie Cunningham, of Burning Tree, braving the showers. Playing with Phil Perkins, the former British star and now professional at Cleveland, Cunningham scored a 75, 3 over par.

Wiffy Cox, who finished sixth last year, was quoted a 30 to 1 in the odds book, after opening at double that figure. Bob Barnett, Cliff Spencer and Frank Cunningham are offered at 500 to 1 to win, 350 to place and 250 to show.

Charles Town Daily Double Nets $1,278; Nyack Pays $166.40

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town Race Track, W. Va., June 9.—A $1,278 pay-off on the daily double dwarfed all other happenings at this race track this afternoon. Only three tickets were sold on the "13" combination that produced the small fortune and one was held by B. F. Austin, a retired Washingtonian. Another of the precious pasteboards was the joint property of Norman Fadley, John Dunn, Luther Carper and Walter Birket, employes of a local gas station, who put in 50 cents each. The third ticket was cashed by a woman who refused to give her name.

The four filling station men did not wait to go out of the gate of the track. After cashing, they jumped the fence and ran gleefully toward the Harpers Ferry road where their place of employment is located.

It was the surprising victory of Nyack, a 9-year-old gelding, in the second race that led to one of the largest "doubles" in the history of this plant. Ridden by Jockey M. Verbus, Nyack won by a head and paid an individual mutuel of $166.40.

Nyack had much the best of the racing luck, being on the rail at the stretch turn when the leaders ran out. Verbus saved oceans of ground and then went to his whip to hold a narrow advantage at the finish.

When the smoke had cleared from the second race battle, it was found that only 24 of the 2,130 double tickets were still in action. The "possible pay-off" board fairly sagged with the figures displayed. Only one ticket was sold on the combination ending in Maid of Dunlin and had that filly won, a $3,834 mutuel would have resulted.

The all important race then went to Penny, an $8.20 shot, and in place of "pennies from Heaven," it was "dollars from behind the counter in the mutuel department."

The Guy Lombardo Handicap, named for the orchestra leader who wired that an engagement in Baltimore would not allow him to be present, served feature purposes and resulted in a victory for H. C. Vaughns' Stool Pigeon. It was the second triumph in as many days for the Runantell gelding supplied a $5 mutuel.

Colts Will Hold Spotlight In Upperville Horse Show

By Grace Brooks.

Upperville, Va., June 9.—True to tradition, the Upperville Colt and Horse Show will feature breeding classes when the forty-seventh annual exhibition opens here tomorrow for a two-day show. Started in 1853 after a challenge as to which of two colts was the better, the show continues to exhibit colts as a big drawing card. Real horsemen from all sections will gather on the grounds to see the merits of the colts as the judges make their decisions.

This show, the oldest and best in America, was started by Col. Richard Dulany, considered the best judge of horses in the country, after he had been asked to decide an argument between two horse breeders as to which owned the better of two yearlings. So many people gathered to see this first judging that it was decided then and there to make the judging of colts an annual event. As the horse show has grown to be one of the biggest sporting events in the country, so have the breeding classes expanded and this year will see the largest classes of thoroughbred yearlings and 2-year-olds ever seen here. The breeding classes seen here rank among the best in America, and many fine race horses are seen for the first time at the Upperville show.

Among the breeding establishments that have made entries here are Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh, Fox Hollow Farm, W. C. Ziegler, jr., Taylor Hardin, Mr. and Mrs. McKay Jones, Joe Rose, G. North Fletcher, W. H. Lipscomb, Meander Farm, Peach Brother, E. L. Redman, Benton Stables, H. Rozier Dulany, Stephen C. Clark, Edward Friendly and Mrs W. Plunkett Stewart.

In addition to the breeding class, fine hunter classes are on the program for both days. Many of these will be seen over the outside course, which is stiff enough to try the mettle of the best hunters.

The show grounds have been put in excellent shape. Grandstands and boxes are draped with gay bunting, every fence has been newly whitewashed, and the beautiful grove in which the ring is placed looks inviting and cool to the horse lovers today as it did many years ago when the first show was held on this spot.

The neighborhood is filling with visitors for the occasion and many distinguished representatives of diplomatic and residential society are expected to be present. Picnic luncheons on the grounds and luncheons in the spacious Colonial homes of this section will be an attraction during the recess hour.

The show starts each day at 10 o'clock and a well-filled program of high-class entertainment will be under the management of Joshua Fletcher assisted by W. F. Peach

Dear Al: Selections at Charles Town.

There are two possible situations that have been worrying a Benningite, and I will try to explain them. In the first case, the trainer claims 104 pounds as the right weight for his horse under the conditions of a certain race. The weight should have been 107 pounds. However, the jockey reports 3 pounds overweight, making the horse carry 107. In this case, the horse would lose the purse money, but the betting would stand. His other problem is regarding a horse that was supposed to carry 111 pounds, and the jockey, upon weighing out, showed only 108 pounds. In this case, the horse would be disqualified and those who bet on him would have their money refunded. Incidentally, if a jockey reports any overweight, the trainer may change riders. One of the assistant starters fell off the water wagon today. He was riding on the sprinkling vehicle, lost his balance and dropped to the track, getting a partial soaking. He dried out as the program progressed. One of the boys in the press box hooked up everything in the second race with Penny in the third race, except Nyack, the one that made the $1,278 double-pay off possible.

BILL.

First Race—Schley Goree has run three seconds in his short career. Breaks off the rail here and may make every post a winning one. Can Bloom turned in a good effort first out and is dangerous. Scout Allow, with Palumbo to do the riding, may be a threat.

Second Race—Easter Herald, first on the also eligible list will have much to say about the purse distribution here if in action. Running Water and Turn Up to take care of the others.

Third Race—Halloo has Palumbo as the rider and that recent effort was a good one. Needs only a share of the racing luck. Povel has been working well and may surprise. Sea Finn deserves a good position in any lineup.

Forth Race—Miss Troy has been kidding of late. This filly is fit and ready and I suspect today is the day. Miss Adeline is bad at the post If she gets off she will be dangerous. Trostar and Locomotive have some chance.

Fifth Race— Lilteen, a star at Hagerstown, meets only fair competition here and may return to the winner's circle. Canynge, a winner last out, should be close. Darling Pat has speed and seems headed for show money.

Sixth Race—Peggy Can moves up after winning by eight lengths here yesterday. She breaks off the rail and will have to be caught. ALAHAD and Sun Belle promise to be in the thick of contention.

Seventh Race—Jimmy D. and Fife promise to battle it out for the chief award in this field. Both are dropping down. Tintype is a possibility to surprise.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NYACK, $166.40, $50.80, $22.00; SILVER ARCH, $3.60, $2.80; JOHNNY BANE, $4.40.

NYACK, close to the pace and saving ground from the start, hugged the inside rail when JOHNNY BANE and GOOD GRACIOUS went wide to take command and hung on to the end with good courage. SILVER ARCH, in tight quarters to the turn, came willingly for final drive and just missed. JOHNNY BANE set the pace and went wide at the turn and closed resolutely. GOOD GRACIOUS was carried out by JOHNNY BANE and weakened. WISE REVUE ran very wide throughout.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:32½. Off at 3:34½. Winner, R. F. Frick's b. f. (4), by Toro—Amble. Trained by W. C. Baines. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:19 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JIM MOSS, $11.20, $5.60, $4.80; HURDY GURDY, $8.80, $5.20; CANTERET, $3.60.

JIM MOSS, steadied along within striking distance of the leaders, came to outside for racing room entering the stretch and took command under a drive. HURDY GURDY, close up throughout, closed gamely. CANTERET was hard ridden and had no excuses. MAHOGANY closed a gap in the late stages. TRUTHFULLY stopped.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:37½. Off at 4:38. Winner, R. B. Archer's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROMIDE, $8.00, $4.60, $3.00; HARD CHASE, $4.80, $3.40; FREDALVA, $3.00.

BROMIDE, steadied along for a half, took a brief lead when TOMS BOY stopped, shook off HARD CHASE while saving ground and drew out gradually in closing stages. HARD CHASE, restrained for a half, weakened in final sixteenth. FREDALVA outrun for a half, closed a gap and was going fastest at the end. MISS PATCHES went evenly, but could not threaten. CORA KAY was listlessly ridden.

SIXTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $600. The Guy Lombardo Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:07½. Off at 5:10½. Winner, H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STOOL PIGEON, $5.00, $4.00, $3.20; EDITH WALKER, $6.40, $5.80; HIGHLAND SONG, $9.00.

STOOL PIGEON, in the thick of contention from start, came wide for racing room leaving the backstretch, took command, bore out at stretch turn and closed willingly. EDITH WALKER, shuffled back at the break, closed full of run. HIGHLAND SONG weakened after showing an excellent effort. TEDDY'S SQUAW dropped out of it after a quarter. NAY NAY was pulled up sharply when in tight quarters at the turn. STAND BY was outrun. PRINCE TURLEY broke down.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:39. Off at 5:41. Winner, F. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PUKKA HEAVEN, $6.20, $2.80, $2.80; PORPHYRY, $2.80, $2.60; STAR SPECIAL, $4.40.

PUKKA HEAVEN ran PLAIN ACE into defeat, drew out to a good lead and held sway under a drive. PORPHYRY moved up with good speed along the backstretch, but was guided into tight quarters and closed willingly when clear. STAR SPECIAL raced wide throughout and hung in final drvie. MARY WALES weakened after being a keen forward factor. LIGHT ACTION rallied mildly in stretch. PLAIN ACE stopped after a half.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:10. Off at 6:11. Winner, S. R. Men Past 40
Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.
This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box for men—Orange Box for women) and are sold and recommended by Unity Drug Stores and all chains. Zo-ak is the formula of a well known American physician so you can take it with confidence. It contains no nux vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drugs. A booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St., N. Y. Ask for economy size. Save $1.

Helen Dettweiler Paces Baltimore Golf Field

Scores Par 39, Defeats Foe 8 and 6

Misses Houghton, Brown, Mrs. Meckley Are Also Victorious.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 9.—Scoring women's par, 39, out, Helen Dettweiler, medalist, advanced in the first round of the Maryland State Golf Tournament at the Five Farms course of the Baltimore Country Club today at the expense of Mrs. C. C. Barr, 8 and 6.

Mrs. Betty Meckley, defending champion, who was putting particularly well, earned a 4 and 3 decision from Mrs. Fred F. Lines. Elizabeth Houghton, with an 88, had the closest call in the championship flight. She won, 2 up, from Mrs. Stephen H. Palmer.

Marion Brown lost to her hostess, 3 and 2. Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, seven-time titleholder, eliminated Mrs. I. Manning Parsons, jr., 6 and 5.

Other championship flight results were: Mrs. M. Louise Bell disposed of Gladys Greiner, 6 and 5; Mrs. C. D. Warfield conquered Mrs. A. H. Stump, 3 and 2; Mrs. Alexander Gordon 3d earned a 3 and 1 triumph over Mrs. Redmond C. Stewart, jr.

The Washingtonians are Mrs. Meckley, Miss Dettweiler, Miss Houghton and Miss Brown. Two District of Columbia players lost in the second flight. They are Mrs. J. T. Powell and Mrs. G. F. Goetzman, who were defeated by Jeannette Myers, 2 and 1, and Edith McHenry, 3 and 1, respectively.

Miss Houghton had a bad break on the 349-yard seventh, when the ball hit her while she was shooting out of a sand trap and cost her the hole. They were even at the turn. Miss Houghton was 1 up going to the last hole, where she made a birdie 4. Mrs. Palmer was trapped and in the woods on the eighteenth.

Miss Brown, George Washington University freshman, annexed the first three holes, the first by sinking a long putt for a birdie 4. Mrs. Schluderberg was out of bounds on the second hole and had a bad lie for her approach to the third. The latter took the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh to be 1 up. On the fifth, the collegian laid a stymie, but Mrs. Schluderberg cut around it for a birdie 4 and a win. Miss Brown was trapped on the seventh, but she won the eighth with a par 4, to even the match, and lost the ninth to be 1 down.

FIRST-ROUND RESULTS.
Championship Flight.

Casey, Davis Head Grapple Card Tonight

Wrestling will take to the wide open spaces of Griffith Stadium tonight with Steve (Crusher) Casey, the Irate Irishman, performing against Wee Willie Davis, the West Virginian, in the featured exhibition. Casey was to have worked against Hank Barber, but Hank pulled a War Admiral in a match last Tuesday night when he pulled up with an injured leg.

Casey's manager, Paul Bowser, who imported the big Irishman from his native heath, is authority for the statement that Crusher Steven is the only undefeated grappler on these shores today.

In more than 200 bouts in Europe Casey was undefeated. He has yet to taste defeat in more than half a hundred mat appearances in this country. Casey claims the world heavyweight championship, but his claims are disputed by Dean Detton, the generally recognized titleholder, who is expected to show here in a few weeks. It is hoped to bring Casey and Detton together for a title match ere the outdoor season wanes.

In 30-minute time limit preliminaries, Reb Russell will take on Frank Brunowitz, Jack Kennedy will do battle with Jack Hader and George Lenihan will attempt to best Bob obertsR.

Cochrane Off Active Player List by Request

Asks to be Carried as Non-Playing Pilot; Making Good Progress.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 9.—Walter O. Briggs, president of the Detroit Baseball Club, announced today that at Manager Mickey Cochrane's request he had been removed from the active player roster of the club and will be carried as a nonplaying manager.

"I have received a formal application from Manager Cochrane," said Briggs' announcement, "requesting that he be removed from the active player list of the Detroit club and be carried as a nonplaying manager.

"I have accepted the application subject to the approval of Commissioner Landis and President Harridge. Mickey Cochrane will continue as manager of the club. Del Baker will officiate as acting manager during his convalescence. The doctors advise me he is progressing very satisfactorily."

Cochrane, who was hit on the head by a ball thrown by Irving Hadley in the New York Yankee Stadium, is in Henry Ford Hospital here recovering from a fractured skull.

Briggs also disclosed that Marvin Owen, third baseman, fractured a small bone in his left hand yesterday. He said Rudy York had been recalled from Toledo to fill the vacancy.

Chevy Chase Field Paced By Quinter

Defending Champion Page Hufty, Ralph Quinter, jr., and Reeve Lewis were closely bunched at the halfway mark of the Chevy Chase Club championship yesterday, Hufty's 153 total trailing by a stroke.

Lewis played his third round and scored a 74, 5 over par, and the lowest round of the two days' play. Quinter, 75—77, and Hufty, 75—78, will play their third round today and the event, for the Horstmann Trophy, will wind up with an 18-hole round tomorrow.

Beverley Mason was only three strokes behind the leaders, adding a 77 yesterday to his previous 78. Kent Legg, 83—79; Frank Reeside, 83—80, and C. Ashmead Fuller, 84-80, trailed in order.

Ranger Victorious In Cup Trial Finals

Aboard Coast Guard Cutter Faunce off Newport, R. I., June 9 (AP).—Harold Vanderbilt's Ranger showed her heels to both Yankee and Rainbow today, winning easily in the concluding race of the opening trial series.

Gerard Lambert's Yankee and Chandler Hovey's Rainbow, successful cup defender in 1934, were trailing badly as the undefeated Ranger crossed the finish line.

Rainbow had been pressing about two minutes behind the winner until three hours after the start. As they headed homeward, Rainbow's spinaker blew out like a bursting bubble, ending any possible chance she had to overhaul Ranger.

Giants Split Pair; Dean Bests Hubbell

Cards Nick Lefthander 13 Times; Bees Take 2; Cubs, Phils Win

New York, June 9.—Dizzy Dean stood out there before a hostile throng of 55,577 fans today and turned in one of the best pitched games of his spectacular major league career to pin back the ears of the Giants and Carl Hubbell, 8 to 1, in the first game of today's doubleheader at the Polo Grounds.

Harry Danning, a pinch hitter, delivered a ninth inning homer to enable the Giants to win the nightcap, 3 to 2, and remain in first place by a margin of just a few points.

The big crowd, which came to jeer and hoot, but remained to cheer, saw the Cardinals' ace right-hander narrowly miss plastering the Giants with a coat of whitewash as he mowed them down with three widely scattered hits, a double and a single by George (Kiddo) Davis and another one-ply swat by young Jimmy Ripple.

While Old Diz, making his first appearance against the Giants since the riotous afternoon of May 19 in St. Louis, had the New Yorkers swinging their heads off at his high hard one, the Gashouse Gang was getting to Hubbell for 13 safeties in the eight innings he toiled before giving way to Dick Coffman.

The victory pulled Dean up to within one game of Hubbell in the series between the two. The count now stands at 5 to 4 in Hub's favor. So far this season each has trimmed the other once.

It was no wisecracking bad boy that tamed the Giants today, but a grim, uncompromising young man who literally pitched his head off to show the Terrymen he could trim them without throwing "bean balls," the direct cause of the St. Louis rioting last month.

Sandlot Pick-Ups

A day with JACK RAY . . . found RAY, Central's genial baseball and basketball coach fairly soggy with info . . . CLIFF KEYSER, one of the greatest amateurs ever developed at a local high school, may have muffed a big league chance . . . CLIFF worked out with the Senators three years ago when JOE CRONIN was manmanager . . . JOE was visibly impressed with the slender backstop who in build resembles BILL DICKEY . . . CRONIN asked that CLIFF work out daily with the Nats . . . But CLIFF who lacks self confidence never returned . . . He is now signed with the Salisbury nine in the Eastern Shore League . . . JAKE FLOWERS, one-time star infielder with the BROOKLYN DODGERS and ST. LOUIS CARDINALS coaches the team . . . KEYSER contracted a sore arm last week and has returned here for a rest . . . He will join the club in about two weeks . . . LEFTY HEFT, clever southpaw with Central in '35, and termed by EDDIE ROMMEL, the Athletics' great pitcher, as a "big league prospect," is home from Washington and Lee, where he helped pitch the freshman nine to the State championship . . . HEFT will not be 18 'till June . . . Not bad . . . LEFTY recently playing with the New Deal, a local unlimited team, outpitched HEFLIN, the Fredericksburg Elks' 195-pound right hander who is being sought by the Yanks, Red Sox and Nats, 2-0 in a great duel . . . It was HEFLIN'S first defeat in 3 years . . . Fach allowed 6 hits and HEFLIN fanned 14 batters . . . No mean feat with such players as DON FONES, EDDIE McDONOUGH, GEORGE ROWLES, late of Central, GEORGE COAKLEY, of Roosevelt, and CRAWFORD, another outstanding sandlotter, gracing the New Deal lineup . . . Incidentally, an ex-Central battery may work for the Washington and Lee varsity next spring . . . DON DUNLAP, who caught HEFT at Central in '35, has just completed a very successful season with the Generals . . . DON will be a junior next term . . . HEFT, of course, is sure-fire varsity material. JACK MUNHALL.

Bees Win Two; Climb to Fifth In Flag Race

Defeat Cincinnati, 5-2, 5-0; Berger Clouts Another Homer.

Boston, June 9 (AP).—Jim Turner and Lou Fette each held the Cincinnati Reds to six hits today when the Boston Bees moved into fifth place by sweeping their first doubleheader of the season, 5-2 and 5-0. Fette, knocked out of the box yesterday by the Reds, hurled the shutout, which gave him his seventh win of nine starts.

Cubs Wallop Dodgers, Get Second Place

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, June 9.—The Chicago Cubs made every hit count today as they walloped the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8 to 4, to climb into second place in the National League.

Although they made only eight hits off Luke Hamlin and Big Ralph Birkofer, they bunched six of them in the fifth inning for half a dozen runs and a lead they never gave up.

Steel Output Holds Steady Against Strikes

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 9.—Market conditions in the steel industry show "surprisingly little change" despite strikes at plants of three major producers, Iron Age said today in its weekly review.

The aggregate volume of ingot output has increased at some unaffected plants, bringing the estimated average for the country to 78 per cent, a slight rise over last week, the trade journal said.

"Only a negligible amount of business has been switched from strike-affected companies to those that are operating," the review stated, "indicating consumers have ample stocks for the present and are not seriously inconvenienced. If the strikes last another two or three weeks this situation undoubtedly will change.

"Meanwhile, incoming business in general is declining this month. While May volume for most companies represented a fairly large percentage of shipments, the trend so far in June has been more sharply downward, orders in the aggregate having been smaller in the first week of this month than in the same period of May.

"The scrap market reflects the strike situation in a further sharp decline at Chicago, amounting to $1 a ton on some grades, bringing the Iron Age composite price down to $17.42, the low point of the year thus far and the lowest since mid-December, 1936."

Governmeent Buying Butter and Eggs

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Government agents continued buying butter and eggs for relief distribution in markets at Chicago and New York today. The Federal agency bought 50 tubs of butter grading extras at 30½ cents a pound at New York, 533 tubs at 30¾, 60 tubs at 31, 100 tubs of 90 score at 30, 150 tubs at 29¾ and 100 tubs at 29½, a total of 1,533 tubs in the East.

Egg purchases at New York included 2,050 cases of standards at 21½ cents a dozen quart cases at 21¾, 150 cases at 21¼, 100 cases of firsts at 20¼ and 100 cases at 20, a total of 2,550 cases. In Chicago, 300 tubs of butter extras were purchased at 30 cents along with one car of fresh graded firsts eggs at 18¾ cents.

Business of I.B.M. Corp. Largest in Record

New York, June 9 (AP).—Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines Corporation, returning from Europe today, said business of the company thus far this year was greater than in any other like period in the company's history.

He said all the company's plants in Europe were showing increases in business over last year.

T. J. Watson Favors Anglo-American Pact

New York, June 9.—Prospects of Anglo-American trade agreement are the most favorable factor in our foreign trade situation, Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines Corporation and chairman of the American Section of the International Chamber of Commerce, said today on his return from Europe on the Bremen.

"Foreign trade may be expected to play an increasing part in reducing our tax requirements by furnishing employment for American workmen. It is aided by trade agreements which lower barriers to the free exchange of goods and services between nations," he said.

Wheat Prices Recede After Sharp Rise

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 9.—Readjustment of accounts late today, to prepare for any United States Government June crop report surprise tomorrow, largely overcame earlier steep upturns of wheat values.

The upturns hoisted the wheat market in Chicago about 2½ cents a bushel, and nearly 6 cents at Liverpool. Torrential rains in parts of domestic wheat territory where the crop is almost ready for harvest, together with increasing reports of black rust, and with big drought damage in Canada, were largely responsible for the new bulge of values.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅜ to 1 cent above yesterday's finish, July $1.09⅝@$1.09¾; September, $1.09⅜@$1.09½; December, $1.11½@$1.11⅝; Corn unchanged to 1¼ lower; July $1.16¾@$1.17; September, $1.03¾@$1.04; December, 76⅛@76⅜; Oats, carying from ¼ decline to ½ advance; July, 40⅛@40¼; and rye, ⅝ off, July, 87½. Provisions results ranged from 7 cents setback to a gain of 2 cents.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Move Irregularly in Slow Trading; U. S. Bonds Weaken; Wheat Firm.

New York, June 9.—Dullness in financial markets was unrelieved and in a turnover of around 650,000 shares (largest of the week) stock prices worked irregularly lower, with group movements mixed. Government bonds also declined after a firm opening. Grain prices recovered, but cotton continued to fall and French francs were lowered.

Gold continued to be talked in financial quarters, but the logic of the situation, in addition to the President's final and only unequivocal statement on the subject, to the effect that no change in price will be made, lessened apprehension on this side of action. In Great Britain much was made of the chancellor of the exchequer's assertion that no change in policy would be made over there, but that might have been taken for granted in the first place, so far as a return to the gold standard was concerned, and otherwise Great Britain has done little except to allow the United States to buy all the gold in sight. Not much change in that sort of policy could well be made. If we are in a dilemma on gold, as many regard it, we will have to get off it unassisted.

Once the market stops worrying about the possibility of a reduction in the gold price, it will note that such action in conjunction with other policies of the Government seems absurd. More and more the country is becoming Europeanized. Millions of persons are on the dole, the farmers have a subsidy, numerous industries have its equivalent from Federal purchases of supplies for boondoggling purposes, and now comes the request for an enormous ship subsidy—in some ways the least sensible of any.

Shipping Adventure.

The need for the country to go into what is admitted to be an unprofitable business is not apparent to the general public. No big shipping industry needs to be sustained in order to relieve unemployment, as is the case in England, or to contribute to national pride and autarchy, as is the case in Germany, France, Italy and other nations. We are to have it just for the fun of spending several hundred millions and to make sure that no one be silly enough to suggest that the budget actually could be balanced without higher taxation.

While the influences of inflation seem to be assured for the more distant future, immediate forces acting on markets are not altogether favorable to higher prices. Industrial strikes have gone much beyond mere matters of wages and hours; they are involving political problems of a serious nature, and, unless settled soon in a manner giving some guaranty against unrestrained violence and defiance of what used to be considered government, a new and highly speculative element will have entered the markets. More than one business man is now asking himself what has become of the old slogan that the only preventive of revolution, in the sense of riots against government, was the election of the present rulers of the country.

In spite of the steel strikes, the rate of operation this week is not expected to decline materially from that of the previous week. The estimated rate, according to the Iron Age, is 78 per cent of capacity. Tht journal also says that without strikes last month, the output of steel ingots would have broken all records. Incoming business, nevertheless, continues to decline, the scrap market is lower and it is clear enough that the steel industry has passed its peak for this year.

Freight Traffic.

Freight traffic last week, because of the holiday and various strikes, declined sharply from the preceding week when the high for this year was established. The Sun estimates that loadings fell 13.9 per cent from the preceding week and were 1.7 per cent lower than the like week a year ago. The curtailment of steel operations caused by strikes in that industry also slowed up the movement of coal and ore. Last week's car loadings marked the first time this year that the level was under 1936.

Sales.

After a little jockeying on the tape with bid and asked quotations, with the bid run up to 75, a sale of 210 shares of 7 per cent New York Steam preferred stock was reported at 11:45 at 73. Numerous sales followed, but it was not until 1:30 that even a bid could be scared up for the 6 per cent preferred. That was run at 50, against 75 offered, and then the sequence was 56@75, 62@75, 64@67 until a sale of 30 shares finally was arranged (shortly after 2 o'clock) at 66. At first sale prices the 7 per cent preferred was down 30½ points and the 6 per cent 28¾ points.

DuPont Plants To Cost $35,000,000

E. I. duPont De Nemours & Co. disclosed yesterday plans for more than $35,000,000 worth of plant expansion this year. The disclosure was made in a proposal to sell 500,000 shares of preferred stock. A registration statement filed with the Securities Commission said that no estimate of the proceeds of the new securities was available at this time.

The company said that on March 31 it had authorized $35,600,000 worth of plant addition and improvements and expected to authorize more during 1937. No detailed report on the expansion program was made except that it concerned primarily plants for manufacture of rayon, organic chemicals and ammonia.

Output of Gold Nearly Double Nine Years Ago

U. S., Britain and France Hold Three-Quarters of World's Stocks.

New York, June 9.—The world's output of gold increased in 1937 for the eighth consecutive year, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. Production reached a new high annual record of 33,283,000 ounces as compared with the previous high of 29,720,000 ounces in 1935 and with 18,886,000 ounces in 1928, the year prior to the current period of expansion. The output during the first two months of 1937 was 8.2 per cent larger than a year ago, indicating that another new high peak will be attained this year. The maintenance of an 8.2 per cent increase during the remainder of the year would result in an annual output of about 36,000,000 ounces in 1937.

As for some time past the equivalent of nearly all the new gold produced found its way, in 1936, into the monetary gold stocks of central banks and governments. The gold reserves held in 52 countries rose during 1936 from 616,657,000 ounces to 647,514,000 ounces. This represented an increase of 30,857,000 ounces, as compared with the world's output of 33,283,000 ounces.

India an Exporter.

Formerly India was the major hoarder of gold. Since 1930, however, India has been shipping gold out of the country. Last year India exported 3,460,000 ounces, bringing up the total amount exported during the past six years to 34,879,000 ounces. This was more than the world's record high output of new gold last year.

At the end of 1936 the United States, France and England held 74.2 per cent, or nearly three-quarters of the world's total monetary gold stocks. The United States was by far the largest holder, possessing 49.7 per cent of the world's total. France held 13.2 per cent of the total, while England held 11.4 per cent. Gold reserves of each of the other 49 countries included amounted to 3 per cent or less of the world's total. Gold holdings of the United States and England increased sharply during 1936, but French holdings showed a substantial reduction.

Japanese Visit Cotton Exchange

New York, June 9.—A group of members of the Japanese Economic Mission to this country visited the New York Cotton Exchange today where they observed trading.

They were welcomed by present and past officers and members of the board of managers of the exchange. Following their visit to the exchange trading floor, they were tendered a luncheon by the exchange at India House.

"No, I'm not going swimming! I'm going out and buy me a ROOM COOLER!"

You'll feel better, you'll be better natured when you keep cool with a Kelvinator Room Cooler. You'll work better, think better, with the window closed against street noise, dust and wind. And you'll look better when you escape the humid heat that wilts your shirts and steals your energy.
See the special showing of Kelvinator Room Coolers at 1022 15th St. N.W. this week. Get Kelvinator's low installed prices, learn about the special comfort budget plan that lets you pay while you enjoy cool comfort. And remember, the new air-cooled Kelvinator Unit uses only 8c worth of electricity on the hottest afternoon.

Anchor, Rope Tied to Md. Woman, Discovered by Son at Claiborne.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 9.—The body of a 49-year-old woman, an anchor tied around her neck, was taken from the waters of the Chesapeake Bay at Claiborne today by her son.

Hers was the fourth body taken from the Chesapeake in 10 days. Six have disappeared in the bay within the last month, but no trace has been found of two of them.

Sheriff Samuel Carroll, of Talbot County, said he had no reason to suspect that the woman, Mrs. James Kelly, was murdered. He said an inquest will be held there tomorrow by Magistrate Edward Tyler Miller.

The woman's two sons said they talked to her when they came home about midnight last night. This morning she was missing and the sons sought her. She was found in about 12 feet of water, 4 feet from a dock near her home.

Body Tied to Anchor.

Sheriff Carroll said one end of a 4-foot piece of rope had been tied about her neck. The other was tied to a 50-pound anchor which had been on the dock, but had been pushed into the water and was resting on the bottom.

Brief Case Was Keene's.

Positive identification of the brief case tied to the body of Charles F. Keene as the one given him by his sister, Florence Robins Keene, who died in 1934, last night strengthened the suicide theory of the strange disappearance of the Washington real estate agent.

The brief case was described accurately by an intimate friend of Florence Keene, but her name was withheld by Washington detectives. She also described the silver mesh bag and tea strainer found with Keene's body.

All three detectives quoted the witness as saying, belonged to Miss Keene, head of the music department of McKinley High School, and were inherited by Charles Keene, along with everything else his sister owned, after her death three years ago.

The same witness further strengthened the suicide theory by telling police Keene frequently had threatened to kill himself if his sister refused to lend him money.

Had .32 Revolver.

The witness, whom police described only as a school teacher, said Miss Keene owned a nickel-plated .32-caliber revolver. This, too, was inherited by Keene. The bullet recovered from his body was fired from a .32-caliber gun, ballistics experts have established.

River men who have been following the Keene case recalled a striking similarity between Keene's disappearance and the death of Julius Tollefsen, Washington tailor, whose body was discovered in March, 1930.

The Tollefsen case began January 12, 1930, when he failed to return to his home at 529 Tenth street southeast, where he lived with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Anderson.

March 21, the body was discovered near Indian Head, Md. At an inquest it was decided he had been murdered. Later, however, detectives reported sharp rocks had punctured the skull, making holes mistaken for bullet holes.

Reconstructing past events, investigators learned Tollefsen took "over $100" with him when he left home, although only 88 cents were found on his body. He had taken the steamer Southland, apparently giving his name as "Thompson," and occupying one of the most expensive cabins. He bought a round-trip ticket. As late as 2 a. m., it was reported, the watchman had seen him in the ship's salon.

He was missing from the cabin when the boat docked that morning, and the disfigured body was discovered two months later.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 9.—Gold mining issues reacted at the close of the stock market after showing strength in the early dealings. Foreign bonds and home rails sold higher while the industrial group was somewhat mixed, although steels, shipping shares and tobaccos were in fair demand. Oil shares and transatlantic securities held steady.

Paris.—Industrial stocks were firm at the close of the bourse while the remainder of the list was mixed. Suez Canal shares moved 400 francs higher and Bank of France gained 75. The coal group moved irregularly and rentes finished unchanged to 90 centimes down.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures advanced 3⅝d to 3¾d on the bullish Canadian government report and fears of black rust in the American winter wheat belt. Cotton futures closed 2 to 4 points net higher when replacement buying and local covering followed some earlier London and Continental liquidation.

Great Western Head Explains Reorganization

By the Associated Press.

President Patrick H. Joyce of the Chicago Great Western Railroad testified at a Senate inquiry yesterday that he helped form "friendly" stockholders' protective committees to help reorganize his firm "because I didn't want any beanblowers holding up the negotiations."

"I didn't want some outsiders to come in and take pot-shots at the management from behind," he explained to the Senate Railway Finance Committee, inquiring into his company, which is in the hands of trustees for reorganization.

"I had an idea that somebody like that might try to horn in on the deal to get some easy money," he added.

Hagerty Testifies.

The burly, blunt-spoken executive said he hoped to complete the reorganization by the end of this year, keeping the present management in control of the carrier.

Harry C. Hagerty, treasurer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and head of a bondholders' protective committee, testified that the line's creditors preferred to leave it in the hands of Joyce's group because "we feel they can develop new business and run the road satisfactorily."

"All we want is two or three directors on the board," he said.

Hagerty added, however, he and the management had not yet reached an agreement on the handling of the Great Western's bonded debt in the reorganization.

Joyce "Makes a Speech."

When the committee completed its inquiry into the road's financial history, Joyce interrupted to exclaim:

"I want to make a speech.

"I want to thank this committee for the nice way it has treated me," he told the startled investigators. "I came down here wearing three bullet-proof vests and expecting to get shot at plenty."

Earlier in the day he had described an effort he made in 1931 to buy control of the Kansas City Southern, in hopes that an alliance between that line and his own might "save the Great Western" from bankruptcy during the depression.

Joseph F. Mulhall, Architect, Is Dead

Surviving him are two other brothers, William Mulhall, of Washington, and Edward Mulhall, living on the West Coast. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at his residence, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Ursule Nyce's Rites in California

Funeral services will be held in Glendale, Calif., for Mrs. Ursule Strong Nyce, widow of the Rev. Benjamin Markey Nyce, Presbyterian minister and former Washington resident.

Mrs. Nyce, according to dispatches received here yesterday, died Tuesday at her home in Glendale.

She attended the old Washington Seminary here, and later Mount Vernon Seminary, and she was a first cousin of Mrs. Hobart Brooks, of Washington.

On the Air

The early morning Cheerio program, after more than ten years of continuous broadcasting without a summer vacation, will take time out for a three months' rest, starting after this Saturday's performance.

"In consideration of the fact that the Cheerio artists have served faithfully all these past ten summers, N. B. C. feels that they all deserve a good vacation," Cheerio said in expressing his gratitude for the summer leave.

The morning "cheerer-upper" intends to spend all of his time at his Vermont farm. Of the other members of the cast, Russ Gilbert, baritone, and his wife, Lovina, will make their Pennsylvania farm their haven; "Jerry" Riegger, who doesn't want a vacation, will sing on other radio programs; Pat Kelly, tenor, will continue his duties as N. B. C. supervisor of announcers, and the famous canaries will warble for Radio City tourists. Cheerio will return to the air on September 27.

Washington's summer theater colonies are on the N. B. C. Artists Service group's scout list. This is as good a time as any to warn our local amateurs that now is the best time to brush up on their performances. The scouting, which is under the direction of J. Ernest Cutting, is expected to begin next week.

Recognizing more than ever before that the summer theater is the best ground for uncovering new talent, the scouts will be in for a busy summer, what with "roadside" groups springing up all over the country, and they are looking for movie talent, dramatists, script writers, directors, too.

College graduates the country over please note. Dorothy Thompson, well known newspaper columnist and correspondent, and in private life Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, will deliver a commencement address to you, regardless of your alma mater. The program is Rudy Vallee's, the time is tonight at 7, and the station is WRC. Also on the Vallee variety show is Burgess Meredith, who will be remembered for his excellent performances in Maxwell Anderson's "High Tor" and "Winterset." Meredith will star in a one-act play specially written for him.

Funeral Today For Veteran U. S. Attorney

D. B. Hempstead Was Aide in Justice Department Lands Division.

Funeral services for David B. Hempstead, special assistant to the Attorney General in the Lands Division of the Department of Justice, will be held at 12:30 p. m. today at the Latter Day Saints Chapel at Sixteenth street and Columbia road northwest.

Mr. Hempstead, who was 66 years of age, died Tuesday at his home, 3133 Connecticut avenue northwest.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Estelle Hawk Hempstead; a son, David B. Hempstead 3d; two grandchildren, Avery Lee Hempstead and David B. Hempstead 4th; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. David B. Hempstead 3d; a brother, H. H. Hempstead, of San Francisco, and two sisters, Miss Florence G. Hempstead, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Annie H. Rand, of British Columbia.

Before coming to Washington in 1934, Mr. Hempstead practiced law in Salt Lake City, where he was prominently known as one of Utah's leading legal authorities. He was considered an expert in Western land matters and during his connection with the Department of Justice was in charge of a number of important land cases.

He was a native of Utah, a graduate of the law school of Harvard University and of the University of Michigan, and a member of the Zeta Psi Fraternity.

Will Barnes Rites Set for Saturday

The ashes of Will C. Barnes, 78, Indian fighter, forester and author, who died December 17 in Phoenix, Ariz., will be placed in Arlington Cemetery at 10 a. m. Saturday.

In 1929 he was president of the Arts Club here. Early in his career he was a member of the legislatures of Arizona and New Mexico.

Miss Abigail Graves' Burial Service Today

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 today at her residence, 2029 Connecticut avenue, for Miss Abigail C. Graves, 88, who died of a heart attack Monday.

A resident of this city for many years, Miss Graves had long been an active member of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church. She is survived by a sister, Miss Jennie A. Graves, with whom she lived, and several nieces and nephews. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

J. William Weber, Civic Leader, Dies

J. William Weber, widely known restaurateur who had been in business in northeast Washington almost 50 years, died yesterday at his home, 404 H street northeast, following a brief illness.

He came to the city in 1888 from Elben, Germany.

He was a director of the Columbia Building Association, and a member of the Northeast Business Men's Association, Armenius Lodge of Masons, and of the District Order of Eagles.

Survivors are his son, J. William Weber, jr.; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Weber; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Himmel, and two brothers, Martin D. and Henry Weber.

John Rust Kent's Rites Set Today

Private funeral services for John Rust Kent will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at All Soul's Episcopal Church. Mr. Kent, who was 70 years old, died yesterday at his home, 2331 Cathedral avenue, after a long illness.

He was a native of Westmoreland County, Virginia, and had lived in Washington since 1916. Previously he had operated a haberdashery business in New York City. He retired from business in 1925.

He is survived by his daughter, Emma Fardon Kent, of the Cathedral avenue address. His widow, Emma Fellows Kent, whom he married in New York in 1891, died several years ago.

Jurors Indict Bank Official In $6,460 Theft

Sisson Also Accused of Making False Entries Totaling $17,000.

Accused of embezzling $6,460.16 and with making false entries totaling $17,000 on the books of the Hamilton National Bank, Robert A. Sisson, youthful assistant cashier, yesterday was indicted by the District Grand Jury on six charges of embezzlement and three of making false entries.

Sisson is alleged to have told investigators he used money to play the stock market and purchase a home for his wife and three children. He was released in $5,000 bond.

In another indictment returned yesterday, the grand jurors charged Willie J. McClendon, colored, with assault with intent to kill and assault with a dangerous weapon. He is said to have attacked Roscoe W. Kirk, cab driver, and to have shot him twice in the back. Kirk is crippled for life and was carried before the grand jury on a stretcher to give his testimony.

James H. Brisbon, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; Wendell F. Harris, assault with dangerous weapon; Jack Fulton and William McCoy, gaming charges; William Fine and Sally Fine, violation of the Harrison narcotic law; Howard D. Taylor, violation of section 335, Title 16, U. S. Code, and Linwood M. Head, rape.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were William Borum and Kirk A. Callenberger, grand larceny, and Elwood D. Stephens, receiving stolen property.

George Leads Troops.

London, June 9 (AP).—King George VI rode at the head of his troops for the first time today in a birthday celebration almost six months late. The King had commanded there be no celebration of his forty-first birthday last December 14, because it came immediately after his succession to the throne abdicated by his brother, former King Edward VIII.

FRIDAY, JUNE 18, 1937—
ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 7009, folio 176, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on FRIDAY, THE EIGHTEENTH DAY OF JUNE, 1937, AT 4:30 O'CLOCK P. M., the following described property in the District of Columbia, to wit: Lot 10 in Square West of Square 3829 in James J. Galvin's subdivision of Lot 4 in Block 2, "Brookland," as per plat recorded in Liber 79, folio 92, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Subject to the covenants that no building shall be erected within 15 feet of the front line of said Lot 4; that no spirituous or malt liquors shall be manufactured or sold thereon; that no slaughter house or slaughter houses shall be erected thereon; nor shall the said land or premises be used in any way for the purposes hereby prohibited.

TERMS OF SALE: Property will be sold subject to a building association deed of trust for $3,249.13; balance cash. A deposit of $200.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

Capital City Seeks Junior C. of C. Parley

10 Delegates to Take Campaign to Denver This Week-End..

Is Washington the best convention city in the United States?

Convinced that the only answer is a triple affirmative, the Junior Board of Commerce is sending ten delegates to the national convention of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce in Denver with only one thought in mind—to bring the 1938 meeting to the Capital City.

The delegates—loaded down with invitations from Senators, Representatives and civic organizations—will leave Sunday. They are: John S. Bleecker, jr., prsident; Walter S. McBroom, Jack Hayes, jr., Lyle F. O'Rourke, a director of the board; A. Z. Foster Wood, general counsel; Aloysius I. Sheehan, a director; Minor Hudson, secretary; Fred B. Linton, executive secretary; Dr. Robert Harper and Chester Wilkins.

Logical Location.

Enumerating reasons why his organization felt justified in pressing for an acceptance of its invitation, President Bleecker pointed out that the convention has never been held in the Eastern part of the Nation.

"Washington is the logical city for the national convention of the Junior Chamber of Commerce," he said, "because of the business contacts to be made here, the availability of speakers of international importance, the publicity insured by special correspondents representing major newspapers of every section, the unexcelled facilities for accommodation and entertainment, and because the national eye is turned in this direction."

History of Board.

Organized in 1934, the junior board has grown rapidly and now has more than 400 young business and professional men in its membership. It took the lead in organizing the civic theater, raises approximately $25,000 each year for the Washington Community Chest, takes an active part in youth welfare, is working to get a District representative in the Senate, and is interested in providing a series of music appreciation concerts for adults to be given by the National Symphony Orchestra next winter.

Delegates from Virginia and Maryland, as well as from other States of the South and East, have promised their support to the Washington delegates.

Mexican Oil Strikers End 13-Day Walkout

Mexico City, June 9 (AP).—Mexico's 13-day oil industry strike ended at noon today. The nation's motor transport systems, badly crippled the last few days by fuel shortage, returned to normal as the strikers pulled down their red and black strike flags from oil plants and returned to work.

Will Attend National Convention at Denver

Senate Committee Approves New Deal Farm Tenant Bill

By the Associated Press.

A farm tenant loan bill cut to the size desired by President Roosevelt won the approval of a Senate Agriculture sub-committee yesterday.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, announced after a White House visit, the measure would authorize $10,000,000 for loans the first year to aid tenants, $25,000,000 the second, and $50,000,000 the third year.

Bankhead's original bill calling for an annual outlay of $50,000,000 for ten years was opposed by the President on the grounds it would not be consistent with his appeal for economy.

Predicting the full committee would give its approval today, subcommittee members expressed hope the Senate would vote on the measure before the end of the week and send it to the House. A bill by Chairman Jones (Democrat), Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee, has been pending there since early in the session.

Wallace to Seek New Crop Laws

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Wallace served notice yesterday he would campaign for new crop control legislation at this session of Congress.

He indicated he wanted legislation along lines of the "agricultural adjustment act of 1937," urged by farm organizations. This would involve storage of crops under Government loans and production control to prevent stored supplies from becoming too large.

Wallace told reporters recent rains virtually eliminated drought in the Great Plains and that improved crop prospects had pushed corn and wheat prices downward.

Photogrammetry Meeting.

The American Society of Photogrammetry will meet at 8 p. m. today in the auditorium of the National Archives Building.

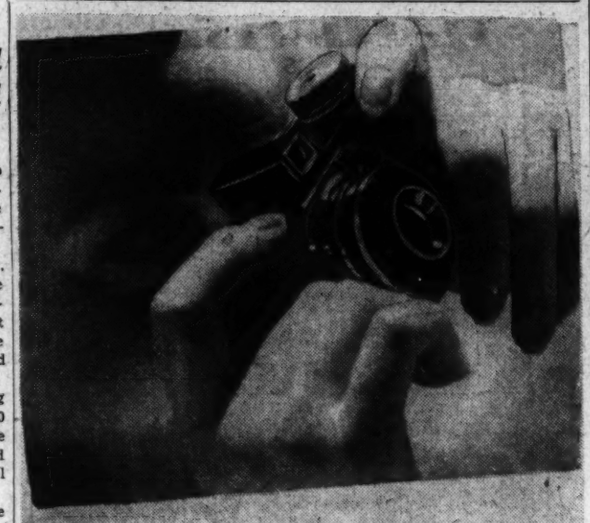

W. C. T. U. Undecided On Convention City

Unable to decide between the Orient and South Africa, the executive committee of the world's W. C. T. U. adjourned yesterday afternoon without selecting a site for the next triennial convention.

With three years in which to make up its mind, the committee members decided to "delay decision" until it could come to an agreement on whether it should take the convention so far away.

Six of the sixteen world-wide meetings of the group have been held in the United States, where the movement was organized, and where there is the greatest membership. The Orient, which comes second in members, never has been a meeting place.

United States officers will remain in session today and tomorrow, completing plans for the annual convention which will be held at San Francisco in August, 1938.
